PEACE CONFERENCE AT CRISIS, EARLY RESULTS EXPECTED; WILSON'S PLANS FOR RETURN INTERPRETED AS WARNING; FIUME MAY GO TO JUGOSLAVS, DANZIG'S FATE IN DOUBT

ROUSING WELCOME TO ADMIRAL SIMS, HOME FROM WAR

ESCORTED UP THE HARBOR

NOT LIKE HIS DEPARTURE

Escorted by a flotilla of destroyers and naval airplanes that met the ship far out at sea, Rear Admiral William S. Sims came back to America on the Mauretania yesterday, on the second anniversary of his arrival in Liverpool to take command of the American fleet in European waters. The Cunarder had been delayed for several hours by the heavy fog which hung over the harbor, but this did not diminish the reception when the sun broke through and the U. S. S. Aramis, to which he had been transferred at Quarantine, steamed up the harbor surrounded by the welcoming craft.

When the Mauretania arrived in Quarantine at 3:24 P. M. the Admiral was greeted by his wife and four children, who were on board the Aramis with Rear Admiral Burrage. They had been waiting since 8 o clock in the morning for the liner to arrive. The police boat Patrol with Mayor Hylan and members of his Welcome Committee, and the Department boat Correction came alongside next.

After being formally questioned as to his health by the doctors from the Quarantine station and passing the Immigration Inspectors, Rear Admiral Sims boarded the Aramis, where he was officially greeted by Rear Admiral Burrage with his aids, who had come from Washington to represent the Secretary of the Navy. The next few minutes were spent by the returning Admiral in meeting his wife and children.

Airplanes Circle Above.

The Mayor, who was accompanied by Mrs. Hylan and Miss Virginia Hylan, stood in the pilot house of the Patrol as she came alongside the Mauretania and shouted out his greetings through a megaphone to the bronzed, white-bearded Admiral, who was smiling at him from the lofty bridge. The sun was shining brightly then and the big planes circled over the liner and the surrounding war craft like giant cagles, while the dirigibles seemed to float in the calm atmosphere just over her masthead.

Others on the Patrol were Special Deputy Police Commissioner Rodman Wanamaker and his aid, Colonel William E. Woods; Edward A. Riegelmann, President of the Borough of Brooklyn; John A. Harriss, and others. Mayor Hylan steamed ahead of the Aramis to Pier A, North River, and had the police band that was on board sent up to the balcony outside the Dock Commissioner's office, where it played martial music as the Admiral came ashore.

The Mauretania should have reached Ambrose Channel Lightship at 5 A. M., but because of the fog did not get there until 2:35 P. M. The first destroyer to greet the Admiral was the Ammen, which was circling about in the dense fog off Fire Island at 9 o'clock. After the liner reached the channel the fog lifted and the other five destroyers with the submarine chasers came up and surrounded the ship. A few minutes later several big naval airplanes came booming out at great speed, followed by three dirigibles and the Gloucester, towing two immense observation balloons.

No Guns Fire Salute.

The Admiral was accompanied by his staff, which consisted of Captain Leigh, Captain J. R. Pringle, Captain D. W. Knox, Commanders J. V. Bancoak, H. R. Stark, and R. A. P. Fairfield, Lieutenant Commander D. B. Wainwright, Lieutenant Commander D. Copeland. No salutes were fired by the United States guardship Amphitrite as the Aramis passed on the way to the Battery. There was no change in the flag that was hoisted at the masthead of the Aramis as it had been broken for Rear Admiral Burrage when he boarded the vessel at Pier A early in the day.

Captain A. M. Rostron, who had Admiral Sims on board during the voyage, stood with him on the bridge coming up from the Ambrose Channel Lightship. Speaking of the welcome that greeted the Admiral, Captain Rostron said:

"It was a royal welcome that the people gave him. I know because I have

Bagdad Railway Open Again; Working on Persian Gulf Line

PARIS, April 7.—Information has been received from Cairo that traffic has been resumed on the Bagdad railway. The tunnel through the Taurus Mountains has been completed and trai from Haidar Pachi now go as far as Nassibin, 150 kilometers from Mosul.

In Mesopotamia work on the extension of the line to the Persian Gulf is being carried out.

BUT BARS PERSONALITIES

Again Refuses to Receive Attack on Himself or Crowder—Concessions to Pershing.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Replying to the letter from Lieut. Col. Samuel T. Ansell, former Acting Judge Advocate General, published this morning, Secretary of War Baker today, through Adjt. Gen. P. C. Harris, welcomed Colonel Ansell's suggestions for court-martial reforms and directed him to draft a bill containing his ideas, but, for the second time, refused to accede to Colonel Ansell's request that he officially receive and make public Colonel Ansell's former letter criticising the attitude of Secretary Baker and Judge Advocate General Crowder toward court-martial reforms. The text of General Harris's communication to Colonel Ansell follows:

"Dated April 5, 1919.

"From the Adjutant General of the Army.

"To Lieut. Col. S. T. Ansell, Judge Advocate.

"Subject: Indorsement of April 2.

"The Secretary of War acknowledges the receipt, through military channels, of the indorsement made by Lieut. Col. Ansell under date of April 2, dealing with the subject of proposed changes in the system of military justice. The suggestions made by Lieut. Col. Ansell are entirely appropriate in form and substance and merit earnest consideration, which they will receive. With many of the suggestions the Secretary of War finds himself in hearty concurrence, if, in fact, existing statute law is defective in the particulars suggested by the proposed changes. In order that the subject may be fully considered and the views of Lieut. Col. Ansell adequately studied, it is directed that Lieut. Col. Ansell prepare and submit to the Secretary of War at the earliest possible date a draft of such a bill as in his opinion would be adapted to carry into effect the ideas expressed in the first paragraph of his indorsement.

"With regard to the second paragraph of the indorsement which calls for this memorandum, the Secretary of War declines to receive officially the communication herewith returned. The communication in question has already been published and there is, therefore, no point in seeking to use the Secretary of War as a medium of publicity. The resort to personal comment in connection with this subject matter was not begun by General Crowder. It plainly would have been more fitting and appropriate if never begun by anybody; it has certainly been carried far enough by everybody. The Secretary of War assumes Lieut. Col. Ansell's earnest desire to concentrate public attention and official attention upon the improvement of the system of military justice, and is quite sure that a single-minded and unbiased

Unterleitner, Joining the Communists, Says He Expects Help from "Brethren" Here.

MUNICH, April 7, (Associated Press.)—On behalf of the Revolutionary Central Council of Bavaria, Herr Mekisch today addressed the following official telegram to all the Workmen's Councils, proclaiming a Soviet Government in Bavaria:

"The workers of Bavaria have overcome their party divisions and united in a mighty bloc against all domination and exploitation. They have taken over in Workers', Soldiers', and Peasants' Councils entire public authority.

"The Landtag has been dissolved and Peoples' Commissions have been appointed. Complete order prevails in public affairs and business and the administration are continuing.

"Works will be controlled by works councils, which will control workers and direct affairs jointly with the managers. Everything belongs to the community. Independent socialisation is therefore out of the question.

"It is the duty of the Workers', Peasants', and Soldiers' Councils everywhere to attend to the protection of the Soviet Republic and its peaceful development. They will take over local authority and control of the administration and are responsible to the working people for all actions and omissions.

"Today is a national holiday. Work will be suspended, but the railways and food, water, lighting, and heating services will continue."

Germans Demand More Food, But Refuse Payment in Gold

PARIS, April 7.—At the conference of the allied and German financial experts at Pont Ste. Maxence on Sunday the Germans demanded fresh consignments of food, and announced that it would be impossible to continue payments in gold, says a Havas dispatch.

In order to increase their gold reserves, they proposed to issue large loans in neutral countries, explaining that Germany's lack of freedom for commerce prevented the defraying of the cost of food.

HUNGARY REJECTS SMUTS'S OFFER

WANTS BLOCKADE RAISED

BUDAPEST, April 6, (Associated Press.)—General Jan Christian Smuts, the Peace Conference Commissioner to Hungary, placed his proposals before the Hungarian Communist Government Saturday. They included the following:

The Hungarian Government to withdraw all troops west of a line which General Smuts outlined; that Rumanian troops be ordered not to advance beyond their present positions, and that the territory between the line drawn by General Smuts and the Rumanian Army be neutral and be occupied by British, French, Italian, and, if possible, American troops.

That the Hungarian Government accept the terms of the military convention concluded last Nov. 13 by the Hungarian Government with the allied powers; that the aforementioned line of demarcation has no influence on the territorial arrangements in the final peace conditions and that General Smuts will propose to the Peace Conference to raise the blockade of Hungary immediately and allow facilities for the immediate import of prime necessities, especially fats and coal.

General Smuts also suggested that he would propose to the Peace Conference that before it finally determined the political frontiers of Hungary it should invite the Hungarian Government to send representatives to Paris. These representatives would formulate their standpoint on the frontiers anu the questions arising from them in a special conference with representatives of the Czechoslovaks, Jugoslavs, Rumanians, and German-Austrians. A representative of the allied powers would be Chairman of the special conference.

The Government replied to General Smuts, thanking him for his civility, but declaring that the conditions presented were inacceptable, except as an order to those who might be inclined to assume the Government of the country on such terms.

"But," the Government's reply added, "relying on the good will displayed in such an unaccustomed manner by you, we beg you to interpret the following proposals to the Entente powers:

"First, the Soviet Government also is disposed to create a neutral zone, but solely on the condition that the frontier thereof is shifted eastward to the Maros line, and that the Soviet Republic shall administer without interference in the territory occupied by the allied troops, thus allowing the Soviet Republic to be re-established in Szegedin and Arad. There shall be free intercourse from the neutral zone both in the direction of Hungary and Rumania and free transit in the Transylvanian territory occupied by Rumania.

"Second, at the same time we request the complete raising of the blockade and the supplying of the republic with coal and fats.

"Third, we request that the proposed conference should include representatives of the Hungarian Soviet Republic, Bohemia, Rumania, Serbia, Jugoslavia, and German-Austria and that it meet at the earliest moment possible at Prague or Vienna, so as to proceed simultaneously with the Peace Conference.

"Fourth, we request an exchange of economic representatives between Hungary and foreign States.

"Fifth, we request the Entente Powers immediately to cease the barbarous persecutions to which every labor movement in the occupied regions is subjected."

Devuelle Gets an 8-Month Term.

LONDON, April 7.—A sentence of eight months' imprisonment was given Reginald Devuelle, a fashion designer formerly of New York, in the Old Bailey Court today after he had been found guilty of trafficking in cocaine.

Devuelle was acquitted Friday of manslaughter in connection with the death of "Billie" Carlton, an American dancer, who was found dead in a hotel in December. A Coroner's jury charged that Devuelle supplied the dancer with cocaine.

WILSON FOR LASTING PEACE

MIGHT LEAVE FOR A TIME

DID NOT WANT SECRECY

But Was Forced to It by the Exigencies of European Diplomacy.

By CHARLES H. GRASTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 6.—Matters will move forward rapidly in the Peace Conference henceforth. Optimistic reports are unjustified as yet, but if an agreement is not reached the policy of publicity will be adopted. The fundamentals of the armistice agreement will be adhered to.

It is probable that the deadlock in the Peace Conference is near an end. That end may be one of two or three different things, but the close is in sight. The delay and secrecy will last a few days longer at most. There may be an agreement among the Allies. That agreement may be rejected or accepted by Germany. Bolshevism may be confined to Russia and Hungary, or it may sweep westward; or, finally, there may be inability to reach an agreement among the Allies. But the prolongation of the deadlock is out of the question.

Roundly stated, the present situation is that Clemenceau, while at times showing a disposition to yield, has maintained his original contention for a Rhine buffer State and kindred provisions, coupled with an agreement for British and American co-operation in military measures for the protecting of France's position. Lloyd George has contended for concessions that would save his face in English politics, while Orlando has been waiting his turn to make a fight for the whole east coast of the Adriatic.

Delay Partly Utilized.

While the deadlock thus produced has continued, the delay has been utilized to reshape the League covenant in such a way as to leave the American opposition without standing ground. This report, as well as that of all the other committees, will go in Monday. In the mean time the President has met his confrères of the Big Four from day to day, and, while holding his main ground, has yielded to them in every point not compromising the essentials to which he has been consistently pledged.

For the secrecy which has drawn such widespread criticism President Wilson has not been responsible. He would probably have preferred complete publicity, in the absence of which his position has been misunderstood and misinterpreted. But he has had a certain sense of comradeship with his associates and has recognized the fact that European conditions imposed upon them necessities that did not affect him as President of the United States. With day-to-day publicity and the spreading broadcast of all the details of the discussion, the European Governments would have been failing right and left.

It should be remembered always how supremely difficult the present situation is. Though victorious, the allies of the Entente are all exhausted. In this state they have been confronted with the opportunity of dealing in the hour of his defeat with an enemy whose brutal might had almost destroyed them. The American position has been such as to enable America to deal with the business of making peace with an eye to the ultimate good of the world. We have wanted nothing but a peace that would stand. Each of the European allies wanted its particular point of view written into the peace.

President Wilson's Patience.

President Wilson has taken the shock of all these demands. He has stood his ground. With patience and amiability, and without a trace of arbitrariness, he has maintained himself against the persistence which only European diplomats know how to bring to bear. The President has examined and re-examined the whole situation day after day for the purpose of making every concession consistent with a sound peace. At every stage he has felt himself honorably bound by the armistice agreement, and in this position he has been supported by his conviction that European interests and world interests would be best subserved by carrying out that agreement. To make a scrap of paper of it was unthinkable, both for America and her allies.

There matters rest today. The armistice agreement, with its twelve points

Summoning of President's Ship Is Interpreted As Meaning Prompt Action in Case of Deadlock

PARIS, April 7, (Associated Press.)—President Wilson's orders that the United States transport George Washington proceed immediately to a French port [published in THE NEW YORK TIMES yesterday] have aroused much comment here, and are even construed by some officials as preliminary to a determined move to force an agreement at an early date by the Peace Conference.

As is usual in such cases, various rumors were soon in circulation, and before night one report was current that the President had delivered an ultimatum to the effect that he would withdraw from the conference unless an agreement was reached within forty-eight hours.

It is confidently asserted by those close to the President that he did not contemplate any such action, but the same authorities have no hesitation in declaring that the President has made his position plain on the question at issue, and it is believed that his determination to adhere to this position is fixed.

The summoning of the George Washington will place the President in such a position, it is pointed out, that he cannot be embarrassed by having to wait for the transport should the time come when he might wish, owing to failure of the peace delegates to agree or unwarranted delay in finding a settlement of the peace question, to withdraw from the discussions.

The belief is common that President Wilson will not hesitate to take definite action if a deadlock is actually reached.

If, however, the Council of Four succeed in reaching an adjustment, and the presence of President Wilson for a longer time is deemed advisable, the George Washington would be available for the transport of troops to the homeland, and would then be ready to return at a later date for the Presidential party.

Saar Coal to France for a Time; Italy May Lose Fiume to Jugoslavs

By CHARLES A. SELDEN.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 7.—Nothing is settled at this Peace Conference, in the sense that it has been put down in the form of a written agreement signed by the representatives of the four big powers, but several things have so thoroughly crystallized that radical changes are entirely unlooked for and would upset the whole affair.

On this first day of the week which high-placed optimists declare will see the finish of the task of the Big Four the situation on several major points may be summarized with more certainty and less speculation than at any previous period of the conference. One way of putting it is, On what points are Wilson and Lloyd George in accord and on what do they differ? For practically everything has narrowed down to the determination of these two men. Clemenceau and Orlando and the representatives of lesser countries are helpless before them.

So first of all it may be stated, or rather repeated with added assurance, that Germany is not to close at the left bank of the Rhine. That territory will not be ceded to any other State or erected into an independent State. In that determination of the American President and British Premier France finds her greatest disappointment. But she seems to be becoming resigned to it as inevitable and settling down to the realization that she must be satisfied with the restoration of Alsace-Lorraine plus what financial and economic reparation she can get plus what protection she may derive in future from the League of Nations. That practically sums up the fruits of the war for France, with the exception of what may come to her in the way of mandates in Asia Minor.

Another point practically settled, so far as France is concerned, is that she is to have the output of the German coal mines in the Saar Valley, although the territory will remain German and be administered under the German Federal and local laws.

But probably there is another disappointment in store for France there. Clemenceau, of course, knows what America and England are disposed to allow and not allow, but the French public assume up to the present that the Saar Valley coal is to be theirs in perpetuity. That, however, is not the Wilson and Lloyd George intention at all. They are willing to grant this German coal to France not as a political or territorial right, but merely as the Germans, can be again placed in perpetuity, but only until the French coal properties in Lens, destroyed by the Germans, can be again place in effective operation.

It is the working out of details of this Saar coal item, which even its advocates admit to be a most awkward solution, that is delaying the finishing of the whole reparation question, which however should be wound up within the next twenty-four hours.

The next point of accord between Wilson and Lloyd George seems to be Fiume, the future of which is to be determined when the Big Four take up the whole Adriatic question, now scheduled to follow reparation tomorrow or the next day. Jugoslavia apparently has won its long fight, and Fiume is not to be given to Italy. Two months ago a member of the American delegation said that Fiume was an Italian city and must go to Italy. Today that same member said:

"It would not be just or wise to give Fiume to Italy, for it is absolutely essential as a port for the new State of Jugoslavia. The best that Italy can expect is that the Peace Conference will make Fiume an international city."

If this is done, the Italian delegation stands ready to withdraw from the conference, as threatened last week, but it is now put in more diplomatic language.

"We don't say we will withdraw," said an Italian this afternoon, "because we will assume until the last moment that Italy is to get Fiume as a matter of course. If we do not get it, we will assume that our Italian delegation has reached the limit of its power and authority to act on its own responsibility, and it will then be necessary to appeal to the Italian people for future instructions. Italy has an Adriatic doctrine just as dear to her as the Monroe Doctrine is to America. Orlando can no more return to Rome with a peace shattering our hopes of Fiume and the Adriatic than Wilson could go back to the United States with a peace or League of Nations charter which your Senate and people would condemn as a menace to American interests."

So it is that in the big questions of west and south Europe the American President and British Premier seem in accord and thus are able to determine the outcome regardless of the disappointment both of France and Italy. But in the Baltic regions the case is somewhat different. Wilson is more pro-Polish than is Lloyd George. Or to put it another way, Lloyd George is more determined than Wilson is not to offend Germany. It was a week ago today that I cabled a dialogue between Wilson and Lloyd George in the Council of Ten in which the former declared Poland must have Danzig as well as the shortest line to it from Warsaw after Lloyd George had demurred to such a concession because it would give to Poland territory inhabited by Germans. There has been nothing since to indicate that the disagreement has been ended.

At the southern end of the proposed Polish State there is another dispute concerning Teschen, but as this is between Poland and Czechoslovakia, with Germany not involved, Lloyd George is not so keenly interested in the outcome, and there is no reliable basis even for speculation on the result. So the whole Polish question is much more in doubt than the hardly more important problems of the Rhine and the Adriatic.

HIGH TENSION IN COUNCIL

AMERICANS ARE PESSIMISTIC

REPARATION CRUCIAL POINT

Differences on This and Frontiers Reported Comparatively Slight, but Much Contested.

PARIS, April 7, (Associated Press.)—Extreme tension was evident as a result of today's discussions in the Council of Four and it is believed throughout the Conference that another critical stage has been reached.

One of the most responsible authorities associated with President Wilson said that he would not be surprised if American participation was brought to an early close if the delays over details were carried much further.

The differences still remaining on the subjects of frontiers and reparations were comparatively slight, he added, and yet these slight differences were so persistently maintained as to threaten to create prolonged delays, which the President and the American delegation were not willing to accept.

The President was described by one who saw him in the course of the day as standing firm in his determination to make no further concessions. He insists that the principles which were definitely agreed upon at the time of the armistice are at stake.

There is little doubt that the President's stand has been made known to the other members of the Council, but since his illness he has not personally conferred with any of them, excepting Colonel House.

The existing tension led to many reports of decisive action which the American delegation was said to be about to take. These reports were more or less exaggerated, yet all seemed plausible in view of the President's determined attitude.

Some of the President's closest intimates had not been informed that the steamer George Washington had been sent for, while others were of the opinion that the summoning of the steamer would be accepted as an intimation by the allied leaders that delays must be brought to a speedy conclusion.

Lloyd George Confined to Bed.

The Council of Four was to have met at 11 o'clock this morning at the "White House," where the President is still confined to his bed, but able to consult with his colleagues in emergencies. It developed, however, that Premier Lloyd George had a cold like the President's, which kept him also to his bed. A morning session of the Council was therefore impossible.

It was then determined to have the Council meet at Mr. Lloyd George's residence, so as to be near him, and here the session began at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon, with Premier Clemenceau, Premier Orlando, Colonel House, and all the financial experts present.

The Council today heard the report of the Reparation Committee, and accepted a proposition which provides for the formulation of the categories of damages which Germany will be required to pay, and the method of estimating them, but will leave to a commission sitting after the peace treaty is signed the determination of the full bill and the amount which can be collected from Germany. As it is not expected that Germany will be able to pay the claims in full, the assets which are realized from her will be prorated among her creditors proportionately to the size of the claims and without preference.

The Council will fix definitely the amount of the initial payment and

Atlantic Flight Soon to Start from Ireland; To Make Two Eastward Attempts Next Week

LONDON, April 7, (Associated Press.)—The airplane of the Shortt Brothers, one of the entries for the £10,000 race across the Atlantic, will start from Ireland for Newfoundland on April 16, weather permitting. The machine is expected to make the journey in twenty hours.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., April 7.—The start of the transatlantic flight to be attempted in a Sopwith machine by Harry G. Hawker and Lieut. Commander MacKenzie Grieve, British aviators, may be made early next week. This is dependent upon the weather and the outcome of trial trips.

Three or four days more will be needed to complete the installation of wireless equipment on the airplane, which has been assembled. The first trial trip cannot be made before Saturday, and may be delayed further if the ground about the hangar does not dry out sufficiently.

If the trials show the machine and engines to be in satisfactory shape, the flight across the ocean will be made as soon as possible.

Major Morgan is expected to arrive from Liverpool on the steamer Sachem with his Murtinside machine about the end of this week. The airplane will be housed under a tent near this city, and it is understood that Major Morgan hopes to start a transatlantic flight by the end of next week.

Previous dispatches to THE NEW YORK TIMES have indicated that the Shortt interests had chosen the Limerick section of Ireland for their starting point.

The machine entered by the Shortt brothers is the Shortt "Shiel" airplane. It is fitted with a 375 horse power Rolls-Royce engine developing a speed of ninety-five miles an hour.

In their application to the British Air Ministry the Shortts designated Major James C. P. Wood of the Royal Flying Corps as pilot, with Captain C. C. Wylie, a nephew of the marine painter, as navigator.

instruct the commission as to the minimum amount to be collected. It is now estimated that this amount will run up to about $45,000,000,000, of which Germany will be required to pay $5,000,000,000 down in cash or securities, with another installment payable within two years after peace is signed.

The progress made today by the Reparations Commission came only after keen discussion, in which Colonel Edward M. House presented President Wilson's views. A draft report was finally adopted with several minor reservations, one of which covered the extent to which Belgium was bound by the definition of categories for damages.

The Reparations Drafting Committee will meet again tomorrow.

After the question of reparations is settled the questions of the Rhine frontier and the Adriatic coast will remain as the chief obstacles. Frontier questions are still being considered by Captain André Tardieu, representing France; Professor Charles H. Haskins, on behalf of the United States, and Viscount Morley for Great Britain. They have not reported to the council, though it is understood they have agreed on the main principles of effective security without political annexation.

Orlando Confers with House.

Premier Orlando of Italy held another conference at noon today with Colonel E. M. House over the Adriatic issue, which is gradually nearing a settlement which is not, however, entirely acceptable to the Italians concerning Fiume and Dalmatia.

That progress is being made is indicated in an announcement that a plenary session of the Peace Conference is to be held Friday afternoon, which will be the first assembling of the full conference since President Wilson's departure for the United States some time ago after having presented the League of Nations covenant.

The Temps publishes the following statement today:

"Contrary to certain statements in the German press, and circulated in turn by other foreign newspapers, we believe the French Government is not putting forward any annexationist claim, either open, avowed, or covert, to any territory inhabited by Germans. This refers particularly to the regions lying between the boundaries of 1871 and 1814."

An extremely optimistic impression was prevalent today regarding a settlement favorably to France of the questions of her security against future aggression and the neutralization of the left bank and part of the right bank of the Rhine. This feeling was voiced today by the Petit Journal, which in treating of the financial aspects of the situation, stated that it appeared that France would be completely indemnified.

Germany's ability to continue paying for the food shipments made under the Brussels agreement, it is learned, cannot be determined before April 15, when the German Government expects to have a report on the surrender to the Government of German-owned foreign securities, which is in progress.

Financial Terms Discussed.

The allied financial delegates meanwhile continue the general discussion with the German delegation at Senlis of the value and availability of particular securities, so that when the German report on surrendered securities is received it will be easy to calculate to what extent they can be used in financing food imports.

The export of raw materials from Germany, which will also play a rôle in the payment for food, is in progress across the German frontier to adjacent neutrals, but because of the disturbed industrial conditions the amount is rather disappointing.

Paul Dutasta, General Secretary of the Peace Conference, went to Versailles today to prepare for the arrival of the German plenipotentiaries. It is probable that the preparatory meetings will take place in the former meeting room of the Supreme War Council, and that the treaty will be signed in the main palace at Versailles.

LONDON, April 7.—An important statement on the work of the Peace Conference which Premier Lloyd George had promised to make tonight was postponed until Tuesday, according to a Central News dispatch from Paris. The British Premier, it added, was confined to his home with a severe chill.

SAYS LLOYD GEORGE WAVERS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 7.—The London Times political correspondent in Paris, who when he is in London is the editor of that journal, continues to express in his articles severe criticism of the important personages of the Peace Conference. Referring to Lloyd George's interview in the Matin, he says:

"One is constrained to ask, on reading statements like these, whether Lloyd George really thinks they will tend to increase the esteem, trust, and affection of his colleagues for him. They may possibly recognize the excellence of his desire to diminish the pressure which an anxious public opinion is putting upon them, and they may conclude that among politicians the end sometimes justifies the means. But they would probably be more grateful were he to work with a single mind and in an obviously unselfish spirit to settle the questions in regard to which his attitude of late has been, to say the least, fluctuating."

He refers to Lloyd George as "trying to mold the peace in accordance with his fears for his own domestic position," and intimates that the Prime Minister is trying to let Germany down easily in the matter of indemnities. On this point he adds:

"Tendencies in this direction are already far too noticeable among American financiers. Some British financiers of the baser sort would probably not be averse to following their example."

"If any breath of this spirit," he continues, "affects the judgment of the British or American delegates, it will assuredly destroy the international belief in justice as a political ideal, and will render abortive the League of Nations itself. Similarly the idea of trading with the Bolsheviki, by which the American Commission now at Stockholm seems to be animated, will, if persisted in, prove fatal to the European belief in American disinterestedness, and, consequently, to the moral influence of President Wilson and of the United States."

PRESIDENT GAINS STEADILY.

But Keeps His Bed Most of the Day —Hopes to be About Today.

PARIS, April 7.—President Wilson's condition was improved this morning, but by the direction of Rear Admiral Grayson, his physician, the President remained in his room today, attending no meetings.

Mr. Wilson remained in bed most of the day. Steady improvement in his condition, however, is announced by the attending physicians.

Apparently the President's cold is in the last stages of the wearing-off process. He hopes to be able to resume work on Tuesday.

Rear Admiral Grayson explained that, while the President's condition was steadily improving, he thought it an advisable precaution to hold him to his room and even to his bed for another day.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—President Wilson is "steadily improving," although still confined to his bed, according to a message received today at the White House from Paris.

PARLEY WITH AUSTRIA IS MAKING PROGRESS

Gen. Steff Joins French Mission —Chancellor Fenner Hopeful of Vienna Situation.

PARIS, April 7, (French Wireless Service.)—Major Gen. Steff, former French Military Attaché at Vienna, is on his way to the Austrian capital to join Henri Allize, the head of the Special French Mission to Austria.

Dispatches from Basle say that M. Allize is making progress in his negotiations with the Austrian Government.

VIENNA, April 4, (via Geneva.)—The Austrian State Chancellor, Fenner, today pronounced a favorable opinion on the Vienna situation. The influence of Hungarian events on Austria was unjustified, he said, because the Austrian workmen classes are for the positive work of democracy. Budapest is reported quiet, while in the country many places are manifesting against the new order. Serious disorders are reported from Odenburg between the Red Guard and burghers.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Advices reaching the State Department today indirectly from Vienna said a Communist revolution seemed imminent in German Austria.

GERMAN AGRARIAN PROTEST.

Lack of Representation on the Peace Delegation Inspires It.

BERLIN, April 6, (Associated Press.)—The Agrarian League has filed a protest with the National Ministry and the Foreign Secretary against its lack of active representation in the delegation to the Paris Peace Conference. Professor Friedrich Aereboe of the University of Breslau, an agricultural scientist, is said to have declined to accept a Government appointment as a member of the body of experts attached to the delegation.

TO DISCUSS LEAGUE TODAY.

Commission Will Meet to Consider the New Draft.

PARIS, April 7, (Associated Press.)—The drafting Committee of the League of Nations has now completed its work. The covenant as revised contains 27 articles.

A full meeting of the League of Nations Committee will be held tomorrow to consider the redraft and the covenant.

PADEREWSKI STILL INSISTS ON DANZIG

CALLS IT KEY TO VICTORY

PARIS, April 6, (Associated Press.)—After conferences today with Premier Clemenceau, M. Pichon, the French Foreign Minister, and Colonel House, Jan Ignace Paderewski, the Premier of Poland, told The Associated Press that he was somewhat reassured about Marshal Foch's agreement concerning the moving of troops through Danzig.

"Our information throughout Poland," said M. Paderewski, "was based largely on the German version of the arrangement made at Spa; consequently the Poles regarded it as a surrender to the German terms. As the matter has been explained to me today by the Entente officials it looks very different.

"Of course, I appreciate the necessity of getting troops from France to Poland as rapidly as possible, and I see that we have been misled by the German propagandists, who are working by the thousands in Poland."

Replying to an inquiry as to whether he felt that the principle of the right to land Polish troops at Danzig had been maintained, Mr. Paderewski said:

"We are uncertain still, and not satisfied with the status of the negotiations concerning Danzig. If Poland does not receive Danzig the war is lost. Leaving Danzig in Germany's hands would mean the defeat of all the armies which participated in this great war."

Asked if the neutralization of Danzig would be satisfactory to Poland, M. Paderewski replied emphatically in the negative. "We have seen how the neutralization of Danzig works," he said. "The whole world knows what a failure that was in the past. It would be the same again."

M. Paderewski has an appointment to meet President Wilson on Thursday, and in the meantime many other appointments with peace delegates. He does not know how long he will remain in Paris. Mme. Paderewski, who accompanied her husband, is constantly with him, assisting in the direction of his secretarial staff and meeting callers.

Crowds gather before the hotel where Paderewski is staying, hoping to get a glimpse of the easily recognized Premier, whose appearance in Paris has overshadowed that of other distinguished visitors.

Paderewski received the correspondent in his drawing room, which was filled with flowers sent by officials and admirers of the artist as well as the statesman. A score of photographers of Paris papers were admitted while the Premier was talking, and posed him and his wife, who continued her conversation, regardless of the activities of the picture men.

"This is the sort of life we have led for over four years," said Mme. Paderewski. "We don't know what home is any more, but it does not matter if Poland comes out all right."

General Haller's Polish troops, numbering about 50,000, will begin to move by train from Paris to Poland April 10 at the rate of two trainloads a day. It will probably require thirty days to complete the transportation.

ZURICH, April 7.—Several allied representatives have arrived at Danzig to make arrangements for the accommodation there of allied and Polish troops.

A Weimar dispatch to the Frankfurter Zeitung says that President Fehrenbach of the German National Assembly has postponed his visit to Vienna in order to go to Berlin to take part in the discussions on the Danzig and other Polish questions.

WARSAW, April 6, (Associated Press.)—Before departing today for Paris Dr. Vernon C. Kellogg, a member of the American Food Administration, who investigated the food and health problems in East Poland, said the situation there had improved, partly as a result of the receipt of American food shipments, but that they were far from being solved.

"It will take a year to put Poland on her feet," Dr. Kellogg added. "There are at least 5,000,000 people scattered over 10,000 square miles who are worse off than were the Belgians, because they have been without any help whatsoever for four years. They are absolutely dependent on the Allies for food, clothing, and hospital supplies.

"I do not believe the Allies have a more important duty than to hasten all available assistance to Poland. We have shipped 80,000 tons of foodstuffs to Poland, but that is not enough. We must send that much each month" accepted and two reserved, is the rock on which the President stands. In all essentials it must be the basis of peace. Americans have been particularly anxious to make the utmost possible concessions to France and to grant every contention made by Clemenceau, short of destroying the whole plan of a peace without militarism. They believe with all sincerity that the covenant of the League of Nations, supplementing the peace terms, provides a workable scheme which will guarantee security for France as well as permanent peace for the world. President Wilson has met every demand with sympathy and open-mindedness, but has steadfastly refused to abandon the underlying principles of the armistice agreement. If the European Allies insist upon doing so, it will be tantamount to a rejection of American aid in the solution of the problem. It is possible, but not probable, that some Power may carry matters as far as that.

Dissatisfaction Unavoidable.

If the Conference ends in agreement on the terms, it is inevitable that there should be some measure of dissatisfaction among all European Governments. Germany will complain of the harshness of the terms and contend that the principle of non annexation and other Wilsonian conditions were violated. France will feel dissatisfied at not bringing America into a continuing military partnership for protecting her against Germany, as well as respecting other points in which the Treaty falls short of realizing her full hopes of reparation and security. Nobody will be entirely content. And, moreover, Europe will face a perfect wilderness of minor but most difficult problems that will have to be worked out under the general principles of the Treaty.

But it will be a peace with the League of Nations. People can have a chance to go back to work, and a return of normal conditions will at last be in sight, and some common program for meeting the threat of Bolshevism may become possible. Militarism in Germany will have been broken and militarism in other countries checked. A fair prospect will be opened up of lifting the burden of armament and war from the world. Good people everywhere, who want order and decency, may be brought to a common understanding and co-operation.

What if Europe repudiates the agreement upon which the armistice was signed by the Entente and Germany, and rejects American help? It is believed that the President will then lay all the facts before the world. It would probably mean America's withdrawal from the irreconcilable aspirations and controversies of Europe, until such time as her counsel and assistance could be accepted on such terms as it was possible for her to extend them. That time would surely come. All Europe needs us—all people of good will in all countries. Sooner or later they will welcome us in the effort to establish the new order aimed at in the League covenant. If Europe rejected America now, while on the face of it the reason would be that we were unwilling to participate in a militaristic peace or enter into armed alliances, it would really mean that the war had been so cruel and destructive and had aroused such passions and fears that a certain period of time must pass, even with all its attendant evils and sacrifices, before reconciliation and reconstruction could be carried out.

False View of the Armistice.

The delay in the Conference action is laid at President Wilson's door by most of the European critics. At bottom, most of this is founded on the false assumption that the President forced the armistice of Nov. 11 on France and England. The historical fact is that Foch and Haig and the civilian authorities of both countries were insistent—I will use an even stronger word—importunate, for the armistice. Their representations were much stiffer than the others.

In any bewailing of what might have been, that may follow the Peace Conference, the American position will stand examination in all particulars, from first to last. In the field, the American effort was effective. In the political and diplomatic effort, President Wilson's leadership has been a veritable sheet-anchor. His has been the spirit of disinterested helpfulness, which is America's spirit, and he has pursued a consistent, wise, and steady course.

In all judgment of the events of the next few days it should never be forgotten that this has been a war from which Europe came out shattered. It can not be rebuilt in a few months. The very best that can be expected is a sound beginning.

DIONYS SZECHENYI FLEES TO DENMARK

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

COPENHAGEN, April 7.—Count Dionys Szechényi, the former Austro-Hungarian Minister to Denmark, who left Copenhagen fourteen months ago, has returned. He is ruined financially and is a fugitive from his own country.

When seen last night, the Count expressed great joy at being back safely, and said that the second revolution came like an explosion through the country. He said it was not the work of the Hungarian people, but part of an international movement against the dictature proletariat started at Budapest.

Asked why Count Karolyi acted as he did, Count Szechenyi said:

"He did it in despair. Karolyi was not popular in Hungary, but we supported him as long as possible. When his hope that the Entente would insure the integrity of Hungary and send food as soon as the country offered peace was shown to be only a dream he gave up.

"When I left the Red Guard was plundering the churches. All property was taken from the owners. I succeeded, with my family, in escaping to Vienna, and from there I came here. I have lost all."

The Count then told how everything was declared the State's property—banks, theatres, and private fortunes. Nobody must pay rent. He added that resistance to the Red Guards was impossible, because they were in possession of all the arms. Famine is growing, especially in Vienna and Budapest.

"I want to emphasize, and very strongly, that only two things can save the world—the Wilson peace must be concluded immediately and food must be provided," said the Count.

Szechenyi was called back from Denmark on account of his Entente sympathies. His wife is a Belgian of the well-known family of de Chimay.

BELA KUN MURDERED, SAYS A VIENNA RUMOR

VIENNA, April 7.—The Hungarian Communist Government in Budapest has been overthrown, according to rumors current in official circles, the newspapers say. Bela Kun, the Foreign Minister, is reported to have been assassinated.

The reports do not say whether the attempted revolution in Budapest was organized by the Socialists or the bourgeois parties.

PARIS, April 7.—Peace Conference circles had received no confirmation of rumors from Vienna that the Hungarian Soviet Government had been overthrown and Bela Kun assassinated. There was an inclination to doubt the accuracy of the reports.

Soviet elections had been planned for Hungary today and a general holiday had been proclaimed.

BASLE, April 7, (Havas.)—No confirmation has been received of the reports of a counter-revolution in Hungary and the assassination of the Foreign Minister, Bela Kun. The Frankfort Nachrichten says, however, that changes in the Hungarian Cabinet are imminent.

LODGE DECLINES TO ANSWER CUMMINGS

Senator Silent on League of Nations—Palmer and Hitchcock to Speak for Project.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Senator Lodge, who will be Chairman of the Foreign Relations Committee when the Senate reorganizes, returned to Washington today to dispose of correspondence. He was uncommunicative as to the League of Nations and declined to comment upon the criticism by Chairman Cummings of the Democratic National Committee that Mr. Lodge was inconsistent in having asserted that President Wilson had brushed aside the parliamentary proprieties in appointing delegates to the Peace Conference without consulting the Senate.

Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer will start on a speaking tour within a few days in behalf of the League of Nations and the Liberty Loan. Mr. Palmer, with Senator Hitchcock, Chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations, will take the discussion issues, into the Central States. He has these engagements: Buffalo, April 21; Toledo, April 22; Cleveland, April 23; Philadelphia, April 24; Atlanta, April 28, and Birmingham, April 29.

Following an address at Boston before the City Club on April 17, Senator Hitchcock will go to Omaha, and will speak in Springfield, Ill., and at Chicago, before the Hamilton Club. He also has engagements to speak at Denver before the Civics and Commercial Association at a luncheon and at a massmeeting under the auspices of the League to Enforce Peace. The dates of these addresses will be fixed later.

Senator Hitchcock also has been invited to speak at a massmeeting in Indianapolis, and it is likely that a debate with Senator Watson of Indiana will be arranged. The St. Louis Advertising Club has invited Senator Hitchcock to talk on the League of Nations. He will appear before the American Academy of Political Science on May 3 at Philadelphia.

COPENHAGEN, April 5.—Great efforts are being made in Denmark to help the suffering in Schleswig. A fund has been started already, now amounting to more than $3,000,000. Clothes are sent by the carload and food provided in every possible way.

Besides this, underfed children will be placed in country homes in Denmark, the first lot of 6,000 arriving after Easter. The Germans in Schleswig are busy against this movement, but are unsuccessful.

LEAGUE DECISIONS TO BIND GERMANY

She Must Agree to Accept Rulings, Although Not to be a Signatory.

TO BE PUT ON PROBATION

Other Enemy States Also Must Wait Until They Prove Their Good Faith.

LONDON, April 7, (British Wireless Service.)—"The difficulty of putting the text of the covenant of the League of Nations in the peace treaty that Germany is to sign, if Germany is not a party to the covenant, which she by her signature accepts," says the Paris correspondent of The Westminster Gazette, "has been cleared up. By a skilful piece of draftsmanship, the covenant, as it will appear in the treaty, is so worded that while the existence and jurisdiction of the League will be recognized by Germany, that country will not be immediately received as a member. She will, however, express her full accord in the constitution of such a body, and will agree to abide by its decisions.

"Although there is at present no question of Germany being one of the original signatory powers, it is contemplated that so soon as it is certain that that country will faithfully carry out the obligations of the League, it will come in. This is a line which will be pursued in respect to other enemy States. They will be invited to subscribe to the principles of the League, and in that sense they will be probationary members without voice in the councils.

"States without a stable Government are equally ineligible for membership, which presupposes the ability of a signatory power to fulfill the pledged conditions. It is learned that numerous neutral powers which have been consulted are enthusiastic supporters of the idea, and there is no possible doubt as to their inclusion at an early date. Their suggestions have been carefully considered, and in some cases, where practicable, inserted in the new draft of the covenant.

"The difficulty concerning the Monroe Doctrine has been, it is believed, overcome. It should be remembered that, except for certain cases, which are clearly specified, unanimous decisions of the Executive Council, which will be provisionally composed of nine members, will be necessary. Therefore, as America will occupy one of these seats, no decision can possibly be arrived at that does not have her full consent."

WALES IN AIRPLANE FLIES OVER LONDON

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 6.—The Prince of Wales made his first airplane flight today when he flew over London for an hour in a Handley-Page two-engine bombing machine.

The airplane rose from the Cricklewood aerodrome at 3 P. M. The Prince was seated beside the pilot, Lieutenant Carruthers. Lady Joan Mulholland occupied the machine gunner's cockpit in front, and Lord Claude Hamilton and Admiral Mark Kerr were other passengers.

On leaving the ground the machine turned toward London and passed to and fro over that city and the west end, encircling St. Paul's Cathedral at the comparatively low altitude of 1,500 feet.

The Prince took the keenest interest in picking out Buckingham Palace and other landmarks. A striking demonstration of the safety and stability of the machine was given him in mid-air when Lieutenant Carruthers and Admiral Mark Kerr changed seats, the latter, who is a qualified pilot, taking over control.

On landing the Prince spent some time examining the machine. While he was doing so another Handley-Page machine passed overhead, carrying Bonar Law to Paris.

VENETIANS SUFFERED UNSPEAKABLE WRONGS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, April 6.—The first volume of the Royal Commission's report on Austro-German atrocities in the invaded Venetian provinces, which is published in Rome today, abounds in heart-rending stores, many of which will not bear reproduction in a newspaper. Immediately after the invasion the average death rate bounded up from 22 to 65 per 1,000 inhabitants, and some 37,000 civilians succumbed to ill-treatment.

In the Alpine City of Feltre alone, one-fourth of the total population died, those lodged in public institutions. As an instance of the amazing barbarities to which the people of that town were subjected there may be cited the case of one Delia Caneva. After she had rescued a girl of his family from the outrages of five Hungarian officers, he was stripped naked and, after an entire bottle of brandy had been forced down his throat, his beard and eyelids were burnt off with a lighted candle and his body was cauterized all over with a red-hot iron. His martyrdom lasted for several hours. The tortures were stopped as the tormentors were proceeding to further indescribable atrocities.

Out of 16,000 civilians deported to be interned in camps of Germany and Austria-Hungary, 8,000 perished from starvation. As for the Italian military prisoners, who numbered 570,000, the official lists already forwarded show over 43,000 deaths. This average proportion of 75 per 1,000 captives represents a mortality rate eight times greater than that among the enemy prisoners held in Italy, and a similar rate among the population of the Central Empires would amount to 8,000,000 deaths per annum.

The Royal Commission calculates the minimum indemnity due to Italy for actual damage at $30,000,000,000.

CALLS MOST GERMANS MONARCHISTS AT HEART

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, April 4.—"At least 80 per cent. of the German people are still at heart Monarchists."

This statement was made to me, not by a Prussian Junker, but by a prominent Spartacide. For obvious reasons it is impossible to publish his name, but the man is of mark in the councils of Eichhorn and Captain von Beerfelde, apostles of Spartacism in Germany.

"All the political parties represented in the National Assembly," he explained, "secretly favor monarchism and the return of the Hohenzollerns, with the sole exception of the Independent Socialists. I have just come from Berlin, where the general cry after the brutal suppression of the last Spartacide insurrection is 'Oh, if our Kaiser would but return!' Even the Majority Socialists share this universal longing, and monarchism is not only rife among the bourgeois classes, but even among the workmen, as we know to our cost, it is deeply rooted.

"The German Republic is a myth. Germany is as imperialistic and impenitent as ever, and only the triumph of Spartacism can definitely eliminate the menace of Prussian militarism and insure European peace. The Independent Socialists and the Spartacides are the only parties that demand the trial and conviction of the Kaiser and of all the responsible authors of the war. Ebert and Scheidemann will never even publish the documents concerning the question of responsibility, as they promised to do many months ago, because their own complicity would be revealed."

SAYS WAR CHIEFS VETOED CIVIL WAR

German Army Could Have Crushed Revolution, Asserts Count Schulenberg.

BERLIN, April 5, (Associated Press).—While admitting that there was a difference of opinion among German Generals as to the practicability of fighting to maintain the imperial régime in November, Count Schulenberg, commander of a Guardds regiment, maintains in an article on the abdication of Emperor William, published in the Freiheit, that there were enough loyal troops to have marched on Aix-la-Chapelle and Cologne and put down the revolution.

The Count says that Field Marshal von Hindenburg and General Groener, Prussian War Minister, would not assume the responsibility for such a move, arguing that things had gone too far and that only the abdication of Emperor William could save the situation. The Emperor, he says, was emphatic in declaring that he did not desire a civil war and that he would not call upon the army to engage in such a conflict.

Internal conditions becoming worse, William at length agreed to Count Schulenberg's advice to abdicate as Emperor, but not as King of Prussia. Field Marshal von Hindenburg indorsed this course, but, in the opinion of General Groener, it was too late, although it might have saved the situation two weeks earlier.

In the meantime, there came rumors from Berlin of the imminence of civil war and street fighting was actually begun there. Finally the Imperial Chancellor telegraphed that civil war might break out at any moment if the abdication were not announced at once.

Hurried conferences were held by the Emperor, the Crown Prince and the leading Generals, the article says. One of the commanders asserted that there was a feeling among the Generals that the entire army could not be depended upon in case of civil war. To this Count Schulenberg says he replied:

"The oath to the colors and the Supreme War Lord is only an idea," was the rejoinder of General Groener.

At this moment, Admiral von Hintze, the Foreign Minister, entered with a menacing message from Berlin, and tendered his resignation. William then consented to abdicate as Emperor, but insisted on retaining his office as King of Prussia and head of the army. The Imperial Chancellor in the meantime, however, had announced the abdication without waiting for the Emperor's formal declaration.

ACCUSES SERBS OF CRUELTY

Montenegrin Premier Wants His Country's Boundaries Restored.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, April 7.—John Plamenatz, President of the Montenegrin Government, has given in an interview a heartrending description of conditions in his country, which, it is asserted, already exhausted by the first and second Balkan wars, entered the world war unprovided with arms, munitions, food, or clothing.

"After all these sacrifices the Montenegrin people had to undergo the Serbian military invasion," he said. "I haven't time to describe all the atrocities committed by them, otherwise I would have to talk until tomorrow. I will only tell you of one episode of which I was a witness.

"The village of Mirzi, whose only fault was its faithfulness to Montenegro, was surrounded by Serbian troops and set afire. The inhabitants, thus rendered homeless, were driven away, while soldiers pursued them, striking them with the butts of their rifles. Many women had their heads crushed in. Four men were hanged on trees, to terrorize the people. An immense number of houses in Montenegro have been sacked and destroyed, while the Serbians have taken the furniture, food, and everything the people possessed. The Serbian aim was to stifle forever the voice of Montenegro.

"Our country demands, first of all, the evacuation of the Serbian troops, then the integral restoration of our boundaries."

BERLIN, April 6.—"Europe is ruined. We are ruined first and most of all, unless we all come together and find ways and means to put the Continent politically and financially in order against Bolshevism. We must all of us come back to our senses, quickly and sharply, otherwise all Europe will be swallowed up in the welter of Bolshevist madness. We must not go on the lines of 'beggar my neighbor,' but on the policy of 'help my neighbor.' Let us get away from the criminal folly and try seriously and earnestly to do better. Let us make peace on conditions which will allow all to live. Unless that is done quickly, the world will have to be rebuilt on its ruins."

Thus spoke Arthur von Gwinner, the financier of the Deutsche Bank, one of the greatest money experts in the Fatherland and in the world, with whom I have been discussing the German and European situation. He talks of the situation with calm and dignity, but he feels horror and disgust when he contemplates the present outlook and when he surveys the past. We can see plainly how the crime and tragic results of the war have told on him.

I could not help recalling how, a week or two before the war clouds began to darken Europe, I saw on the same day two of the great builders of the tremendous economic structure which was pre-war Germany, von Gwinner and Albert Ballin, the president of the Hamburg-American Line. One in a speech and the other privately, to me ridiculed the very idea of a war and called it madness and crime.

One has lived through the whole tragedy of it, to look sadly upon that world of which he was and is a great figure and to see the start of chaos. The other is dead, though he lived just long enough to be able to survey the great work of his life in ruins. These two lives present a tragic picture of the fate of Germany.

Says War Surprised Financiers.

Herr von Gwinner is a fascinating personality. He admits being more thoroughly read in English than in German literature. At times he will quickly turn aside from the mournful picture of today to quote with infinite relief long passages from Shakespeare. He was dubbed a defeatist long before Germany's defeat appeared certain. He could have had Government office, and it is one of his regrets that he did not enter the political arena in order to try to do something to make the wreck of things less terrible than it has been.

"Had the German financial world," I asked him, "any idea that the war was coming?" It has often been stated that German financiers exercised a certain influence in 1911, during the Agadir crisis, and again in 1914."

"That is an old story," von Gwinner replied, taking up a bundle of papers. "I see that in a recent speech by Sir Edward Holden, Chairman and Managing Director of the London City and Midland Bank, a man whom I greatly admire as a financier, he declared that there was no war in 1911 because the German financiers told the Kaiser that the empire's finances were not strong enough to stand the strain of wor. Now, no such statement was ever made by German financiers to the Kaiser.

"Sir Edward goes on to say that on July 5, 1914, the Kaiser called together at Potsdam the leaders of commerce, shipping, and finance, and questioned them as to the state of their preparedness for war. He adds that the first two groups said they were ready, but the financiers asked for a fortnight in which to make the necessary arrangements. No such meeting ever took place. Therefore the rest of the statement falls to the ground.

"Proof that we German financiers were quite in the dark is furnished by Sir William Plender's report on enemy banks, dated Dec. 16, 1916. As regards the Deutsche Bank, that report says that there were 'no abnormal transactions during the fortnight before the war or anything to suggest that the bank had shipped securities or bullion from London to the Continent during that period.'

Cites Gold Shipments in 1914.

"When the war broke out, as the official English report shows, my bank had in London more than £26,000,000. If the Deutsche Bank had had the least idea that war was planned or believed that it was coming, should we have left such an amount of cash and securities in London?

"Indeed, on July 27, the Deutsche Bank's London agency caused £650,000 in gold to be sent from Vienna to Paris, £100,000 from Berlin to the Bank of England, and £350,000 from New York to London. Surely such movements are conclusive proof that German finance had no finger in the war pie.

"Again, Sir Edward says that the Dresdner Bank circularized its clients advising them to realize. Quite possible—for after July 23 the European situation was not normal—I cannot say for certain. The Dresdner Bank is my competitor. But let me defend it.

"Turn to Sir William Plender's report, and you will see that on July 31 the Guarantee Trust Company shipped to London $2,000,000 in gold, which had been placed at the disposal of the London office by the head office in Berlin. That consignment arrived in London and was placed to the credit of the Dresdner Bank at the Bank of England.

"So, as there is now a lot of inquiry into the guilt in connection with the outbreak of the war, surely German finance must be acquitted of complicity in or knowledge of the war preparations."

Blames "Clumsy Diplomacy."

"Whom do you blame, then?" I asked.

"I blame our clumsy diplomacy, our Jagows and Zimmermanns and Bethmanns," was the reply, "and our public and press are untrained. They are of mushroom growth and young.

"You English have 800 years of comparatively undisturbed domestic history and progress behind you. Our country has been a battlefield for centuries. So we have not your tradition and training.

"I have always thought that it was a great mistake that we rejected Joseph Chamberlain's offer of friendship. I blame Germany very severely for that refusal. It shows our stupidity. I cannot condemn our statesmen and diplomats too strongly for not coming to terms, for not adopting the policy that there is room in the world for all of us, and for not making friends all round."

Herr von Gwinner thinks that the old régime in Russia did a great deal to bring about the war, but he also believes that if Russia had been told by the German Government that it had no objection to Russia being at Constantinople, the tragedy might have been warded off.

Our talk turned to the Bagdad Railway. Was it a great political move against England? Von Gwinner holds the opinion that the railway, with which, as is well known, he had a great deal to do, was made quite a bogy of, and that it was a civilizing and commercial enterprise" which all Europe might have shared in without Germany being anything like predominant.

Prussian Finance Desperate.

Von Gwinner and, I may add, Suedekum, Prussian Finance Minister, in a speech the other day, are at one in painting the present financial position in the darkest colors. At the end of October, 1918, for instance, the Prussian debt was £175,000,000. In the brief interval between that time and the end of March, five months, it had risen to £300,000,000, certainly an astounding thing.

The Prussian deficit is more than £120,000,000. The deficit on the working of the State railways is £111,000,000. The State railways have always been the backbone of Prussian finance, and before the war they made Prussia practically the sole country in the world without a national debt. As Suedekum said, the position "can only be described as a catastrophic state of affairs," and taxation is going to be exceedingly heavy.

"Take," said Hee von Gwinner, "an income of £50,000 in Berlin. It will be, under the coming scheme of taxation, reduced by about 40 per cent. by the Prussian Government and city authorities and that before the German Empire begins to tax it."

Wants Indemnity Postponed.

"And what about the question of indemnity?" I asked.

"Germany," was Herr von Gwinner's reply, "can give what she has—labor and what her soil produces. We can help in restoring what has to be rebuilt in France and Belgium. If we are not driven to madness and our people have food and are at work, I take it we can set to work at once in this respect.

"We took metals, goods, machinery, &c., from the occupied regions. Where, for example, we took a machine, let us put one back, a better one, if possible. It will be a heavy item, but we shall have to suffer as the vanquished party.

"As regards an actual money indemnity, I believe it would be well to postpone that matter for, say, five years. Then let a commission find what we can pay. At present we cannot pay.

"As for general peace terms, Germany has accepted the fourteen points of President Wilson, and by these we shall stand.

Fears "Hungary Over Again."

"Otherwise, if this Government goes, it will be a case of Hungary over again. There will be no prospect but Spartacism, Communism, Bolshevism, plunder, and murder. Germany will be another Russia, and worse, because an agricultural State like Russia can be comparatively quickly built up again, but not so an industrial country like Germany.

"Land begins to produce quickly, once you set to work on it; but industries are only laboriously restored. In Russia there are not enough coffins to bury the dead.

"We ourselves are in a terrible and dangerous condition. We have spent our stores of goods. The whole country is empty, disorganized, disheartened, and demoralized.

"People are spending their capital as well as their incomes. They think that their money will be taken by the enemy, by the Government, or by the Bolsheviki. So they are determined to have what they can out of it while they may. People are selling their treasures, because of the need for money to pay high taxes and the tremendous cost of living.

"'Yes,' said Herr von Gwinner in conclusion, "the war was the greatest crime in all history. We shall be fortunate indeed if we in Europe escape utter ruin."

GERMAN STRIKES SPREADING.

BERLIN, April 7, (Associated Press.)—Serious disorders and looting are reported to have taken place at Mülhenmouler (Mühleim-am-Ruhr) on Saturday, following a meeting which had demanded the disarming of the police and Government troops.

A company of soldiers killed three persons and wounded two others. Brisk fighting ensued until a second company of soldiers hurried to the assistance of the first. One hundred and fifty arrests were made. Of these persons fifty-five will be court-martialed.

ESSEN, April 6, (Associated Press.)—The strike situation here shows little change today. The street car employes voted to join the Krupp workers, so that the city's transportation system is at a standstill. Essen is also without lights because of the strike of the firemen.

In the Ruhr industrial district as a whole there was an increase yesterday in the number of strikers.

DUSSELDORF, April 6, (Associated Press.)—Radical demands have been formulated by the workmen's organization here in its political general strike. The demands include the immediate release of political prisoners, the elimination of "class justice," demobilization of the military forces, coalition with the Russian Soviet Government, and the surrender of the Ebert-Scheidemann Government to the Council of the Republic.

The threat that the newly-arrived supply of food from Entente sources would be withheld in the event of a strike is met by the counterthreat that the men will not resume work until the food is forthcoming.

Thus far the number of men here who have voted to quit work is 14,800, while the number opposed to stopping work is 5,300.

BOLSHEVIST TREND IN JAURES PARADE

EXTREMISTS NOW BOLDER

Trouble in June Predicted, but Little Fear Felt French Peasants Will Welcome Soviet.

BY WALTER DURANTY.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, April 6.—This afternoon's Socialist demonstration to protest against the Jaures verdict reflected credit, it is felt here, neither on the ability of its organizers nor on the extent of the forces they pretend to control. The affair had roused considerable interest in Paris, owing to wild stories that had been afloat lately as to projected labor upheavals.

"The first of May will witness a grand rehearsal of the power of organized labor, and in June blood will flow," was the kind of statement mysterious alarmists had been whispering.

Today's demonstration was to be at once in the nature of a preliminary drill and a portentous challenge to those in authority. The reality was disappointing.

In the Trocadero Square, where the procession was supposed to start at 2:30 o'clock, some 4,000 spectators were gathered, amongst whom passed busy but agitated "comrades" wearing red armlets. Along the Avenue Malakoff, which leads into the Square, were drawn up ranks of proletarian protestors, perhaps 20,000 in number, headed by an automobile containing a wreath and a red flag and several members of the staff of the Socialist newspaper Humanité. To an unprejudiced onlooker the whole show appeared to be rather an unsuccessful advertising stunt on the part of the latter, many of whose newsboys were to be noted in the crowds. The police were conspicuous by their absence, with the result that the comrades were forced to undertake the clearing of the street, with marked lack of success.

"Please, comrades, make way for the procession," bleated forth by scattered individuals acting wholly on their own initiative is no way to mov a crowd anywhere. The consequence was that 3 o'clock had struck before the procession started. Ten minutes later the leading flag had advanced just fifty feet, and it looked as though the mile journey to Mme. Jaures's house in Passy might be a lengthy business.

Co-operation with Labor.

All sections of the crowd, including the "Militant" Socialists, or Workers, were perfectly well-behaved and good-humored, although the latter displayed an amusing lack of discipline in their attempts to take places in the leading files of the procession, rather than wander around in the side streets to join their respective sections at the proper starting points.

But while the proceeding demonstrated a lack of organization and discipline, the presence of trade union representatives side by side with the political branch of the Socialist Party was interesting and instructive. It is toward this co-operation with the Labor Federations that the French Socialist Party is displaying the greatest activity.

Hitherto the Socialist effort in France had been hampered by the conflict among the different sections and by lack of combination between the political policy in or out of Parliament and the work of the Labor or Syndicalist Federations, whose chief weapon is the strike. But now the leaders of all these various branches of the proletariat movement are doing their utmost to obtain cohesion and unity of action on a common basis.

Their avowed program is the establishment of State Socialism, with a régime of universal Government ownership and control. But signs are not wanting that the Left, or Extremist, section of the party is forcing the pace ever more steadily, and that the real aim is nothing short of a "dictatorship of the proletariat"—which is the phrase the Socialists at present use here for the ominous word Soviet—at home, with a régime of a Pan European labor "Internationale" as the chief plank of the foreign policy. In other words, Bolshevism.

During part of the war the political section of the Socialist Party was controlled by patriotic moderates, such as Renaudel, Guesde, Sembat, and Thomas, of whom the three latter accepted posts in the War Cabinet. But when Clemenceau came into power the long-standing hatred of the Socialist Party was so bitter that its members were forbidden to join his Cabinet, with the result that their influence waned and the pacifist minority gained the control in July, which they have held since. During the war the action of the Labor Syndicalists was greatly circumscribed by martial law, under which strikes were frequently stifled by the threat of sending the ringleaders back to the trenches. Now, however, they have a freer hand, and their chiefs have consequently a louder voice in the deliberations of the party as a whole. All of which makes for a tendency toward the "Left."

Extremists Growing Bolder.

Hitherto the leaders have maintained a fairly reasonable attitude, and have confined their efforts to opposition to any action against the Soviet Government of Russia, and to insistence upon a "fair peace" for Germany. Now, however, as the failure of the Peace Conference to make peace at all brings the Bolshevist menace ever nearer, the extreme elements of the party are growing bolder, and are beginning to speak openly of a "dictatorship of the proletariat" and to dream of Europe united under the Labor International, from the Ural Mountains to the Atlantic Ocean.

Thus, at the recent conference between the political chiefs and the representatives of the C. G. T.—the Confederation General dea Travailleurs, which corresponds to the big railway labor brotherhoods in America—Renaudel was pretty severely taken to task by some of the younger members for having declared in Parliament that there were no Bolsheviki in the Socialist ranks.

Nevertheless, on the whole—and today's affair bears out this impression—there is little danger of serious Bolshevist trouble in France. The heart of the country is sound. The large agricultural population of peasant small proprietors have made money by the war and are in no sympathy with the Socialist aims. Even in the working class itself there is a strong conservative element. Unlike the Americans and British, the French workman has saved the greater part of his high wages, with typical French thriftness. Much of these savings have been invested in Government stocks and even in industrials.

It can be taken for granted that fully three-quarters of France's population would be more or less unfavorably affected by any marked upset of capital. Even supposing that there may be disturbances in Paris and some larger cities, it is unlikely that such a movement would be countenanced—much less supported—by France as a whole.

BAVARIA SPLIT BY RIVAL CLAIMS

like the Emperor Williams and King Ludwigs.

Dispatches announce that several prominent persons have been arrested in Augsburg and held as hostages.

The students of Munich University on Saturday declared the University Senate deposed and its administration transferred to a Council of Students and Professors.

Break with Ebert Government.

The Munich Neueste Nachrichten, a copy of which has been received here, contains an appeal to the whole of Germany from the revolutionary council in favor of a Soviet Government, and declining all collaboration with "the despicable Government of Ebert, Scheidemann, Noske, and Erzberger."

The supporters of the Soviet idea in Bavaria have met with great opposition on the part of the bourgeoisie, on the one hand, and the peasants on the other. The peasants hold the trump card in their control of the supply of foodstuffs, which they have declared they would refuse to deliver in case Soviet government was proclaimed.

The unexpected opposition to the establishment at present of the Soviet form of government manifested by Bavaria's most Radical Independent, Dr. Levin, has not been without its effect, as he wields great influence in certain radical circles. The Peasants' League likewise is opposing the plan with increasing vigor, and it is both politically and economically a strong factor in Bavarian life.

The news of the situation in Bavaria is being followed with keen interest in Württemberg, and it is considered significant that the meeting of the Württemberg National Assembly has been indefinitely postponed.

Old Government Transferred.

LONDON, April 7.—Premier Hoffmann of Bavaria, according to a dispatch from Berlin, has announced that the Government of Bavaria has been transferred from Munich to Nürnberg, and has not retired. He adds:

"The Government of the Free State of Bavaria is and remains the sole repository of the highest authority of Bavaria, and alone is entitled to issue legal ordinances and give orders."

This announcement was signed by Premier Hoffman at Nürnberg under date of today.

The formation of a Soviet Republic in Bavaria was decided upon in Munich at 1 o'clock in the morning, according to the Berlin Tageblatt. The wording makes it uncertain whether Sunday or Monday morning is meant.

The Tageblatt also reports that the Central Council will first exercise a dictatorship and then, after a brief period, will appoint people's commissioners, will establish a Red Guard, and in a few weeks will hold new elections for the Congress of Workmen's and Peasants' Councils.

Except for an unimpressive declaration issued on Saturday by the parties represented in the lower house of the Bavarian Diet, the paper adds, they stand aside "helpless and powerless."

Nuremberg Remains Calm.

NUREMBERG, April 7.—The proclamation of a Soviet Republic at Munich was announced in special editions of the newspapers today.

The people received the news calmly. Enormous crowds gathered in the streets. Work is proceeding in the factories.

The Bavarian National Conference of Social Democrats here has voted, 42 to 8, against the introduction of a Soviet republic.

WUERZBURG, April 7.—The Soviet Republic was proclaimed here today. The banks, telephone, telegraph, and newspaper offices were occupied by Communist troops. A general strike began at 10 o'clock in the morning. All the factories and the shops, except the food shops, were closed.

RATISBON, April 7.—The Soldiers and Workmen's Council today declared itself for a Soviet republic. There was only one dissenting vote.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, April 5.—Every day the demand for a Soviet Government becomes everywhere, I think, more clamant, though I believe it is only fair to say that the Government in Berlin appears to have a somewhat firmer grip of the things within its jurisdiction. But, when an observer surveys the situation as a whole, he can come to no other conclusion than that it is one something akin to desperation and near to the precipice of a catastrophe.

Bluntly, while Paris is discussing, something greater than Rome is burning. We are rapidly approaching the position of Paris or Moscow, liberty or Lenine. Unless something is done, something radical and at once, the fight will not be one of many rounds. There is little time for parley or for discussion. It is a situation in which certain very stubborn facts have to be faced and action taken at once. It is a matter of weeks.

Everywhere one cannot help remarking the "swing of the masses' opinion to the Left." In the Ruhr industrial region there are 250,000 strikers, 194 mines out of 236 are idle; martial law has been proclaimed there. On account of that strike the gas ration of Berlin has been reduced. Though in Stuttgart the strike is ending, the Spartacides are extremely busy, and a serious fight has taken place with men of their faction, who were intrenched near the city. A general railway strike is threatened on April 10, and the serious consequences of that, in connection with the food distribution and transport of the Polish army, leap to the eye.

From Weimar it is reported that feeling is rising steadily against the National Assembly. Württemberg gives signs of going with Bavaria. Amid all that, the position of the Central Government is difficult in the extreme. It has made, is making, and will make mistakes; but, when one remembers its inexperience and the heart-rending nature of its task, it is but common justice to believe and say it is doing its best.

Were we wise, we would, in my opinion, do well to lend Germany something from our store of administrative talent. So many of Germany's own administrators are "compromised." Nearly all are "of the old régime." We should lend that help now, lend it to put Germany on her feet economically again, lend it so that she might "pay" one day, lend it with a clear statement that it is just a very present help in time of trouble for her—and for ourselves; for whatever road Germany goes, the rest of Europe eventually follows.

We have to save Germany to save, in the long run, that civilization for which we fought so long and bitterly. This Government is the only possible one—that cannot be emphasized too often—with which peace can be concluded and by which peace terms can be carried out. If it goes, then practically there will be no Germany with which to conclude peace.

REDS LOST 808 MEN IN ARCHANGEL FIGHT

FIVE AMERICANS CAPTURED

Y. M. C. A. Workers and Soldiers Being Taken to Moscow—Kandalaska Situation Improves

ARCHANGEL, April 6, (Associated Press.)—The Russian official report on the fighting in the Sred Mekhrenga sector Friday shows that the Bolsheviki lost 700 dead and wounded in addition to the 108 prisoners taken by the allied forces. The Allies suffered no casualties. Allied patrols Saturday and today picked up a number of enemy wounded, and also found a number of machine guns.

The Bolsheviki today resumed the bombardment of the British and American positions on the Dvina and Vaga Rivers.

M. V. Arnold of London, Ohio, and Bryant R. Ryall of Bloomfield, N. J., Y. M. C. A. workers, who have been missing for several days, and three American soldiers captured by the Bolsheviki on the Bolshie Ozerki sector, are being taken to Moscow, according to information received in Archangel today from Obozerskaya. They are apparently being well treated.

The Rev. Father Roach, a chaplain with the British forces, who was captured near Bolshie Ozerki on March 31, was released by the Bolsheviki and yesterday made his way through the American lines on the Vologda front. The chaplain brought a letter from Ryall that he, Arnold, and the soldiers were being taken to Moscow. The soldiers are Sergeant Glenn W. Leitzell of Mifflinburg, Penn.; Mechanic Jens C. Laursen of Marlette, Mich., and Private Freeman Hogan of Detroit, Mich.

The advices brought by Father Roach were the first direct word regarding the safety of any Americans captured by the Bolsheviki. The American Red Cross at Archangel is endeavoring to obtain information regarding the prisoners.

LONDON, April 7.—There has been an improvement in conditions at Kandalaksha, at the base of the Kola Peninsula on the White Sea side, it is announced in an official dispatch from Murmansk under date of April 5.

A rising of the Finns, Karelians, and Bolsheviki had been planned on a large scale, the account states, but the announcements that reinforcements for the allied troops were on the way, and that other military preparations had been taken to meet the situation, have overawed the leaders for the time being.

The leaders of the Finnish Legion (among whom, according to recent London reports, a defection had been threatened) have signed an agreement to the effect that they will in the future comply with the wishes of the commanding officer. This, says the dispatch, does not imply that the danger has completely passed, but it is a step in the right direction.

An official communication issued this evening by the War Office says the British Commander on the Murmansk coast confirms the report that for the time being any immediate danger of a Finnish-Karelian uprising appears to have been averted.

SEIZE CABINET, CONSULS AND 4,000,000 RUBLES

ARCHANGEL, April 5, (Associated Press.)—The theft of 4,000,000 rubles that were in possession of the Bolsheviki by a band of Circassian Cossack officers whose activities also included the arrest of the American Consul at Archangel and the kidnapping of the North Russian Government, was explained at the trial of the officers today before the supreme judicial authority of Northern Russia. The officers, among whom were Captain Bers and Colonel Mella, were convicted and sentenced to imprisonment and deprivation of their rank and decorations. Because of their military valor the court recommended that they be pardoned.

The defendants unfolded an astonishing story of the inner details of the days before the allied troops landed at Archangel and the political plots that occurred afterward. They admitted nearly every accusation, pleading old Cossack laws and the political situation as justification.

Last July, when an allied landing at Archangel seemed imminent, Captain Bers and the other Cossacks were aligned with the Bolsheviki. As the allied transports approached the city the bulk of the Bolshevist force fled, but Bers and the Cossacks remained behind as did Colonel Potapoff, the Bolshevist commander, who was arrested later.

Captain Bers seized the safe containing the Bolshevist war fund of 4,000,000 rubles. Then, with Colonel Potapoff, the Cossacks arrested the American Consul, Felix Cole; the British and French Consuls, and the French Military Mission. The allied officials were taken to a barn and hidden, the Cossacks holding them and the money as hostages until something definite happened.

DENIES LLOYD GEORGE IS IN FAVOR OF LENINE

Ambassador Reading Says Premier Has Never Suggested Recognition of Russian Reds.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Lord Reading, the British Ambassador to the United States, issued the following statement today:

"With regard to the suggestions which have appeared in some quarters that Mr. Lloyd George had advised the recognition of Lenine or Trotzky, I am in a position to state that these suggestions are wholly without foundation. Mr. Lloyd George has never suggested that Lenine and Trotzky should be recognized."

Lord Reading's statement was received with relief in responsible political and legislative circles here, where there had been uneasiness over the Russian situation since intimations began to emanate from Paris that the Peace Conference "Big Four" contemplated according formal recognition to the Bolshevist régime in Russia.

The attitude of the French Government in opposition to recognition of the Bolshevist régime is well understood. Premier Clemenceau has been strongly opposed to having any dealings with the Bolsheviki, and, if he could have his way, the Entente Powers would send a strong military force into Russia.

That the American peace delegation could have been brought around to the frame of mind of recognizing the Red régime in Russia is not believed by political leaders here, who recall the formal announcement issued by Secretary Lansing last Summer, in which he vigorously condemned the "reign of terror" which the Bolsheviki had instituted in Petrograd, and that, speaking for President Wilson, he addressed a note to the Entente and neutral nations, urging that some definite and united expression of opinion be adopted condemning the atrocities perpetrated by the Bolsheviki in Russia.

LONDON, April 7.—In the House of Commons today Colonel J. C. Wedgwood, Liberal member for Newcastle-under-Lyme, asked whether the reports by the American representatives, Lincoln Steffens and William C. Bullitt, on their visit to Russia had been communicated to the British Government. Cecil B. Harmsworth, Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs, replied in the negative.

WAR FLARES TO AID TRANSOCEAN FLIERS

Flames on Water at Night and Pillars of Smoke by Day as Guide Posts.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Flame and smoke flares developed during the war and improved recently by chemical experts of the army will be factors in the transatlantic flight to be undertaken next month by naval seaplanes. By dropping these flares at intervals, the aviators will be able to determine the drift of their planes in the cross winds and make the corrections necessary to keep them on their course.

Commander J. H. Towers, in charge of preparations for the flight, explained today that the flares would be in the shape of bombs which, upon striking the water, would give off flame and smoke, the one visible for long distances at night and the other by day. The flares would remain virtually stationary on the water and thereby indicate the angle at which the machines were being driven from a straight line.

This is only one of the many details which officers in charge of the plans for the flight have had to work out. Special devices have been necessary in each case, and this in a measure accounts for the length of time consumed in making ready for the start.

Numerous experiments with the planes themselves also have been necessary. None of the three of the N-C type thus far completed is ready for the start of the overseas voyage, and officers said today that consequently they had not even undertaken to select a tentative date for leaving Rockaway Beach, L. I., on the 1,200-mile flight to the "jumping off" place in Newfoundland. At least one stop will be made between those two points.

The destroyer Barney, which is cruising along the North Atlantic Coast to select possible landing places for the machines as well as a suitable starting point for the overseas voyage, now is en route to Newfoundland from Halifax. On the first attempt to reach the former place the vessel was held up by ice-floes and at the Navy Department today no information had been received as to the success of the second attempt.

PARIS, April 7.—Thomas Nelson Page has sent his resignation as American Ambassador to Italy to President Wilson, but as yet no action has been taken in the matter.

Mr. Page assumed the post at Rome in 1913. Now that the war is over he is eager to settle down on a Virginia farm and write several books he has in mind, the writing of which in the Embassy in wartime he found impossible.

Denies Lease of Islands to Us.

COLON, April 7.—Regarding the reported lease of the Islands of San Andres and Providence by Colombia to the United States, General Santiago Herras, the Colombian envoy now in the Islands on a special mission, has issued this statement:

"There is no truth in the report. As the news came from Colombia, the story runs, that the American Minister, in passing on his trip to the interior, privately expressed his intention of opening negotiations with the Government for the lease of the islands."

MERCANTILE TRUST & DEPOSIT COMPANY

Why all heirs should not be treated alike

IF several heirs will share in your estate it is probable that they will require individual consideration in laying down the terms of your will.

One heir may show certain distinct tendencies. Another heir may show marked tendencies in quite another direction. This will be emphasized if you mentally check their characteristics against the following list of everyday business errors, common in the conduct of household and personal affairs. The same tendencies when applied to the larger matters of estate handling might be serious.

Neglecting to keep receipts where they can be located.
Neglecting to check up items on current bills.
Inability to keep checkbook balanced.
Too easy optimism in starting credit accounts.
Careless handling of valuable business papers.
Signing documents without knowing their contents.

When making the Mercantile Trust & Deposit Company your trustee, the trust can be framed to individually guard each heir and cover almost any future contingency which the testator may foresee.

Payment of interest only, payment of interest and a part of principal, payments of principal according to definite plan or at the discretion of the trustee, payments to one beneficiary only after the death of another, etc. These simply suggest the flexibility of a Mercantile trusteeship.

THOMPSON DEFIES SENATE ON BRIBE

Called Upon by Vote to Name Maker of $500,000 Offer, He Refuses.

CONTEMPT MOTION MADE

CALLS ACTION CAMOUFLAGE

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7.—A motion directing Lieutenant Governor Walker to declare Senator George F. Thompson of Niagara in contempt of the Senate was pending before that body when it adjourned at midnight. This motion had been offered by Senator Alvah W. Burlingame, Jr., of Brooklyn in his capacity as Chairman of the Senate Judiciary Committee, after Senator Thompson had refused to give to the Senate the name of a man who, he said, offered him $500,000 to support the so-called Six-Cent Fare bill, introduced on behalf of the traction interests of New York City and other parts of the State.

The Senate spent the better part of its night session debating the situation which had arisen from the slush fund report started by Senator Thompson. The Senator himself, rising to a question of personal privilege, started the discussion soon after the Senate convened.

At the outset, Senator Thompson revealed that the bribe offer was made to him personally and that no other member of the Senate was concerned. He declared willingness to give all the information in his possession, including the name of the person who offered him the alleged bribe, the time when the offer was made and the place, to any properly constituted committee equipped with full inquisitorial powers.

He was asked whether he would give the name to the Senate Judiciary Committee when that body meets tomorrow morning to resume its investigation into the $500,000 slush fund report, but would not pledge himself to do so. Even after the Senate, by unanimous vote, had ordered the Lieutenant Governor as presiding officer to direct Senator Thompson to give the name to the Senate in open session, Senator Thompson refused to comply, on the ground that it would defeat the purpose he had in view to do so. He declared that what he wanted was a broad and all inclusive investigation of lobbying activities at the Capitol for the last two years.

"I warrant you that such an investigation, honestly and properly conducted, will be productive of great results," he said. "The people of this State are entitled to get this picture of what has been going on here."

After that statement the Senator was treated with scant courtesy and little mercy by his colleagues in the Senate.

Senator James J. Walker of New York City, one of the Tammany members, in a statement bristling with bitter sarcasm, told Senator Thompson that by persisting in his refusal to give the name of the man who, he said, offered him the big bribe, he was making himself an accessory after the fact in an act which the statute defined as a felony, but he could not budge Senator Thompson, who from his seat listened with real or simulated indifference to the attacks that were made upon him from all sides when he was not on his feet fighting back.

Senator Thompson began the discussion by reading a letter from Chairman Burlingame of the Judiciary Committee inviting him to appear before the committee tomorrow and give all the information in his possession in relation to the bribe offer.

"As the letter was sent to my committee room in the Capitol, to my room at the hotel, and to my home in Niagara County, I want to acknowledge the receipt of it," said the Senator. "The letter carries an implication that this proposed investigation is my investigation. I want to call your attention to one thing: This investigation was not asked for by me. It is not the kind of investigation that I asked for some ten days ago when I urged that a resolution introduced by one member to cover one particular phase of lobbying at the Capitol be broadened so as to include all lobbying for the last two years at Albany. At that time I called special attention to the so-called Six, Seven, or Eight Cent Fare bill.

"It is a fact—and I state it advisedly—that there was a proposition made to me, mentioning a fund up to $500,000, to get my vote for that bill and favorable action in relation to the committee and elsewhere. That proposition did not involve any other Senator and was limited to me. I am not trying to start anything involving anybody except myself.

"Now, this is not an easy thing to do. It would have been a great deal easier for me to have kept my peace, but I owe it to the public to make this matter public, and I want to perform that duty to the people as faithfully as I know how. I do not want any hearing behind closed doors."

"Do I understand from this that the Senator will accept the investigation?" asked Senator Burlingame, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee.

"The Senator knows me too well to ask that question," said Senator Thompson. "All I ask is that this investigation be on the square, or I will have nothing to do with it."

"Is the Senator himself going to be the judge of whether the committee is on the square or not?" asked Senator A. F. Brown of Otsego.

"I do not question the committee. What I had in mind was the investigation it is going to make," said Senator Thompson.

Senator James A. Foley of New York, leader of the Democratic minority, urged that a proper resolution be drafted under which the Judiciary Committee could proceed with an investigation.

"Why should not the Senator be willing to state the name of the person who sought to bribe him—to the Senate, here and now?" asked Senator John Knight of Wyoming, one of Thompson's Republican colleagues.

"I decline to do that," said Senator Thompson in an undertone. Then he arose and added:

"Anybody who knows the first thing about investigations—and I think I know something—knows that to spread any information that I might give broadcast would defeat the very purpose of the investigation, unless that's what you want to do."

"We need no Judiciary Committee after what the Senator has stated for the record," said Senator Walker, breaking in from the Democratic side. "The only thing necessary is the name. Give us the name."

"Yes, then the District Attorney will do the rest," added J. Henry Walters, President pro tem. of the Senate.

"The offer of a bribe to a member of this body is established by the statute as a felony," broke in Senator Knight. "Nobody has the right to refuse disclosing the name of a person guilty of such an act."

"I do not refuse," replied Senator Thompson. "I will give you all my information just as soon as you put yourself in a position really to investigate."

Senator Burlingame suggested that it would be just as well for Senator Thompson to give the information to the Senate as to give it to his committee.

"If you wanted a real investigation you would not go about it in this way," said Senator Thompson. "You would not start it at this end at all if you really wanted to accomplish something. Whenever you make it plain that you want to investigate you will have my assistance, but I will not be party to a game of camouflage."

"If you do not give us the name, you make yourself the accessory to a crime, and people will begin to ask why you are desirous of concealing the name of a would-be bribe giver. This is either something that you dreamed, or else it really occurred. If it really occurred, you owe it to the Senate and to yourself to give the name. If it did not, then it is about time that you were game enough to admit that it was a dream, and save this Senate from the embarrassment of popular suspicion that it has in its midst an accessory to an act which the statute brands as a felony."

"This matter involves no one but myself and a railroad company," retorted Senator Thompson. "I want to know whom you are going to stand by—me or the railroad company? If you are going to stand by me, I will offer a resolution under which you can properly proceed."

Senator Burlingame said the Judiciary Committee would draft the resolution if Senator Thompson only would give assurance that he was prepared to come before it and give the information.

"I will come and give you such information as I regard in the public interest," the Senator replied.

President Pro Tem. Walters declared it was high time Senator Thompson gave the name, and put an end to the speculation that pervaded the State regarding the slush fund report.

"Give us the name of the man at the top, and we will take a chance on getting the lesser criminals below," shouted the Senate leader, pointing his finger at Senator Thompson. "I want the Senator to put a stop to the dirty insinuations that have filled the newspapers and will fill them again tomorrow morning, and which contain reflections on more than one of us and on the Senate as a whole—a body for which the people should have respect and in whose honor they should have absolute confidence."

Minority Leader Foley suggested that the Senate take a ten-minute recess so that a resolution could be prepared vesting the Judiciary Committee with proper inquisitorial powers. After the recess Senator Burlingame arose and on behalf of the committee moved that "Senator Thompson be directed to give the name of any persons or corporations who had offered him a bribe such as he has described, the time and place of the offer, and the name of any persons present."

The Senator asked for a rollcall on his motion. All the Senators present voted for it, with the exception of Senator Thompson himself, who was excused from voting. When his name was reached on the rollcall he said:

"I am willing and ready to give all the information I possess, including names, to any committee or counsel of any committee which I am assured will go on and investigate, and not suppress. In connection with this I might say that people who come to offer bribes do not bring along witnesses, nor do they commit their offers to writing, so that all you have is my word against another man's word. I am not going to walk into this."

"The Constitution absolutely protects the Senator in anything he may say on the floor of the Senate," said President Pro Tem. Walters.

"I do not know that I have the right to state conclusions," said Senator Thompson.

"If all this is hearsay, I agree with the Senator that his right is in question," said the Senate leader.

"I am not going to permit the Senate leader, nor anybody else, to place me in the position of saying that this is all hearsay. It is nothing of the kind," said Mr. Thompson, in angry retort.

"Then," broke in Senator Walters, "I want to call your attention again to the fact that with your well-trained legal mind you make yourself an accessory to a crime unless you give up the name. The other forty-seven States are laughing at this State, and the only one that can stop them is the Senator. You are on the firing line. You must either advance or retreat. I do not want to be your pallbearer. I would much rather cheer."

Senator Thompson said that he would not give the name until the man involved was on hand himself before a tribunal that could give the accused, as well as the accuser, a hearing.

Senator Burlingame insisted that the question be formally put to Senator Thompson by the presiding officer, Lieut. Gov. Walker had the question read to the Senator and called upon him to give the name.

"I am willing to give the name to any duly constituted committee that can be a tribunal before which the man involved, as well as I, can be heard," said the Senator. "I shall not give the name here."

"I now move that the Senator from the Forty-seventh, (Thompson,) be declared in contempt of this Senate," said Senator Burlingame, addressing the chair.

Senate Leader Walters urged that this motion be withheld until after the Senate Judiciary Committee had met tomorrow and the Senator had appeared before it.

There is no recent precedent for a member of the Senate being declared in contempt of that body. Ordinarily the offense is punishable by imprisonment until the person in contempt has purged himself or for the life of the Senate against which the contempt has been committed.

The Assembly had the Carson-Martin Six-Cent Fare bill on its calendar tonight, but put it over until tomorrow.

ROUSING WELCOME TO ADMIRAL SIMS

seen many such scenes. It was a fitting climax to the two years Admiral Sims spent in England as head of the American Navy in European waters, and where he was the idol of every one who had dealings with him. After being in his company for nine days I can quite understand his universal popularity. Directly he stepped on board my ship Admiral Sims became Rear Admiral, which he explained was the rule of the United States Navy. I offered to hoist his flag at a special yard we have for signaling this morning, but unfortunately he had not brought one with him. Anyhow I had the ship dressed with bunting, which was a surprise to the Admiral when I invited him to come on the bridge after breakfast."

The Admiral made some very interesting remarks, according to those who heard him, during his speech in the main dining hall of the Mauretania on Saturday night, when the customary concert for the benefit of the seamen's charities was given. He said in part:

"In the beginning of 1918 Germany was winning on the sea, sinking 600,000 tons of shipping per month. The Allies had no reply to it until they devised the convoy system which proved so successful and followed that up with the depth charge, which was a British invention.

"There is a great difference between the English and the American people," the Admiral added. "The British are passionately devoted to personal liberty and therefore I do not think that England will ever go bone dry."

This remark caused a little sensation in the packed saloon and brought considerable applause. He added then: "They believe in England if a man wants to poison himself, that is his own business."

To the newspaper men on board the Aramis he gave a short interview, in which he praised the men of the merchant marine of the United States.

"Don't forget the men of the merchant marine," he said, "who stood by us at all times and did their duty in every respect. If they had not done so the work of our army and navy would stand but for little. You couldn't torpedo them to keep them back, and I know of instances where men have been torpedoed six times, and yet they stuck to their sea duty and crossed again and again. At the beginning, the navy did not understand the merchant marine. They thought us a pink-tea outfit and we looked on them as hardy sailors, and that was all. Now we understand each other, and I am glad to say this of them: that braver men never went to sea."

After landing from the Aramis Rear Admiral Sims drove with Mrs. Sims and his children to the Hotel Biltmore, where he stopped for the night. He will leave for Washington today to make his report to the Navy Department.

SIMS SAILED ABROAD UNDER ASSUMED NAME

Tells of Secret Instructions Issued Before War Declaration—Took One Aid with Him.

How Rear Admiral William S. Sims, accompanied by one aid, proceeded incognito to England, under Navy Department orders issued two weeks before the United States entered the war against Germany, was told by the Admiral last night on his return from overseas. In reply to questions he gave accounts of his mission.

On March 24 or 25, 1917, the Admiral said, while he was President of the Naval War College at Newport, he was ordered to report "without delay" to the Secretary of the Navy at Washington. He was not notified of the nature of the business to be discussed. Upon his arrival in Washington he was received in secret conference by Secretary Daniels and Admiral Benson, Chief of Naval Operations.

He was told that it "looked as though" we would go to war, and it was explained that he was to go at once "to see the people on the other side" and reach an understanding as to how the United States best could cooperate with the allied sea forces in operations against Germany. One aid would accompany him, he was told, and his identity must not be known until it might be decided to reveal it after his safe arrival abroad.

Commander J. V. Babcock of Newhampton, Iowa, aid to Admiral Sims at Newport, was chosen to accompany him, and both officers immediately laid aside their uniforms and donned civilian clothes.

Went Under Assumed Names.

"Babcock and I chose 'Richardson and Robertson,' as near as I can recall," Admiral Sims said. "I can't think of the full names, and I am not at all sure that these are correct. But that's how I seem to remember them."

The Admiral and his aid sailed from New York, on March 31, 1917, on the steamship New York, he said. No one on the vessel recognized them, and they passed the time as ordinary voyagers without feeling any unusual fear of their identities being revealed.

News of the declaration of war by the United States on April 6, reached them by the ship's wireless news service. It did not disturb them. Entering Liverpool Harbor on April 9 in a thick mist the steamship struck a mine, and a hole was blown in one of her forward compartments, but the Admiral and his aid were "not especially disturbed" by that either.

There was no reception committee to meet them at the pier in Liverpool, Admiral Sims said. They went ashore unnoticed. A special train was waiting in the Liverpool railroad yards, however, with Admiral Hope aboard, representing the British Admiralty. It simply stood there until Admiral Sims and his companion climbed aboard; then it pulled out for London.

They arrived in London on April 10, both Admiral Sims and Commander Babcock still wearing their civilian clothing. They went at once to the Admiralty Offices, where Admiral Sims went into conference immediately with Admiral Jellicoe.

On April 13 at a luncheon in London the United States Ambassador made the first formal announcement that Admiral Sims had arrived in the country. After that the Admiral and his aid reappeared in their navy uniforms and went about as their real selves, abandoning the names of Richardson and Robertson for all time.

Commenting on "how he happened to be" the officer selected to go abroad, Admiral Sims said:

"I was the logical selection for a number of reasons. I had been Naval Attaché at Paris from 1897 to 1900. I speak the French language. I had been to England, about every Winter from 1902 to 1909 to talk gunnery with British Admiralty chiefs like Admiral Jellicoe and Admiral Scott. I knew the British and French naval heads, and for three years I had been in command of the Atlantic torpedo flotilla on this side."

Going into details of the work of the sea forces in the war, Admiral Sims said:

"It was for us to get on with the war and play the game. The results depended on a full discussion with the chiefs of staff of the various navies—the English, the French, and the Italian. To use an army term, we brigaded our forces with theirs, and the whole force handled the coast from Murmansk on the north, in Russia, to the Adriatic, and now to Constantinople, at the eastern end of the Mediterranean.

"The United States had a navy of about 80,000 officers and men, of whom 5,000 were officers, and there are yet 25,000 over in Europe doing work which will have to be continued for a long time. Of 350 ships over there, there are approximately 150 still remaining. The officers now there are doing work in every port; matters not exactly navy business, but they concern the sea and our ships. Every vessel that flies the American flag which arrives on the other side is handled by the navy.

"There was the best of feeling all of the time between the British Navy and ourselves, and I can say the same of the naval men of the other allied nations. Never was there friction.

"Our port officers are in every harbor where an American ship is liable to come on the other side, and they will remain there for a good while."

Admiral Sims, continuing, said that many mistakes were made that would have to be "thrashed out" later at the War College at Newport.

"It is possible that we might have begun the war on the submarine before we did," he said, "but we had wrong information given to us. I suppose you know that early in 1917 the Central Powers were winning the war. They were sinking an immense amount of tonnage. We did not begin to convoy our ships, that is, send them in convoys, for there were many men, both navy men and men of the merchant marine, who did not believe that thirty or forty ships could be sent safely in convoy. Afterward that was proved differently.

"Under the convoy system it is necessary for ships to steam in columns of four, line ahead. When a submarine is sighted the leading ships must turn simultaneously irrespective of the number of columns. Then, too, the column must be maintained through the night without navigating lights.

"The allied naval staffs all declared the merchant seamen could never maintain these positions. What also contributed to the error was the fact that the merchant seamen themselves also stated they could not do so. They pointed out that even with naval ships it was a difficult manoeuvre, despite the fact that naval crews are trained to it constantly.

"Finally we succeeded in putting two experienced convoys on from Gibraltar to England. They were a complete success, and from that time the convoy system was continued. Our light naval forces were used as escort vessels to as many of these convoys as they could handle."

SECRETARY BAKER SAILS FOR EUROPE

Plans to Surprise Gen. Pershing by Bringing His Nine-Year-Old Son.

TO FIX BILL FOR WAR GOODS

New Ambassador to France and Congressional Committee Also Sail on Leviathan.

When Secretary of War Baker sailed for Brest yesterday on the U. S. naval transport Leviathan with Warren Pershing, the 9-year-old son of the Commander in Chief of the American forces in Europe, he received a succession of salutes from the forts down the bay and the war craft that were waiting for Rear Admiral Sims to arrive on the Mauretania. The whistles blew shrilly on the harbor craft and the steamships dipped their ensigns as the Leviathan steamed by.

Secretary Baker said he hoped to surprise General Pershing by bringing his son, who had been living with his aunts, Miss Mary Pershing and Mrs. D. M. Butler, at Lincoln, Neb. Secretary Baker said he was going abroad for three weeks to attend meetings of the Allied Liquidation Commission in Paris and Tours for settling payments between England, France, and the United States for war material.

He will spend about two weeks in France, and will investigate some reports that have been made recently to Washington from the army abroad. He will visit England before returning.

While Secretary Baker was talking with the reporters little Warren Pershing, in a smart miniature Lieutenant's uniform, was running about the Leviathan's decks and expressing his opinion on her immense size to his official guardian, Sergeant Joseph E. Welz, a French War Cross veteran. The youth had some money in his hand and was playing with it in the main saloon companionway when the photographers approached and asked if they might take his picture. He replied promptly, "Absolutely no."

When it was suggested that the Secretary of War would be photographed with him, young Pershing replied: "What has that to do with me?"

He declined to be interviewed by the reporters, and when asked if he was glad he was going over to see his father he answered: "I do not see that is your business."

His chief interest seemed to be centred in recovering a lost dime that had dropped down the companionway. Just then Hugh C. Wallace of Tacoma, Wash., the new United States Ambassador to France, came on board, accompanied by his secretary and Mrs. Wallace, and Secretary Baker introduced his young protégé to them.

A Congressional delegation composed of fifteen members of the Committee on Military Affairs, headed by the former Chairman, S. H. Dent of Alabama, also sailed on the Leviathan.

Mr. Dent said the Representatives would make an inspection tour of American camps and military bases in France and the occupied area. They will also investigate, he said, the military mail service, registration of soldiers' graves, and other affairs connected with the war. The party expects to remain six weeks abroad.

SCHOOL PUPILS STRIKE.

350 in West Hoboken Parade to Support Their Principal.

Because an order for the dismissal of their Principal, George W. Robbins, had been issued by the Board of Education the pupils of the Emerson High School in West Hoboken went on strike yesterday. More than 350 pupils at noon paraded with a band. The pupils carried banners, one of which was inscribed, "No Robbins, No School."

Before the parade was over three boys and one girl were arrested for disorderly conduct. They were paroled in the custody of their parents.

In letters to local newspapers Mr. Robbins recently criticised the school system and attacked the educational officials. Charges were preferred by Superintendent Smith, and after a trial the Principal's dismissal was ordered, to take effect on Oct. 1. Mr. Robbins has been in charge of the High School for more than ten years.

'DRYS' ARE FAR AHEAD IN MICHIGAN VOTING

But Cities Are Yet to be Heard From—Detroit Contest on Railway Purchase.

Special to The New York Times.

DETROIT, Mich., April 7.—With a record-breaking vote cast today in the State's Spring election, as a result of the heavy registration of women and the keen interest in the light wine and beer amendment, returns were slow in coming in tonight. The result on the "wet" and "dry" issue may be in doubt until the larger precincts report.

The vote reported late at night on the "wet" amendment, from 434 precincts of 2,300, was 100,658 against and 43,876 for. Grant Hudson, head of the Anti-Saloon League and other "dry" leaders claimed victory by at least 150,000 votes. At this time, however, few cities had sent in more than scattering returns.

In Detroit, where the proposed purchase of the lines of the Detroit United Railway shared interest with the beer and wine amendment, returns from only 13 of 319 precincts were reported at midnight, showing 1,018 for the purchase and 835 against.

The "wets" were optimistic enough late in the afternoon to offer odds of 2 to 1 that the beer and wine amendment would carry. They based their optimism, they said, on the fact that investigation had shown that the vote of the women, counted on as a "dry" stronghold, seemed to be leaning toward the affirmative on the amendment.

They prophesied that Detroit would go "wet" by anywhere from 25,000 to 60,000, and that they would break even in the State in spite of "dry" expectations of an overwhelming majority in the smaller towns and rural districts.

In Detroit all the ballot boxes were filled and extra ones called for. Even these were not sufficient to supply the demand, and hastily constructed boxes were made out of heavy cardboard cartons.

Women voted today for the first time in a State election. More than 125,000 were qualified to vote.

Eight of the thirty-one candidates seeking election were women, 4 of them Democrats, 1 Republican, and 3 Prohibitionists. The Supreme Court is the only field in which the women had no candidates. The other offices were 2 Regents of the University of Michigan, 1 member of the State Board of Education, 2 members of the State Board of Agriculture, and a State Superintendent of Public Instruction.

consideration of that subject can best be assured by the abatement of further personal discussion and unanimity of effort to work out the best results for the system which we all desire to improve.

"P. C. HARRIS,
"The Adjutant General."

The War Department published an amendment to General Order 84 of 1917, striking out that part of the order which made it mandatory on General Pershing to accept the recommendations made by the Acting Judge Advocate General in France that sentences be set aside. This amendment strikes out that part of General Order 84 which was construed as limiting General Pershing's authority over court-martial proceedings abroad and to which General Pershing objected.

This general order has figured prominently in the controversy over army court-martial cases. It provided for the establishment in Paris of a branch office of the Judge Advocate General's office, where court-martial cases arising abroad might be reviewed, and contained a provision, drawn up while Lieut. Col. Ansell was acting temporarily as Acting Judge Advocate General in Washington, which read:

"Any sentence or any part thereof so found to be illegal, defective or void, in whole or in part, shall be disapproved, ratified or set aside, in accordance with the recommendations of the Acting Judge Advocate General (in Paris.)"

This provision was not satisfactory to General Pershing, who informed the War Department he thought it took the disciplinary system of the army abroad out of his hands and would lodge it finally in the hands of the Acting Judge Advocate General.

REOPEN RHINE COMMERCE.

Traffic with Switzerland Now Permitted, War Trade Board Announces

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 7. — The War Trade Board was today advised that, by decision of the military authorities of the associated Governments, the Rhine River had been reopened for traffic with Switzerland, and that shipments from the United States might be forwarded to Switzerland by that route.

Summarising previous action taken, the board announced that trade was ordered resumed with Siberia Jan. 3, Alsace-Lorraine Jan. 8, Palestine and Syria Jan. 20, Mesopotamia Feb. 3, Serbia and Rumania Feb. 4, including territory in the line set out in Article 3 of the military clause of the armistice protocol of Nov. 3-Feb. 4, Finland Feb. 11, Czechoslovakia Feb. 13, Bulgaria, Turkey, and Black Sea ports Feb. 16, German colonies Feb. 21, the occupied territory of Germany Feb. 22, Adriatic ports, Albania, and Montenegro Feb. 28, Luxemburg March 17, the territory adjacent to and dependent upon the Adriatic ports, including Albania, Montenegro, Croatia, Slavonia, Bosnia, Herzegovina, and Dalmatia, March 20, Poland April 1, Esthonia April 1, and German Austria April 2.

POSTS NAMES OF WOMEN.

Plan of British Commander in Bonn to Stop Fraternization.

BONN, Rhenish Prussia, March 31, (Associated Press.)—To discourage fraternization on the part of the young German women of Bonn with British soldiers the military authorities recently inaugurated a system of posting the names of the women in public places.

The first placard to appear, with the names of women who had been known to have associated with the English troops during the last few weeks, appeared on a Sunday morning at the most prominent street corner in Bonn, which was passed by nearly every one who attended church that day.

The week following the authorities reported that there was a falling off in the number of fraternization cases reported of more than 50 per cent.

Get Report on Transit Problems.

A report covering the city's transit problems was submitted yesterday at a meeting of the Board of Directors of the Thirty-fourth Street Board of Trade, 45 West Thirty-fourth Street. The survey was made by Milo R. Maltbie, who was retained some time ago by the organization to make the investigation. E. W. Estes of the board said that it was decided not to make the report public at present.

Get Four Fricke Jurors.

In the trial of Albert Paul Fricke, charged with treason, now going on before Federal Judge Mayer, four jurors were obtained yesterday after a hard day's work. The trial will be continued today.

MORE 26TH TROOPS ARRIVE AT BOSTON

Big Connecticut Delegation Welcomes Agamemnon Down Bay—Divisional Parade April 25.

BOSTON, April 7.—The transport Agamemnon, carrying 5,824 officers and men, most of them members of the 26th (New England) Division, docked at Commonwealth Pier at 4:30 P. M. today. The troops will remain aboard overnight and be transferred to Camp Devens early tomorrow morning.

The parade in Boston of the division will be held on April 25, it was announced officially today.

Upon her arrival in the harbor the Agamemnon's first message to the waiting thousands was: "We have no sick or wounded."

Among the returning Yankees were the 102d Infantry Regiment, which won glory in the closing of the St. Mihiel salient, and the 101st Machine Gun Battalion, many times complimented for efficiency and valor. Both these units were built up largely from Connecticut organizations. Governor Holcombe and a party of 1,000, representing the State and most of the cities and towns in Connecticut, went down the harbor on a fleet of small boats and welcomed the homecomers. Mayor Fitzgerald and President Arthur T. Hadley of Yale headed the New Haven delegation.

With the Yankees came several casual companies from New York and Ohio and Maj. Gen. Clement A. F. Flagler, commander of the famous 42d (Rainbow) Division. Another passenger was Captain Thomas Graydon of Cincinnati of the 76th Division, a former star football player at Harvard who made the all-America team.

SAY GARRISON MAY REPLY.

B. R. T. Unionists Expect Answer to Demands for Labor Board Hearing.

It was expected that Lindley M. Garrison, receiver of the B. R. T. system, would reply yesterday to the letter from the unionized B. R. T. employes requesting him to submit the recent demands of the employes to the National War Labor Board, but at Mr. Garrison's office it was said he was out of town. It was indicated, however, that Mr. Garrison, though he intended to remain away for the rest of the week, would answer the unionists before the B. R. T. employes' mass meeting tonight.

All Identical in Tailoring
All Different in Style

IT is the uniformity in the tailoring and the lack of uniformity in the styles that gives the greatest distinction to these misses' suit fashions. Instead of the usual models which appear broadcast, there is a choice of innumerable modes, each one portraying a distinct and original style theme—smart, out-of-the-ordinary and exclusive!

It may be one of the new cape suits or a stunning Directoire model with a vested cut-away coat, a straightline suit embroidered in an effective braid design, a blouse suit or a mannish tailored suit, but each one is interpreted in many delightful ways, and expressive of the mode at its best.

They are in an interesting representation of fabrics, including wool tricotine, Poiret twill, serge, tweeds, Oxford suitings or novelty checked worsted. Sizes 14 to 20 years.

REDS' ENVOY WANTS RUSSIA'S CASH HERE

HILLQUIT TO ACT FOR THEM

Heads the Bolshevist Legal Department — Steffens Cited in Opposition to Russian Revelations.

Ludwig C. A. K. Martens, the Bolshevist envoy who hopes to be Ambassador to the United States, established permanent offices in the Tower Building, at 110 West Fortieth Street, yesterday. The offices are to be known officially as "The Russian Soviet Bureau in the United States."

The bureau is at present divided into five departments, each under the direction of a chief. They are the commercial department, A. A. Heller in charge; the legal department, in charge of Morris Hillquit; the Chahcellery, under the direction of Gregory Weinstein, former editor of the Novy Mir; the railway department, in charge of Professor J. W. Lomonosoff, and the diplomatic department, the chief of which is Santeri Nuorteva, hitherto in charge of propaganda.

The bureau evidently has a large fund to draw from, for it has leased the whole third floor of the building.

It was also announced yesterday that one of the first things that the Martens mission would undertake would be to gain control of all property and money in this country title to which now rests with the old Government of the Czar, or the Governments of Milukoff and Kerensky. The total value of this property, it was said, was approximately $153,000,000, of which amount over $53,000,000 represented investments in railway materials and equipment. The effort to gain control of this property will be directed by Morris Hillquit, presumably through the courts.

"This property," said Nuorteva, "is worth millions of dollars and at the present moment is being squandered. They are selling it off as fast as they can, so that in case we do gain title to it there will be nothing left for us to levy on. It is because of this situation that Mr. Hillquit will first direct his efforts to the recognition of the rights of the present Russian Government in this country. Many millions of this property is in cash in American banks."

Nuorteva said that A. A. Heller, the head of the Commercial Department, was an American. Hillquit is also an American. Nuorteva himself is a Finn. Weinstein, on whose newspaper the Novy Mir Trotzky worked as a member of the staff when in this country, is a Russian, as is Lomondsoff.

"It is not rather unusual for diplomatic officials to be citizens of a country other than that which the Embassy represents," Nuorteva was asked.

"It may be unusual, but it is not illegal," he replied.

"What is Heller's particular task?"

"To re-establish trade relations between the United States and Russia, and prepare the way for ultimate recognition."

"Has Mr. Martens's credentials been acknowledged by the State Department?"

"Not yet. I imagine that the State Department, before acting in the matter, must first communicate with Paris."

Says Bankers Attended Luncheon.

Nuorteva said that a few days ago Mr. Martens met at luncheon representatives of some of the leading financial institutions in this country. He named as among those present an official of one of the great banking institutions in the United States. He added naively that he was permitted to say that the National City Bank was not represented at the luncheon. The tenor of his remarks indicated that the National City Bank was not high in favor of the Trotzky-Lenine Government.

"What was the result of that conference?" Nuorteva was asked.

"It was informal. The bankers wanted a great deal of information, and we supplied it. I understand that one of the bankers present subsequently asked the State Department if trade relations would be recognized, and received a noncommittal answer. I cannot give any of the deails without the consent of the gentlemen who were present. Personally I have no objection to making the names public, but I must first have the permission of the men themselves."

The banker named by Mr. Nuorteva confirmed later the statement regarding the luncheon. He said that the affair was informal, and had been arranged by a man who requested that the bankers give the Bolshevist representatives a chance to make certain statements regarding their financial and commercial program. So far as he knew, he added, the conference was without result.

Mr. Nuorteva made a reference to the Bruce-Lockhart report in the British White Paper summarized in THE TIMES on Sunday. Bruce-Lockhart was the British High Commissioner to Russia, and was closely associated while in that country with Colonel Raymond Robins, head of the American Red Cross mission. Colonel Robins, testifying before the Senate Committee that investigated Bolshevism, referred to Bruce-Lockhart as a man of the highest integrity and standing. His report agreed in all essential details with the testimony of Ambassador Francis, under oath, before the Senate Committee.

"Bruce-Lockhart," said Nuerteva, "left Moscow last September. There was ground for suspecting that he was concerned in a counter-revolution, and for one night he was in jail. The report he has made is false and the horrible things he says have happened did not occur."

Where Lincoln Steffens Stands.

Mr. Nuorteva was asked to name an official or officials of foreign Governments who had investigated conditions in Russia and whose reports did not tally with those made by Ambassador Francis, Dr. Huntington, and Roger Simmons of the American Embassy, and Mr. Bruce-Lockhart of the British service.

"I understand," he replied, "that Lincoln Steffens has made a report which is just the opposite. He left Russia only a few weeks ago, and I understand, from the newspapers, that he has stated that conditions are fairly normal. I understand that his report, as well as that of Mr. Bullitt, is fairly favorable to the Russian Government. I believe that Mr. Steffens in a general way is favorable to our cause."

According to reports from Paris, Steffens and Bullitt were sent to Russia to make an investigation for the American Government.

An agent of the Department of Justice was asked yesterday about the views of Mr. Steffens.

"Well," he replied, "Trotzky wrote a book which he called 'The Bolsheviki and World Peace.' The introduction to that book was written by Lincoln Steffens. Steffens is a great admirer of Trotzky, and has spoken at several radical meetings in this city in which the cause of the Bolsheviki was espoused."

On the cover of the Trotzky book it is announced that the introduction is "by Lincoln Steffens, the man who knows him," the "him" being Trotzky. In this introduction, dated "New York, Jan. 4, 1918," Mr. Steffens wrote:

Trotzky is against all the present Governments of Europe, and the "bourgeois system" everywhere in the world. * * * He is for a class, the proletariat, the working people of all countries, and he is for his class only to get rid of classes and get down or up to—humanity. And so with his people.

The Russians have listened to the Socialist propaganda for generations now. They have learned the chief lessons it has taught—liberty, land, industrial democracy, and the class war all the world over. This war was not their war; it was the Czar's war; a war of the Governments in the interest of their enemies, the capitalists of their several countries, who, as Trotzky says, were forcing their States to fight for the right to exploit other and smaller peoples.

So when they overthrew the Czar the Russians wanted to drop this war and go into their own, the class war. Kerensky held them at the front in the name of "the" revolution; he would get peace for them by arrangement with the Allies. He didn't; he couldn't; he was dismissed by them. Not by the Bolsheviki, but by the Russian people, who know the three or four things they want—land and liberty at home; the revolution and democracy for all the world.

Mr. Steffens is now in Paris. He was reported to have submitted his report on Russia last week.

BRITISH SOLDIERS ANGRY.

Ruling of Immigration Officials Keeps Them on Board Mauretania.

The Cunard liner Mauretania arrived yesterday at Pier 54, foot of West Thirteenth Street, at 7 P. M., seven hours late, through the fog which blanketed the harbor and for nearly one hundred miles out to sea. She brought 1,080 American officers and men and 2,700 officers and men who were living here when the war started in August, 1914, and who enlisted in the British service. Out of this total there were 600 Jews who enlisted for the Palestine army under General Allenby, but did not reach there before Jerusalem had fallen, and another 600 West Indians, colored, who were employed in restaurants, hotels, and other work in this country and responded to the call for recruits from the British Government. The majority of them were American citizens, and arrangements had been made in London with the Foreign Office and the United States Embassy to have them repatriated on their arrival and given twenty-eight days' pay, with transportation to their home towns.

Immigration Inspectors threw a cold blast into the enthusiasm of the officers and men from the British Army by stating that they could not go on shore until every one of them had been properly manifested.

In the meantime the officers had gone on to the pier. They were told by officials from the Immigration Bureau that they would have to go back on board the ship.

Songs were changed to angry shouts, and many of the soldiers yelled out to the guards on duty at the gangway: "We've been fighting for you in France, and been through a hell on earth for four years, and now you want to stop us from going to see our families." It was estimated that at least 600 lived around New York, and the remainder were to go to Camp Mills to wait for transportation to their homes.

Colonel Norman Thwaites, the British Provost Marshal in New York, was at the Mauretania and told Captain Rostron that he had attended to the arrangements for the reception of the 2,700 soldiers from the military point but had nothing to do with the civil side of the business, which, he said, was in the hands of Frederick Watson, the Acting Consul General in New York. After attempts had been made to find him and the Immigration Commissioner they managed to get Deputy Commissioner Byron Uhl of the Immigration Service on the telephone at his home, and it was decided the returning repatriated soldiers should remain on board for the night and go to Camp Mills today, where they are to be manifested.

The men were in charge of Major H. H. Burne of the Royal Field Artillery. A number of the men were wounded and had Belgian, French, and British decorations for bravery on the battlefield. Those who had been prisoners in Germany agreed that the guards who had served in the front line trenches always treated them well and the rural guards who had pull enough to keep them on home duty always treated them cruelly.

While the 2,700 were barred from going ashore, the 1,080 American troops under command of Brig. Gen. Eli K. Cole, a regular army officer, whose home is at Carmel, N. Y., were merrily running down the gangways, while the band on the pier played "Hail, Hail, the Gang's All Here."

TO BACK UP DEMAND FOR PARADE OF 77TH

BAKER PROMISES HIS AID

Major Adler Cables That the Men Are Cheerful Over Prospects of an Early Return.

Although Secretary of War Baker, before sailing for Europe yesterday, gave assurances that the 77th Division would be returned to the United States in such a manner as to permit at least the larger part of its members to parade, local organizations believing that New Yorkers would not be satisfied with anything short of a parade of the full division went ahead with plans for meetings of protest. The Home Auxiliary of the 77th Division, composed of friends and relatives of the 31,000 men of the draft contingent, will meet this afternoon at the headquarters of the 305th Infantry Auxiliary, 180 Madison Avenue, to discuss the parade situation. Many of the unit organizations of the Home Auxiliary have already adopted resolutions demanding that the division be permitted to parade as a body.

The Executive Committee of the Selective Service Boards of the city has announced a special meeting to be held tomorrow night at the Bar Association, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, to demand that the War Department modify its attitude. Resolutions voicing the sentiments of the people will be offered at this meeting. Senator William M. Calder, who already has urged the War Department to issue orders for parading the division; the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning, and Martin Conboy, director of the Selective Service, are announced as speakers.

The following letter was sent out yesterday by John H. Hallock, Chairman of the Executive Committee:

To the Members of the Selective Service Boards of New York City, including the Members of the District Board for the City of New York; the Local Boards for the City of New York; the Government Appeal Agents for the City of New York; the Members of the Permanent and Local Legal Advisory Boards for the City of New York, and Members of the Medical Boards for the City of New York:

Gentlemen: A special meeting, called by the Executive Committee of the Selective Service Boards of the City of New York, will be held Wednesday evening, April 9, 1919, at 8 o'clock, at the rooms of the Association of the Bar, 42 West Forty-fourth Street, New York City.

The main object of the meeting will be the forwarding of a parade of the 77th Division on its return from its glorious service in France.

An order has been issued by the War Department that the returned soldiers be demobilized within forty-eight hours after their return. The opinion has been expressed through the Inspector General of the Army that it will be impossible to hold a parade of the entire division. Resolutions will be presented at this meeting, expressive, we believe, of the wishes of the entire citizenry of New York, that the parade be held as planned.

The 77th is the only division raised entirely within the metropolitan area. The people desire to see the division parade with their war-worn battle flags and battle trophies. This parade will be one of the great historic events of our city. Nothing can do more to promote the patriotism and loyalty of the people of this city than a parade of its 77th Division.

Our Selective Service Boards sent these men to war. It is our duty to do all in our power to see that this parade is held. We want every man in the district and local boards, the appeal agents, the permanent and local legal advisory boards and the medical boards to be present and voice their views on this most important question.

Lieut. Col. Douglas Campbell, Major Allen L. Lindley, and Lieutenant Arthur F. McKeogh of the 77th Division are in New York arranging for the reception of the division. They have agreed to be present and tell us about how the 77th Division "made good" in France.

Senator William M. Calder, Dr. William T. Manning, Chairman of the Home Auxiliary Association of the 77th Division, and Martin Conboy will be present. They will speak on the importance to the City of New York and to the Government of holding the parade. By order of the Executive Committee.

JOHN H. HALLOCK, Chairman.
PHILIP ZALKIND, Secretary.

Mr. Hallock went to Hoboken yesterday morning and conferred with Secretary Baker on the parade, but left without making a statement. When interviewed by newspapermen before sailing Secretary Baker said:

"New York has been splendidly generous and hospitable in welcoming troops from all parts of the United States. New York deserves every opportunity to welcome its own. The only question involved is the ability to get them here sufficiently close together to prevent blockading other troops.

"I am told that arrangements have been made in Europe to send the division home as close together as possible, and when that is arranged there can be no difficulty about the parade."

Congressman F. H. La Guardia, a member of the House Committee on Military Affairs, who sailed on the same ship with the Secretary of War, said that he would keep the parade topic before Mr. Baker during the trip across.

"If it is a matter of expense, as has been intimated," Congressman La Guardia said, "perhaps we can aid the officers of the War College to save enough money in adjusting the financial affairs of the A. E. F. to cover the cost of holding the parade."

The advance party of the 77th Division, sent by Major Gen. Alexander, to co-operate with local organizations in arranging a reception yesterday gave out a cable message just received from Major Julius O. Adler telling of the cheerfulness of the men at the prospect of coming back soon to the United States. The message read:

Sable-sur-Sarthe, April 6.

Lieut. Col. Douglas Campbell, Biltmore Hotel, New York:

Seventy-seventh Division Baseball League organized fourteen teams. Elaborate schedule. Embarkation Centre Athletic Military tournament held at Le Mans was great victory for 77th; 230,000 troops represented in meet. Score: 77th Division, 129 points; Le Mans group, second, with 99 points; 28th and 35th Divisions and many smaller units represented. Organized cheering aided victory. Liberal leaves. Two hundred entertainments in division area last week. Men cheerful at prospect of early return. ADLER.

Open Water

THE ice is out. With a glittering flash, under the rock, the trout challenges your skill. Worshippers of Walton, in tweeds and waders, are whipping the brooks and the rivulets--for Spring is here. The days when you can play and sleep and eat outdoors have come again--the time when romping red blood reincarnates the hearts of men and women with the spirit of hope and optimism!

THE trail again leads over leafy hills and down green valleys — across the links — along the stream where the camp is pitched.

It is blazed into the city, where it crosses the boulevard at Madison Avenue and Forty-fifth Street.

While sport of any kind means the outo'doors play of men and women—involving simon pure enjoyment—it is most matter-of-fact in its requirements.

It deals coldly with the laws of Nature, and with tested abilities. What you do in sport you must do correctly—or it doesn't count.

* *

Obviously the first thing a sportsman must do is to clothe himself. And it must be done with absolute correctness.

That is the first rule of the game.

That is also why this house, known as the greatest sporting goods store in the world, has come to lay such stress upon the clothing which it has designed and developed.

To correctly clothe a sportsman, or a sportswoman, is purely a sporting proposition, with the odds heavily against any ordinary establishment being able to do it.

* *

It is a question which is the most important to the hunter—the gun that he carries or the suit that he wears. Either without the other would be out of place. We furnish both, and can speak from unbiased view in saying we are as scrupulously careful with one as the other.

So the golfer may want the head of his driver boiled in oil—but he also wants the smell of peat in his golf tweeds. Our hand-made drivers and irons have a national reputation. But they are no better known than our hand loom tweeds.

It may seem like a long stretch from our Cody suit for women, a most useful outfit for the woman who is roughing it this Summer or travelling through the national parks, to our trim town and country tailormade, which is as appropriate in a pew on Easter morning as it is on the motor trip a week later—or to one of our tennis dresses or seaside suits.

But all of these, with the boots and hats to go with them, are natural developments of this outo'doors institution.

Outo'doors has come to mean the park and the avenue, as well as the country club and the Adirondack lodge.

* *

The clothing outfits which this house designed and furnished for two historic polar expeditions had little in common with the mufti outfits it is now furnishing returning Army and Navy officers—civilian suits of English materials which have that thorough-going country-house and Pullman atmosphere desired by the well-travelled man. But they are all natural developments of the Abercrombie & Fitch establishment, reflecting its character and its purposes.

* *

To say that the departments of this business devoted to men's sporting clothes and footwear are the largest of their kind in the world is not sufficient.

The sporting goods as well as the sporting clothes are here in their perfection.

For the fisherman, the hunter and the camper there is every item, for every need, from hat to hobnail.

For the rider, the polo player and the hunt club member, there is every clothing requirement and every accessory.

But for that much larger class of sportsmen—the golfer, the motorist, the business man who dresses on Saturday morning for the office and wants to wear the same suit to the country club in the afternoon, there is a selection of suits and topcoats such as was never before offered in America or England.

It has taken a series of years for this house to collect the assortments of English, Irish, Scotch and Welsh tweeds and homespuns of which these clothes are made.

* *

In ready-for-service models, these begin with our "Muftikit" tweed suits, at $45, originally designed for officers who need an all-purpose civilian suit. They also include golf suits, either with knickerbockers or long trousers—designed by experts for the leading golf players of the country—a selection which overshadows any other in the world.

For hot weather, there are unequalled assortments of flannels, linens, crashes and pongees—and many of lighter wool fabrics.

* *

There is also a custom department, for men as well as women, in which the exclusive making of sporting clothes has been carried to its highest point of perfection—a department known by sportsmen the world around.

And for every suit and topcoat, there is a hat or cap—for every outfit, a pair of boots, perfectly adapted for each use and characteristically smart.

Sporting shirts of flannel, madras or silk, in styles which you will look for elsewhere in vain—sporting hosiery and gloves — all the correct haberdashery of sport.

HARBOR MEN REJECT BOATOWNERS' TERMS

Vote Down Proposal for Ten-Hour Day and 10 Per Cent. Increase in Secret Ballot.

ABOUT 6,000 STILL OUT

The organizations of harbor workers which are still on strike rejected by overwhelming votes yesterday the proposals of the boat owners for settling the strike on the basis of a ten-hour day and a 10 per cent. increase in pay.

The Masters, Mates and Pilots rejected the offer by a vote of 165 to 20. The Marine Engineers voted it down by 189 to 19. The Harbor Boatmen and Hoisting Engineers also voted against accepting the offer.

The balloting was held secretly, in accordance with the plan asked by the boat owners, who were of the belief that, if given a chance to record their genuine feeling about the offer, the men would vote to return to work. Some of the boat owners asserted after the votes had been taken that they were not real tests of the spirit of the men for the reason that employes on several of the lines who had expressed themselves as being in favor of accepting the terms were not notified that the meeting would be held.

Paul Bonynge, counsel for the private boat owners, said yesterday afternoon that the boat owners had gone as far as they could in their offer to the men without creating impossible conditions and increasing harbor rates in New York to such an extent as to drive business to other ports.

The Tidewater Boatmen and Lighter Captains, two of the branches of the Marine Affiliation, have returned to work on the terms which were rejected by the other classes of harbor workers yesterday. The strike began nearly six wees ago with 16,000 men quitting their jobs. After making peace with the Railroad Administration and other Government agencies, about half of the men returned to work, and the independent settlements made by unions last night brought about 2,000 more back to work.

At present less than 6,000 men are on strike, but these include some of the most highly skilled labor in the harbor, including many of the pilots and engineers. A number of the boat owners, who are practical harbor men, are acting as skippers on their own boats, while a few nonunion engineers and Captains have been found, so that essential harbor work has gone ahead in spite of losses due to delays in docking boats and delays in loading and unloading cargo.

GARMENT STRIKE IS SETTLED.

Workers Get 44-Hour Week and Wage Increase.

After concessions had been made by both sides the garment strike ended in its eleventh week yesterday with a ratification of the new agreement by the workers and manufacturers who are members of the Dress and Waist Manufacturers' Association. Both Benjamin Schlesinger, President of the International Ladies' Garment Workers' Union, and Harry A. Gorden, counsel for the manufacturers, expressed themselves as satisfied with the new plan of action, under the terms of which the union wins the forty-four-hour week, a substantial increase in wages and the right of union representatives to observe their members' working conditions.

More than 75 per cent. of the workers ratified the agreement at meetings held in East Side halls yesterday, and union officials were certain the others would fall in line at a meeting in Beethoven Hall today. Shop committees were being appointed and shop Chairmen elected yesterday, and an eagerness to return to work was evident among the strikers. By next Monday, with few exceptions, all will have returned to the shops, though it was pointed out that the strike would continue in the shops of those manufacturers who had farmed out their orders to other cities.

HEAR CHALONER SUIT TODAY

Plaintiff in Libel Case at Liberty Meanwhile by Court Order.

The libel suit of John Armstrong Chaloner, who is held to be insane in New York State and sane in Virginia, against The New York Evening Post for $100,000, did not come before the Federal District Court yesterday because the trial of a suit before Federal Judge Dietrich was not concluded in time. It is expected to be called early today. In the meantime Mr. Chaloner is at full liberty under a court order.

On March 20, 1917, the suit was dismissed, because it was not pressed, but in the following July it was restored to the court calendar. Counsel for the defendant have demurred on the ground that the court lacks jurisdiction because Mr. Chaloner had been adjudged insane in this State, and that he has therefore no legal rights here.

George M. Curtis represents Mr. Chaloner.

Fur Dealers' Pledge to Victory Loan

More than $400,000 in advance pledges to the forthcoming Victory loan was obtained yesterday from the buyers present at the opening of the annual Spring sale of raw furs in the Masonic Temple, Sixth Avenue and Twenty-third Street. The soliciting was in charge of the Victory Loan Committee of the Fur Industry. These were the largest subscriptions: Charles S. FIGHTING IN MEXICO BEGUN BY BLANQUET

The First Battle in New Revolution Is in Progress, Insurgent Agents Here Say.

Announcement that the Blanquet-Diaz revolutionary faction in Mexico had formally declared war on the Carranza Government and that the first battle in the new revolution was now being fought in the State of Michoacan was made yesterday afternoon by the New York representatives of General Blanquet. They said that they had received the information officially from General Blanquet, who is now at the head of the forces operating in the State of Vera Cruz. The war declaration was made in the name of the National Reorganizing Army of Mexico, as the Blanquet-Diaz combination is officially known.

The battle in Michoacan involves, it was stated at 320 Broadway, the headquarters of the Blanquet-Diaz representatives, the possession of the city of Morelei, the capital of the State. The revolutionary force is commanded by General Jesus Cintra and numbers about 1,800 men. The Carrancistas, who hold the city, number, it is said, between 500 and 1,000.

Michoacan is the third largest of the Pacific States of Mexico. The State has a population of about 1,000,000 and the City of Morelei about 10,000.

Roberto Gayon, General Blanquet's personal representative, said that General Blanquet had issueda manifesto to the Mexican people and that the text of it, which is now on the way to New York, would be given out Friday or Saturday.

The Blanquet-Diaz forces will in a few days formally ask the allied Governments for recognition as a belligerent force. The statement announcing this says the anti-Carrancista army now numbers more than 40,000 men and is in a position to guarantee the safety of foreigners and foreign properties in the territory in which it exercises control. It also states that the Blanquet-Diaz faction is "in sincere sympathy" with the proposal for a League of Nations.

PALMER REJECTS PETITIONS FOR DEBS

Will Not Consider Clemency Unless Convicted Man Himself Applies for It.

UNMOVED BY STRIKE THREAT

Attorney General's Statement Taken to Mean That Sentence Will Be Enforced.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Attorney General A. Mitchell Palmer issued a statement tonight in reply to several communications requesting that the sentence of ten years' imprisonment imposed upon Eugene V. Debs, Socialist leader and former nominee of that party for President of the United States, be vacated, which makes it seem improbable that clemency will be extended.

Mr. Palmer asserts that Debs has not filed any petition and that all requests have come from friends of Debs. The fact that Mr. Palmer gave public answer to these third party requests, without having heard from Debs himself, is believed to indicate that the Attorney General has made final judgment.

Whether the attitude now assumed by the Attorney General has been the outcome of any expression on the part of President Wilson has not been definitely established.

There has been continued agitation in behalf of Debs ever since the first sentence was imposed. Communications have been sent to Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to President Wilson, since Mr. Wilson sailed on his second trip abroad. As far as could be learned, these communications, all requesting clemency for Debs, and some of them, it is said, threatening trouble if clemency was not shown, were simply turned over to the Attorney General's office by Mr. Tumulty.

Government officials are satisfied that there is not any considerable group which is in sympathy with the acts which Debs committed in his effort to obstruct the draft, or which will stand behind him in the face of the threats which have been uttered by him since the affirmation of his sentence by the higher courts.

Text of Palmer Statement.

Attorney General Palmer's statement reads:

"Eugene V. Debs has filed no petition with either the President or the Attorney General asking for the exercise of executive clemency. The facts in his case are such that until such petition be made by him I should not feel called upon to consider making any recommendations in his case.

"Debs was convicted, not because of his political or economic views, but because he plainly violated the law of the land. On June 16, 1918, during the most critical period of the war, Debs made a public speech at Canton, Ohio, in which he urged that wage earners refrain from giving any aid to the American Nation in the war, asserting that the war was brought on and conducted spicly in the interest of capitalists; told his audience that they needed to know that 'they were fit for something better than slavery and cannon fodder,' held up to admiration as martyrs to the cause of labor a number of persons who had been convicted for violating the Draft act, and urged wage earners to stand together as a class to prevent the success of our country in the war.

"In his address to the jury Debs said: 'I have been accused of obstructing the war. I admit it. Gentlemen, I abhor war. I would oppose the war if I stood alone.'

"He was given a fair trial by jury. The charge of the trial Judge was eminently fair, and, on appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, that court, by a unanimous decision, affirmed the judgment of conviction.

Says Government Was Defied.

"Both prior and subsequent to the delivery of the speech mentioned Debs had on numerous occasions publicly urged wage earners to adhere to the so-called St. Louis program of the Socialist Party adopted in April, 1917. This document asserted that participation of the United States in the war against Germany could not be justified, branded the declaration of war by the American Government as a crime against the people of the United States, declared that in all modern history there has been no war more unjustifiable, and urged continuous, active, and public opposition to the war.

"Following the action of the Supreme Court the defendant has indulged in violent public criticism of the American courts of justice and practically defied the power of Government to administer the law against him. In a public speech made at Cleveland, March 12, he said: 'With every drop in my veins I despise their law and I defy them.' A few days ago he declared that if an attempt is made to imprison him he will have a general strike called in support of his attitude.

"In this situation my duty is clear. Respect for the law and our institutions is the basis upon which every application for executive clemency must rest. Open defiance of the law and threat of force to obstruct its orderly administration call for only one answer. The law must be respected and obeyed. To make sure of that, it must be enforced. I would be doing a grievous wrong to the country and striking a blow at law enforcement if I adopted any course which would interfere with the normal administration of justice in this case."

AGAINST BEN ALI HAGGIN.

Artist's Creditors File Bankruptcy Petition for $4,000.

An involuntary petition in bankruptcy was filed in the Federal Court yesterday against Ben Ali Haggin, the artist and grandson of the late James B. Haggin, by three creditors whose claims aggregate less than $4,000. The creditors are Tappe, Inc., a dressmaker, who seeks $2,987.24 on a judgment by default; Charles V. Miller, a dealer in antiques, $546, and the Motion Picture Apparatus Company, $193.

A judgment for $4,917 was obtained against Mr. Haggin in the Supreme Court last February on a suit instituted by Sigmund Wyler, a jeweler. Last year he was sued by the Aeolian Company for the recovery of a balance alleged to be due of $7,419. In June, 1916, Mr. Haggin married Bonnie Glass, former dancing partner of Al Davis. His first wife was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jeremiah R. Robinson, who divorced him.

BREAK GERMAN HOLD ON AMERICAN METAL

Three Large Companies in Germany Came Near Controlling the World's Ore Production.

With the sale by the United States Alien Property Custodian of 36,344 shares of capital stock in the American Metal Company, Ltd., and 562 shares of capital stock in a subsidiary company, the Compania de Minerales y Metals, at the offices of the former concern at 61 Broadway yesterday morning, the Government took the first steps toward breaking up the domination by German metal interests of the American metal market, especially as regards zinc and lead.

H. W. McAnteer of the American Metal Company bought the Minerales stock, paying $57,000 for it, and Hayden, Stone & Co. of 25 Broadway bought the shares in the parent company for $4,850,160. By order of the Alien Property Custodian none but American-owned companies were allowed to bid on the stock.

Behind the cold facts and figures of yesterday's sale of stock, there is an absorbing story of German methods reaching out for domination of the metal world, which was practically attained when the war brought a sudden end to Teutonic ambitions. Investigation by the United States Government brought out the facts which show the extent to which German metal interests embodied in a great triumvirate reached out over the mines, smelters, and refineries of the whole world.

At the outbreak of hostilities in 1914 Germany was dominant in the metal markets of Europe and Australia, especially in lead and zinc, while in the United States and South America she had reached a position only a little less powerful. The factor which stood in her way was that 60 per cent. of the copper mined in the world came from the United States and she had not been able to get control of the American-owned companies producing the ore.

Three international concerns in Germany were the centre of the plot to control the world's metal and their subsidiary companies reached into every corner of the globe. They were the Metallgesellschaft of Frankfort-on-the-Main, which controlled the American Metal Company, Ltd., Aron Hirsch & Sohn of Halberstadt, and Beer, Sondheimer & Co., also of Frankfort. The last two were represented in this country by L. Vogelstein & Co. and Beer, Sondheimer & Co., both of New York City.

Controlled 245 Companies.

The Metallgesellschaft was by far the largest. It was founded some time before 1800. In 1860, or thereabouts, there was founded in London the metal firm of Henry R. Merton & Co., which, up to the present, worked hand in glove with its parent company, the Metallgesellschaft, and which the British Government lately forced out of business by requiring concerns dealing in metal to get a license from the Board of Trade. The two companies, situated in Frankfort and London, working with one aim, obtained control over powerful mining, smelting, and refining concerns to the number of 245 in Belgium, Russia, France, England, Austria, America, North and South; Switzerland, Austria, Italy, Spain, Mexico, and Germany.

It was in 1887, that the first inroads were made by this "metal octopus," as it is termed in the report of the Alien Property Custodian, into the metal field in the United States. At that time Jacob Langeloth and Berthold Hochschild were sent here by the Metallgesellschaft and they incorporated under the laws of the State of New York the American Metal Company, Ltd. It had a capitalization of $200,000 which increased by 1917 to $7,000,000. Of the stock in the company in 1917, the Metallgesellschaft and allied interests in Germany controlled 36,344 of the 70,000 shares of stock, while Henry R. Merton & Co. controlled 10,280 shares.

Prior to the outbreak of the European war the American Metal Company planned its business each day on the quotations received by cable from Henry R. Merton & Co. and the Metallgesellschaft.

According to information gained by the investigation of the authorities here, the American Metal Company was primarily a holding company, its property being largely represented by shares of its subsidiary corporations. The most important subsidiary concerns which it owned were as follows: in the United States, American Zinc & Chemical Company, Bartlesville Zinc Company, American Metal Transport Company, Metallurgical Company of America, Langeloth Coal Company, Langeloth Mercantile Company, Langeloth Townsite Company, Chanute Spelter Company, Clarksburg Clinkering Company, and the Ohio & Colorado Smelting & Refining Company; in South America and Mexico, The South American Metal Company and the Compania de Minerales y Metales.

Tried to Get Ore to Germany.

When the war broke out, some effort was made by the German controlled metal concerns here to send cargoes designed for Germany to neutral countries. The British blockade soon stopped this, however, and then England came to an agreement with the metal companies, which was adhered to, that no material was to be shipped except the allied countries or to other countries only with the express permission of the British admiralty.

After the United States had entered the war and the Trading with the Enemy Act was passed, the Americans owning stock in the American Metal Company as well as in L. Vogelstein and Beer, Rondheimer and Company, offered to co-operate with our Government in every way possible and courted the fullest investigation; they themselves aiding to the best of their ability the investigators.

In the case of the liquidation of the American Metal Company, Ltd., Beer, Sondheimer & Co., and L. Vogelstein, have not been liquidated, the Alien Property Custodian, under agreement with the American stockholders in the company, will name five of the fifteen directors. He has already named Joseph F. Cuffey, Henry Morgenthau, and Berthold Hochschild as three, and will designate the other two later.

In his report, A. Mitchell Palmer, formerly the Alien Property Custodian, has this to say of the fight to break German domination of our metal market.

"To summarize the results of the actions of the Alien Property Custodian in so far as they affect German interests and German influences in the American metal market, it may be said that finding those interests and influences centred in three well-defined corporations, American in name, but all controlled by the German metal triumvirate, he has succeeded in thoroughly americanizing two and liquidating the third, thereby entirely elliminating German influence in our metal markets and our metal interests.

"The German metal octopus spread his tentacles across the ocean and over the United States into Mexico and South America, but for the present, surely, and, for all time, it is to be hoped, he has been driven back, and a wall of Americanism erected which, it is hoped, he will never again be able to scale."

Bernard Granville, late Lieutenant in the Aero Corps, is prominent on the new program at the Palace this week, appearing, as of yore, in songs and semi-acrobatic dances. Marguerita Sylva is another on the program, and still others include Maud Lambert and Ernest R. Ball, Felix Adler, and Bennett and Richards.

FRENCH PLAYERS' FAREWELL

Otto H. Kahn Pays Tribute to M. Copeau at Final Performance.

Jacques Copeau and his fellow-players of the Vieux Colombier, who have for two seasons made New York their headquarters, bade farewell to their admirers last night. Through the efforts of Jules Bouy and others of the subscribers a final performance was given in the Garrick Theatre, which the French players have occupied, and the proceeds will be used to assist in the re-establishment of M. Copeau's company at the Théâtre du Vieux Colombier in Paris.

An address was made by Otto H. Kahn, who has been active in support of the organization here, in which he paid high tribute to M. Copeau, and said that the two seasons of French drama here under his direction had been highly satisfactory to the subscribers. Gaston de Billy of the French High Commission also spoke, and Mr. Bouy, on behalf of the subscribers, presented Mr. Kahn with a souvenir volume from the Vieux Colombier in Paris.

M. Copeau and his entire company said their adieus to the audience in a scene written for the occasion, in which each appeared as the character with which he had been most closely identified during the two seasons here. There followed a performance of the one-act play, "La Coupe Enchangee."

The plans for a French season here next year are somewhat indefinite, but it was said last night that several of the players of the Vieux Colombier would return next season as the nucleus of a new company. The season will probably be played in one of the uptown houses, instead of the Garrick, and a program made up almost exclusively of modern plays will be offered.

COVENT GARDEN REVIVAL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, April 7.—After nearly five years' interval the Covent Garden season of grand opera will be revived this Summer. No German operas will be given, the repertory consisting of Italian, French, Russian, and English works. The list of artists is headed by Melba and Destinn, who has altered her name to Destinnova to denote her Czech nationality.

A new comer will be Marguerite Sheridan, descendant of the author of "The School for Scandal."

New Singer in 'L'Amore dei Tre Re.'

Montemezzia's "L'Amore dei Tre Re" opened the last week but one of the Metropolitan opera season last evening, under unusual circumstances as regards the singing cast. Miss Muzio and Messrs. Martinelli and Mardones reappeared, while Thomas Chalmers was unable to sing the baritone rôle of Manfredo, and his place was taken by an Italian artist, Milo Picco, who has sung elsewhere in New York, and in opera elsewhere in America. Mr. Picco was up in the part, and he was perhaps the only man in this vicinity who could so acceptably have fitted into the musical characterization of Sem Benelli's poetic tragedy at a moment's call. Mr. Moranzoni again conducted, and there was a large house.

Philolexian Play at Columbia.

The twelfth annual play of the Philolexian Society of Columbia University will be given in Earl Hall, Broadway and 117th Street, on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week, it was announced yesterday. The play, which is called "The Wives of the Patriarch," was written by Algernon Tassin, Professor of English in Columbia University.

CATHOLICS TO BEGIN DRIVE FOR $5,000,000

TO BEGIN ON WEDNESDAY

Society to Help Devastated Churches of France Has Been Organized.

Ex-Justice Morgan J. O'Brien announced last night that a Catholic drive for $5,000,000 to rehabilitate French Catholic parishes which were wiped out in the devastated regions of France would commence on Wednesday at a meeting to be held at the Hotel Biltmore. The campaign, said Justice O'Brien, would be conducted under the patronage of Cardinal Gibbons, Cardinal O'Connell of the Archdiocese of Boston, Cardinal Lucon, Cardinal Amette, Archbishop of Paris, and with the active support of the Most Rev. Patrick J. Hayes, Archbishop of New York.

An organization known as the Society to Help Devastated Churches of France has been formed, it was announced, with Justice O'Brien and the Countess de Laugiers Villars as Presidents. Discussing the plans of the organization yesterday, Justice O'Brien said:

"In letters received from Cardinal Amette, Cardinal Lucon, and the Bishops of the dioceses which were wiped out almost completely during four years of war we have been informed that we could help materially in reconstruction work in France by aiding in the re-establishment of places of worship. With hundreds of refugees returning to the villages and towns where churches and every vestige of civilization have been destroyed there is an immediate need of structures to serve as meeting places for the returning populations while the people rebuild their own homes or seek new fields.

"The people of France will eventually rebuild their own permanent houses of worship, the famous Cathedrals and other structures which stood as the architectural monuments of another age, and it is not our thought to take away the burden which should fall upon the people of France.

Temporary Churches Needed.

"But there are no funds available in France to place the hundreds of parishes on anything like a normal basis immediately. It has been estimated that it would cost about $2,000 to erect a temporary church in the French village or town, notably in the Arras and Soissons districts, but there are numberless parishes to be reconstructed. Each structure would have its sanctuary for the Catholic services, and it is planned to use the buildings for other purposes as well.

"Cardinal Amette and other noted French dignitaries have directed an appeal to French Catholics in the parts of France spared by the war urging their support of the campaign, so that the entire fund will not be required of America. The Pope has also sent a personal contribution to aid in the reconstruction of the Church in those regions, and appeals to the French have been sent out by the Bishops of Arras and Soissons, Amiens, Meaux, Beauvais, Chalons, Nancy, Verdun, St. Die, Lille, and Cambrai. From the very names of these dioceses it will be seen that they suffered most during the war."

Justice O'Brien made public an extract from a letter in which the Bishop of Amiens has described conditions in his diocese. It follows:

One-half the diocese has been turned into a desert, and 300,000 of my diocesans have evacuated their homes. There are nearly 200,000 who are still scattered. Amiens and its surroundings to the distance of eight kilometers were in the French and English zone. Beyond was the German front, and consequently there was systematic destruction. I don't know whether any other diocese has so very many devastated churches. Several towns have totally disappeared—Albert, Villers, Bretonneau, Montdidier, Peronne.

The meeting at which the drive will be launched formally will be held at 3:30 o'clock on Wednesday at the Hotel Biltmore. Judge O'Brien will preside and introduce as speakers Major James Byrnes, former Commissioner of the American Red Cross in Italy; Chanoine B. Cabanel, Chaplain of the Chasseurs Alpins; Lieutenant Marcel Jousse, S. J., and W. J. Mulligan, Director of the War Activities of the Knights of Columbus. Marcel Knecht, Director of the French Bureau of Public Information and member of the French High Commission, will present a new film of the Cinematographic Division of the French Army entitled "Churches of France and Alsace-Lorraine Destroyed by German Kultur." The headquarters of the Society to Help Devastated Churches of France is at the Hotel Vanderbilt.

ADMIRAL USHER RETIRES.

Salute and Dinner in Hotel as He Ends Active Service.

The two-starred pennant of Rear Admiral Nathaniel R. Usher, U. S. N., who for the last four and one-half years has been in command of the Third Naval District, with headquarters in New York, was hauled down at 11 o'clock last night in the Grand Ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. As the blue flag was slowly pulled down bluejackets from the superdreadnought Idaho, gunners from the same ship fired the salute of thirteen guns in honor of Admiral Usher, who passed from the active to the retired list of the service at midnight last night. The saluting guns were regulation naval one pounders, and the charges, though light, were sufficient to make a lot of people in the vicinity of Fifth Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street wonder whether the war was beginning all over again.

The occasion of the unusual incident was a farewell dinner given to Admiral Usher by his New York friends who, to the number of more than 500, cheered every mention of his name and voted him the most popular, as well as among the most efficient officers, to whom has ever been entrusted the affairs of the country's most important land naval command. The southern end of the ballroom was rigged up to represent the bridge of the battleship Michigan, the pioneer American dreadnought, the first commander of which was Admiral, then Captain, Usher. Under Usher the Michigan won fame as the first battleship of the United States Navy to win the battle efficiency championship of the service.

The background for the bridge was a great canvas on which Lieutenant Henry Reuterdahl, the naval artist, had painted a picture of the fleet of ten years ago steaming into the Hudson, with the Michigan, followed by her sister ship, the South Carolina, leading the way. In the centre of the make-believe bridge was the steering wheel and behind it sat the helmsman, in this instance Admiral Usher. On the right of Admiral Usher sat Rear Admiral James H. Glennon, the commandant of the navy yard. Franklin D. Roosevelt, Assistant Secretary of the Navy, was the master of ceremonies. There were just two short speeches, one by Mr. Roosevelt and the other by Admiral Usher.

Those present included most of the prominent naval and army officers on duty in this section of the country, as well as a score or more of high ranking officers from the Navy Department in Washington. On the bridge with the Admiral were Sir Thomas Lipton, Major Gen. Thomas H. Barry, commanding the Eastern Department of the Army; Captain Arthur Snagge, R. N., the British Naval Attaché in Washington; Rear Admiral George E. Burd, U. S. N.; Archbishop Patrick J. Hayes, Major Gen. David C. Shanks, U. S. A., commanding the Port of Embarkation in Hoboken; Rear Admiral Guy Burrage, U. S. N.; Sir Charles Henry, M. P.; Rear Admiral Hugo Osterhaus, U. S. N.; Morgan J. O'Brien, Mayor John F. Hylan, Samuel W. Fairchild, Byron R. Newton, Colonel Charles A. Fowler, Martin Vogel, Rear Admiral C. S. Williams, and R. A. C. Smith.

BRITISH LABOR REFORMS.

The establishment of a national industrial council in England, composed of equal representation of labor and capital, gives that country the substance of what we have long had in this country, with a form in advance of ours. During the war we extemporized an organization of that sort, under the supervision of a labor member of the Cabinet. And, before the war, collective bargaining between capital and labor was sanctioned here both in law and practice. The working of our plan has not always been smooth, nor is it likely that the British plan will be without its defects in practice. Its greatest promise lies in the separation of labor questions from politics. The railway workers' representative, Mr. THOMAS, said that if labor had persisted in forcing its views upon the Government "it would have amounted to a revolution."

To appreciate the truth of that it is necessary to recall what British labor has been proposing. The tripartite alliance of labor threatened England with a general strike, with intent to dominate the forces of the State by its power of duress upon the community. That is now abandoned, with, it may be hoped, some of the aims to which British labor had given formal expression. Within the past few days the radical editor of a British labor journal, LANSBURY, has been quoted as authority for the statement that there was nothing Bolshevist about British labor. Our representative labor organization has always regarded economic reconstruction as more important and feasible than social or political, and has never proposed anything resembling confiscation or revolution. Our labor movement is nothing more or less than trade unionism, and is in no such danger of being thought Bolshevist as the radical British platforms, now superseded happily by a compromise between labor, capital, and the State just as all three were threatened with collision. The danger sobered all of them. Instead of an understanding to avert calamity we are blessed with an increasingly good feeling based on solidarity of interests.

It is so desirable that we should preserve our method of reform that it is worth while to ask how we attained it, in order that we may not lose it, nor resort to the methods which England has abandoned. Our labor and capital have had, and again will have, their differences, but it is true nevertheless that their methods have been more co-operative than antagonistic. In England when capital desired to increase output the method was to put on more cheap labor. To prevent competition with itself labor's method was to restrict production and to "make work." Those methods are known here, but they are less characteristic of the American method than the increase of production by the aid of labor-saving machinery and the satisfaction of labor by fair pay. To illustrate, each coal worker in the United States produces 896 tons of soft coal or 548 tons of hard coal. The corresponding British figures are 222 and 207. In this country 253,000,000 tons are machine produced; in England 27,000,000. Four times as many machines are used here, and our coal deposits are more favorable to machine work, but we could not produce coal or iron more cheaply than England if we did not use more labor-saving appliances, as we could not without trouble if our labor policy was such as England's has been.

While British labor leaders have been thinking of political and social revolution something like an economic revolution has stolen upon the world unawares. No doubt war conditions share responsibility with the British labor policies, but all the world has confronted war conditions. While other nations are talking of social reconstruction and nationalization of economic factors, we are rejecting them with emphasis, and almost with unanimity. Our labor is sane, our capital is moderate, our institutions are satisfactory in principle, and as near perfection as is humanly to be expected. There is much left for us to strive for, but in our manner rather than in that of those less happy countries which have preferred to seek progress by theory rather than by experience. It is good news that England is rejecting its radicals, and substituting a new solidarity between economic factors of production for promises of the millennium by a premium on sloth and methods of force. Social reforms alone will never get the world out of debt. There is no substitute for hard labor and thrift, on the part of both labor and capital, if conditions after the war are to be more comfortable than before the war. There is no prosperity for us in any trouble of our old friends, England, Russia, France, Italy, particularly, and omitting none. But we should find find confirmation of the wisdom of our ways in both economics and politics by what is going on elsewhere.

MAY AFFECT THE BOYCOTT.

The seamen's boycott may be affected by the Peace Conference's decision that pensions for the disabled and for widows and orphans shall be included in the reparation bill which Germany must pay. It is estimated that the sum required for pensions will be the largest item in Great Britain's entire claim. While the greater part will be paid to soldiers and their relatives, the 15,000 British sailors who lost their lives when more than 2,000 merchant ships were sunk will not be overlooked in the distribution.

In the early days of the Conference the British Seamen's Union complained that its demands for pensions and for punishment of guilty commanders of submarines received no consideration at Paris. Two weeks ago Premier LLOYD GEORGE, in reply to inquiries from delegates representing the mercantile marine, assured them that compensation for the lost seamen would be exacted, and asked that claims be filed without delay. Germany's submarine warfare, he said, was "the cruelest "and most infamous exhibition of "piracy the world has ever seen." From the beginning he had held that there must be "full compensation for the British sailor":

> From this we have never swerved as a Government, and it is part of the instructions to our delegates in Paris that the first demand put forward must be full compensation for losses at sea, including compensation to those who have suffered because relatives lost their lives. I include those who died from exposure at sea. I do not want anybody left out. The German must pay for this, and it must be the first claim; it must come before indemnity for war expenses. None of our Allies has disputed the justice and fairness of the claim we are putting forward in behalf of the British mercantile marine and its heroic dead.

The boycott's term is seven years. As the French union has expressed approval, and Norway's union has voted that it must have $4,000,000 for its 1,120 lost sailors before it will do anything for Germany, some difficulty in manning food ships has been expected. The British union now knows that the Commission on Responsibility has reported that an international tribunal should be appointed for the trial and punishment of U-boat commanders. This, with provision for pensions, would seem to meet the seamen's demands and may lead to revocation of the boycott.

ADMIRAL SIMS.

No man cares for the "limelight" less than Admiral WILLIAM S. SIMS, but the American people should understand that the commander of their naval forces in European waters who came home yesterday rendered invaluable services during the war, and is one of the great sailors and leaders of an age when navies have reached their highest development. It would never be known from Admiral SIMS himself what he accomplished on the other side as naval commander, strategist, administrator, and diplomat, for he is the most silent of men about his own performances. He has cared nothing for personal distinction, but he has cared a great deal about the improvement of the United States Navy and he has been supremely concerned about the success of the allied cause. The British know the value of WILLIAM SNOWDEN SIMS as a war commander: his initiative, his thoroughness, his indefatigable industry and tireless activity, his strength of character, his magnetic leadership, his readiness to assume responsibility, his cheerfulness and confidence, his tempered resolution, and his unfailing tact. The truth is they envy the United States Navy the possession of SIMS.

As a practical seaman the Admiral satisfied the most searching British tests, and for enterprise and spirit and the faculty of doing the right thing at the right time he had no superior in the British Navy. His destroyer flotilla was so well trained and so skillfully handled that it took its place in the submarine patrol without the loss of an hour. On shore as well as afloat the American Admiral was always equal to the emergency and had a solution for every problem. It seemed the obvious thing to do to make SIMS the commander of the allied forces in Irish waters during the absence of the senior British officer. The American Admiral always got on famously with everybody in authority, soldier, sailor, or civilian, and he was so fair in his judgments and so generous in his tributes, which was second nature with him, that there was no limit to his popularity in England. Vainglory was foreign to him. He was a stickler for the truth, and he never hesitated to give our allies full credit for their efforts in the war; nor did he ever exaggerate the American contribution from a false sense of loyalty to his own service. The truth was in SIMS, and it always came out. No man could be prouder of the United States Navy, but he could see and acknowledge the big things our allies were doing

It must be with a peculiar satisfaction that Admiral SIMS returns to America wearing the laurels of his success. Four years before the war he predicted what was coming—his forecast is of record; and he committed the glorious indiscretion of declaring at a Lord Mayor's banquet in London on Dec. 3, 1910, that if the British Empire was ever seriously menaced by an external foe "you may "count upon every man, every dollar, "every drop of blood of your kindred "across the sea." The consequence was an official reprimand by President TAFT, who was perhaps not so unsympathetic and severe as his letter to Secretary MEYER seemed to indicate.

Admiral SIMS's next detail will be the reorganization of the Naval War College on modern lines, as prompted by the naval lessons of the war. In his new field he cannot fail to distinguish himself, for he has not only been the most progressive officer of the navy, but the most fearless in urging improvements and reform. The bureaus learned to dread his busy typewriter years ago, and he would go to the verge of insubordination, as he has confessed himself, to make his point. He taught the navy how to shoot when its marksmanship was deplorable, and he helped to revolutionize naval construction when our ships had defects that greatly impaired their usefulness. Admiral SIMS's motto, "Cheer up and get busy," has given him a strong following in the navy with the rank and file, for he has always lived up to it himself. Able, efficient, fair-minded, and loyal, he has found his golden opportunity in the war, and the American people cannot give him too warm a welcome.

GERMAN DECEPTIONS.

Dr. KARL HELFFERICH, sometime German Vice Chancellor, has added his contribution to that foolish German misrepresentation which has made the world, that knows the facts, a little more embittered, if that was necessary, against the Government jugglers with the truth. Dr. HELFFERICH is good enough to show us how, in the benevolent intentions of Germany, war might have been averted if Russia had been kind, not being at the moment the deadly enemy that France and England were afterward or contemporaneously in the official idea of Berlin. And he treats us to a lot of ancient, belated, and silly stuff about Russian mobilization.

We don't have to go back to ask of Vienna why no foreign Prince was invited to attend the obsequies of the Archduke, so disliked in Hungary. On July 23, 1914, the Austrian ultimatum to Belgrade was issued. Count LERCHENFELD, Bavarian Minister in Berlin, sent a dispatch to Count HERTLING at Munich, telling the truth. "With ref-"erence to the Kaiser traveling in "foreign countries, and the chief of "the Great General Staff and the "Prussian War Minister being on fur-"lough, the Imperial Government will "declare that it was as much sur-"prised as the other Powers by "Austria's act,"

The circumstances of the Russian mobilization, so much enlarged upon by Mr. HELFFERICH, don't bear examination, from the German point of view. The so-called "revelations" at the trial in September, 1917, of General SUKHOMLINOFF, Russian Minister of War in 1914, have been used, maliciously and dishonorably, for a German purpose. On the morning of July 29, 1914, the Czar directed a partial mobilization against Austria, which on July 28 had mobiliz and had declared war against Serbia. By request of Austria, the German Ambassador at St. Petersburg asked Mr. SAZONOFF to be careful. Even a partial mobilization against Austria Germany would have to regard as directed against herself, the ally of Austria. July 29, at evening, the German Chancellor was good enough to inform Russia that "we "shall be compelled to mobilize if any "further measures for Russian mobil-"ization are taken, and in that case "European war can hardly be avert-"ed." In the afternoon of that day the Russian Minister of War, without the knowledge of the Czar or Mr. SAZONOFF, directed the mobilization of the Russian troops in all regions, particularly toward Poland, which faced both the Austrian and the German marches. At some time during that evening NICHOLAS II. forbade the general mobilization. It was too late; the command had gone forth. It could not be recalled in time. It was now, it was still possible, for Mr. SAZONOFF to get up a compromise with Austria, a last "hope." At Potsdam that night WILHELM II. and his august fellow-sages had resolved to make war with Russia, had made as their excuse Russia's "partial" and at that time justified and necessary decision in regard to mobilization against Austria. The illustrious gentleman now in Amerongen sent a dispatch to the Czar, telling him, pleasantly, that "you have to bear the responsibility of war or peace." On the 30th Mr. SAZONOFF's attempt at compromise was killed, not by Austria, but by Germany. Somewhere about noon on July 30 the Berlin Lokal-Anzeiger got out a special edition showing that war was to be declared. That edition was suppressed. Why? It was official. It was the work of the military party. They knew what they were doing. The Russian Ambassador at Berlin saw it. He told his Government in St. Petersburg about it. NICHOLAS II. said, and inevitably, that a second mobilization must take place.

These things are old, substantial, not to be contradicted. The silly stuff about General SUKHOMLINOFF has nothing to do with the case. Germany was bound to make war. Neither the partial nor the general mobilization would have given her any satisfaction. She was bound to give Austria a free hand. Now she is trying to escape the consequences.

THE DANZIG SETTLEMENT.

It is a curious sort of compromise that has been reached in the dispute over the landing of the Polish army at Danzig. "The right given by the "Allies to land the Polish troops at "Danzig has been completely main-"tained," said Marshal FOCH. At the same time for convenience and rapidity of shipment they are not to be sent that way, but across Germany by rail. On the face of it, one might think that we had maintained our theoretical right and the Germans had theoretically assented to it, but that in practice it had been decided to fall in with the German view and send the troops some other way. Mr. PADEREWSKI is distressed, and calls the concession to German wishes "tragic."

But this is perhaps unwarranted. Marshal FOCH gained two points in his discussion with ERZBERGER. The first was consent to direct shipment across Germany. It is expected that this will mean that the troops can reach Poland much sooner than would be possible if they were sent by way of Danzig. The German alternative had been shipment by other Baltic ports, which would have meant even more delay; and the more delay the better the Germans would be satisfied. The second point gained by FOCH—and gained over vehement protest from ERZBERGER—is that in case anything prevents shipment by rail the troops will be sent via Danzig anyway.

This is the real victory. It is a small victory, and it may seem surprising to use that word in connection with disputes between conqueror and conquered; but the spirit of irresolution seems to be so prevalent among statesmen that we have a right to be thankful when FOCH holds out. The Germans asserted that to land the Polish troops at Danzig might mean that some of them would stay, and thus the question would be prejudged in favor of Poland. Also, they suggested that the very landing might lead to disorder and bloodshed. Now it is asserted that the shipment by rail may cause riots. Very well, says FOCH; if there will be rioting anyway, we shall send them through Danzig. And if the German railroad employés strike, as they threaten to do, at Danzig the troops will be landed, regardless of German feelings.

It is significant that the German papers are now urging the railroad employés not to strike for that very reason. The Germans have been trying to bluff; and if FOCH calls their bluff they have nothing behind it. There is not likely to be very serious trouble even if the Poles do land at the old Polish port. The principal lesson of this involved dispute is that the dangers of German recalcitrance have been greatly magnified; that a man who is as firm as FOCH will have comparatively little trouble in making satisfactory settlements with them.

THE FRENCH THEATRE.

A word of recognition is due to the French theatre as it closes its second season and M. COPEAU'S company departs for France. The little theatre with the quaint name on Thirty-fifth Street has been a place of interest for many, and not alone those who are French. Students, in school and out, those who as travelers know the French theatre at its home and those who wish to know the French theatre and cannot travel—and that has included nearly everybody during the period of the war—have found in the Vieux Colombier something more than a place of good entertainment.

M. COPEAU'S répertoire has been very broad. From CORNEILLE to HENRI BERNSTEIN, with a score of authors in between their dates, has been the fare for this season alone. Classics of MOLIERE and LA FONTAINE of the old school, dramatists of the eighteenth century as far apart as MARIVAUX and BEAUMARCHAIS, such a classic of middle nineteenth century comedy as "Le Gendre de M. Poirier," moderns like ROSTAND, CAPUS, and BRIEUX, have been offered to this public. The high ideals of the Copeau company have been maintained throughout the long seasons, and the same conscientious workmanship marks the close of the run as marked the beginning. For this New York can be grateful to M. COPEAU, his company, and those generous supporters of the French theatre who have made the excursion to America possible.

It is to be hoped that a French theatre can be continued in New York. It can never, of course, compete with the native theatre in the bid for the great amusement-seeking crowds of this city. It will have to appeal, outside of the French inhabitants of the city, who are not a great many, to the students and seekers after remoter interests. But there are not a few of them. While we Americanize the foreigner who cannot speak English, a word might be said in behalf of those whose Americanization has progressed so far that they desire to know something of other languages and customs. And first of the foreign tongues and foreign customs will be French. The French Government is interested in the fortunes of French dramatic art in America. If it has the chance, surely New York will repay that interest by attention to a French theatre.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Combining Science With Sport.

There seems to be some doubt if the naval aviator lost at sea was really saved by a homing pigeon, as first reports had it. But however this may be, one result, and a commendable one, of Ensign FINCH'S well-advertised adventure will be to extend popular interest in the breeding, training, and racing of homing pigeons. The practitioners of that art are already numerous in the United States, but it deserves to have many more, for there are few that give room for the display of more intelligence or in which more of science can be brought to bear.

Belgium, in other days, was notable for devotion to this sport, which is, or can be made, something of a business as well, but the Belgian pigeons are mostly gone—the few spared by the Germans having been eaten by the Belgians themselves—and at present the English fanciers probably lead the world. But America is not hopelessly far behind, and shows signs of catching up with the head of the procession.

The homer, or carrier pigeon, as he used to be called—and still is by those not familiar with him—has many pleasing traits to reward the student of his peculiarities. As a messenger he has one weakness—he will carry a message only one way and to only one point. That, however, he will do in spite of enormous difficulties, and, when properly trained, for enormous distances at more than express train speed; and though he has no special or mysterious "sixth sense" to guide him over unknown territory, his performances are often sufficiently remarkable to justify a good deal of the wonder his exploits excite in those who do not know of what his training consists.

Military and Civil Executives.

Careful readers of the advertisements now appearing in the papers must have been struck by the frequency with which important commercial and industrial corporations are appealing for men with training to fill executive positions. It is not in the ordinary "want ads." that these opportunities for notably well-paid employment are offered, but by means of large type and the utilization of enough space to catch the eye. Such advertisements "cost money," as the saying is, but they serve their purpose—that of reaching those to whom they are addressed—and, incidentally, they reveal what is the need found hardest to meet by "big business."

Yet executive ability, in its potential or undeveloped form, is not particularly rare. It is exactly what the United States wanted and had to have when it was confronted suddenly with the unfamiliar task of raising an army of millions, transporting it across the sea, and getting it on the firing line. And the Government found the men, as was shown by the really wonderful efficiency with which the transports were handled, great debarkation stations created in France, new lines of railway built, and mountains of wildly diversified freight carried from the coast to the front.

Not all were chosen who were called to this work, but the number of those who proved efficient proved sufficient, and now there are scores and hundreds of officers, discharged or soon to be discharged, who survived the process of rigid elimination of the unfit that went on in the military schools abroad. And the problems faced—and solved—by these survivors are exactly those of big business. They included the co-ordination of many activities, the tactful handling of many men, and the prompt moving of goods in huge quantities from the place of manufacture to that of consumption.

That the training also taught the close attention to profit and loss in money that big as well as little business demands is somewhat questionable, but that defect, if it exists, is remediable, and the man who proved himself a success in the "S. O. S." ought to be an executive manager worth having by any corporation.

Americans Are Not That Sort.

Bolshevism, so far as the word has a definite meaning other than communism and socialism, of which disparates it seems to be an unstable and mechanical mixture, can have no real attraction except for "proletarians" who have lost either the hope or the desire to escape from the class so designated. It is, therefore, a doctrine or cult either of despair or of conscious incompetence, and that it should have any attraction for American workers is somewhere between impossible and incredible.

For the typical American worker does not think of himself as a man permanently fastened in his present position. He wants to rise, and expects to rise, out of the proletariat—if he has accepted that ugly word as designating his status. He knows it can be done, for he has seen it done in thousands and thousands of cases, and he also knows that his children have open before them upward paths which he may not be able himself to follow.

Why, then, should he be a Bolshevik? As a matter of fact, he isn't. The only American Bolsheviki are of the parlor type; the others here are only residents in America, with no trace of the American spirit, else they would not call themselves proletarians or fail to resent it when the name is applied to them by others.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

As the historian of Winsted is evidently not on the job this week, I take pleasure in informing you that a patriotic Plymouth Rock hen belonging to one of our most respected and veracious fellow-citizens emitted this morning a beautifully colored Easter egg on which was the word "Peace." This is taken by Winsteders as an evidence that by Easter the treaty of peace will have become a fait accompli.

AN ADMIRER.

PROHIBITION SENTIMENT.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The vote of the twenty-eight towns that have changed from "No License" to "License" at the recent elections in this State indicate that the spirit which inspired the "Boston Tea Party" in 1773 still exists in this Commonwealth. It is a fair inference that when the voters realized that personal rights were threatened, and the Constitution was being used to take away the police powers of the State, which that very instrument gives them, (tenth amendment,) they registered their protest in no uncertain manner.

Some of these towns for the first time in the memory of the oldest inhabitants shifted from "No License" to "License," and in South Hadley, the home of Mount Holyoke College, a spirited campaign was conducted by the Prohibitionists, who sent postcards to the homes of the voters on which was printed "Other towns have been caught napping—Vote no." Notwithstanding this it voted "License," the first time since 1897. Perhaps the voters in these towns had a subconsciousness of what the Hon. Elihu Root wrote regarding woman suffrage, (equally applicable to the prohibition amendment,) "I am against having the Constitution of the United States amended so as to impose woman suffrage on the States which do not wish it. * * * I thinx such an attempt would be contrary to the principles of liberty upon which the American Union was established and without which it could not endure. Without the right of local self-government we should lose the better part of our liberty," and what ex-President Taft said, "National prohibition is a dangerous proposition. It would revolutionize the National Government. If national prohibition is passed, local government would be destroyed. And if you destroy local government you destroy one of the things that go to make a healthy condition of the National Government."

THEODORE C. WOODBURY.
Brookline, Mass., April 7, 1919.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Because of the pollution of the Hudson River near that part of the Palisades Interstate Park which lies opposite the Dyckman Street ferry, the Chairman of the Merchants' Association on Pollution and Sewage feels that it is inadvisable "to permit bathing in the Hudson River at this division of the Palisades Interstate Park or picnicking or camping near the water's edge."

Perhaps some day a Chairman of the Merchants' Association on Pollution and Sewage may even go so far as to recommend that steps be taken to prevent the pollution of the river in order that the people of New York and New Jersey may be graciously permitted to use their park for the purpose for which it was intended.

ARTHUR GUITERMAN.

THE AMPHICTYONIC LEAGUE.

Far in the dawn of Time and golden haze
That ever lingers over ancient Greece,
Twelve tribes Hellenic sought to win release
From woe and strife and endless bloody frays
By League Amphictyonic that might raise
A barrier 'gainst war and bind in peace
Their kindred lands and bring to them surcease

And so, on "rocky Pytho's" sunny slope,
At Delphian shrine, Apollo's calm abode,
They met when Spring new beauty brought and hope,
While far below the sacred Pleistus flowed;
And when brown Autumn came, in Thessaly

A city of their League, or small or great,
And if, perchance, one tribe would not await
Their just decision, 'gainst it to deploy
United force, that none might dare employ
Its troops for its own ends, or abrogate
That solemn, sacred pact confederate,

For ages, so we read on History's scroll,
That League preserved profound tranquility!
Its cities prospered 'neath benign control,
Peace brooded o'er the blue Aegean Sea;
And Greece to splendor rose and greatness vast
That still a glory sheds o'er all the Past!

Lo! now emerging slow from darkest cloud
Thrones have been shaken down and Empires proud
Beneath that mighty ruin now are bowed!
And where of late War's deadliest bolts were hurled
We fain would see, like incense sweet upcurled,
Flames from peace altars war may ne'er enshroud!

And now, as in past centuries, we view
Another League, the noblest in Time's tide,
Where nations great are forming compact new
To place a lasting curb on warlike pride!
Once more we wisdom learn from ancient Greece,
But vaster, for we now seek world-wide peace!

Governor Indorses Plan to Substitute Physical Culture.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7.—The abolition of the State Military Training Commission and the transfer of its duties to the State Department of Education is recommended in a report sent to Governor Smith by his Reconstruction Committee and transmitted by the Governor to the Legislature tonight. The commission was created during the Whitman régime to map out a course of military training for boys between 16 and 18 and to supervise their instruction in military tactics.

"We have reached the conclusion, after numerous hearings and careful consideration of the subject, that military training of a technical character for boys, 16, 17, and 18 years of age, is inadvisable, and we therefore recommend that any features of military training which may continue to be used shall be employed solely for such values as they may have in physical, mental, and moral development," the Reconstruction Committee says in its report.

In view of the disclosures of defective physique made in connection with the draft, the committee recommends that health instruction and all-around physical development, including supervised games, receive the greatest possible attention in the schools, and that the State provide for this feature of education as liberally as the condition of the State's finances will permit.

It is further recommended that compulsory continuation schools with physical culture training be established for boys and girls who have been compelled to go to work, in which they may receive additional educational benefits up to the age of 18.

In critically surveying the Whitman plan of military training for boys, the Reconstruction Committee found that it reached only one-third of the 300,000 boys in this State that it was intended it should reach, chiefly owing to a system of exemptions; that it interfered needlessly with the regular school work; that it was too brief to accomplish any beneficial result, and that it created "a false and temporary obedience."

A bill to carry out the recommendations of the committee was introduced. Governor Smith asked for an appropriation of $150,000, sufficient to give the plan a six or seven months' trial.

NEW AGRICULTURE BOARD.

Reorganization Under Commissioner Proposed by Governor to Legislature

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, N. Y., April 7.—Governor Smith tonight sent to the Legislature a special message asking for enactment of a bill to bring the agricultural divisions of the State under a singleheaded commission empowered to reorganize and revise the various bureaus, with retention of the Farms and Markets Council purely in an advisory capacity. This action followed the resignation today of John Mitchell as President of the council. He will also resign as a member.

With the message went another asking the Legislature to appropriate $50,000 additional to the $10,000 proposed to be given the Governor for investigation purposes under the Moreland act. This move is regarded as indicative of an immediate investigation of the various agricultural boards and divisions.

The plan under which the Agricultural Department is now working was initiated by ex-Governor Whitman.

"It is apparent to all that the plan has not worked well in operation," the Governor said in his message. "The department is undoubtedly overmanned, extravagant, theoretical, and too far removed from the very people it was intended to assist."

Senator John J. Mackrell, Democrat, of Rensselaer, introduced the Reorganization bill sought by the Governor. It provides a commissioner of agriculture at $10,000 a year, to be elected by the Farms and Markets Council. The measure provides for two divisions in the department—an Agricultural Division and a Division of Foods and Markets.

A bill carrying out the Governor's request for $50,000 additional for investigating purposes, was also introduced tonight. Senator Sage, Chairman of the Finance Committee, declared the Governor's request would be granted.

The legislative leaders are endeavoring to persuade Raymond A. Pearson, formerly State Commissioner of Agriculture, to come to Albany and take charge of the reorganization. The State Dairymen's League is opposed to Pearson.

WOULD CURB LANDLORDS.

Justice Says Property Owners Are Spreading Bolshevism.

More than 350 tenants, some women with one or more small children, appeared yesterday in the Bronx Municipal Court to ask Justice Robitzek to take some action either to prevent landlords from raising rents or to delay their eviction, usually for nonpayment of rent, from apartments in many parts of the Bronx. Beyond extending the time when eviction notices became effective, the Justice could do but little for those who came before him.

Trial was ordered in the case of twenty-five tenants of an apartment house at 774 Washington Avenue. It was charged that their rents had been raised and leases terminated by the 173d Street Realty Company, the reason assigned for declaring leases terminated being that the property had changed title. In another case twenty-four tenants of 624 East 136th Street were reprimanded for instituting a rent strike. One of the tenants had been ordered out, and the other tenants thereupon refused to pay rent.

"Bronx landlords are evicting tenants indiscriminately so they can get higher rent," said Justice Robitzek. "This sort of rent raising is practically encouraging Bolshevism. They are doing their best to spread that disease. Something should be done to curb unscrupulous property owners. It is up to the Legislature to take some drastic action. A law should be passed licensing landlords. They should be allowed a reasonable profit, and when they attempt to obtain more their license should be withheld."

FORM PATRIOTIC LEAGUE.

Women of the Episcopal Church Organize for Peace Work.

Women of the Episcopal Church who have been doing war work met at a luncheon conference at the Hotel Biltmore yesterday and formed the Churchwomen's League for Patriotic Service. Mrs. Hamilton R. Fairfax of the Colonial Dames of the State of New York was made President. Many clergymen were present, the Rev. Dr. William T. Manning of Trinity presiding. Mrs. Herbert L. Satterlee proposed that the league should be organized, and the name of Mrs. Fairfax as President was suggested by Mrs. E. Walpole Warren. At the speakers' table were Miss Warren, Mrs. Seth Low, and Mrs. Richard T. Hoe.

Several clergy and laymen told of the work women could do in time of peace. Dr. Manning spoke on the "Call of the Country," Major A. G. Thatcher on the "Army and Citizenship," the Rev. Richard T. Henshaw on the "Dullness of Peace," John J. Chapman on the "Spirit of Work," Dr. Ellsworth Eliot on "The Reality of the Need," and Bishop Thomas on the "Church's Challenge to Churchwomen."

An Organization Committee was selected whose members are Miss Emie S. Day, 32 East Sixty-fourth Street, Chairman; Mrs. Hugh H. Baxter, Mrs. Walter Jennings, Mrs. Dunlevy Milbank, Mrs. C. Chauncey Stillman, Mrs. William C. Sturgis, Mrs. Frederick W. Rhinelander, and Miss Warren.

SENATORS DEBATE LEAGUE OF NATIONS

MONROE DOCTRINE CLASH

Lenroot Declares Principle Must Be Upheld or Senate Will Change Covenant.

Senator Gilbert M. Hitchcock, Chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, predicted last night at the dinner of the Economic Club in the Hotel Astor that the revised covenant for the League of Nations, soon to be made public in Paris, would contain some provision to prevent the League from assuming jurisdiction over the domestic legislation of a nation.

Although Irvine L. Lenroot, the Republican member of the Senate who was invited also to discuss the League of Nations, pointed out that this speech, like that of Senator Hitchcock, had been prepared and printed before the dinner, sharp differences of opinion on the principles of the League developed so that the discussion became a debate without rebuttals.

One of these sharp differences of opinion developed upon the proposal that an article be included in the covenant for the preservation of the integrity of the Monroe Doctrine. Senator Hitchcock, who spoke first, said that he would like to see such a reservation made if it were possible to obtain its inclusion in the document. He said he believed that the President was attempting to meet all the demands of public opinion, and added that if the League were adopted it was probable that the United States would have to make some sacrifice—"to give as well as to take." Some relinquishment or privileges probably would have to be made to obtain the greater benefit of the League of Nations, he said.

Senator Lenroot, in his discussion of the covenant point by point, declared that "if no reservation is made for the Monroe Doctrine I can say positively that it will be made when the document comes to the United States Senate for ratification." There was prolonged applause and cheering by the 1,000 persons in the audience when the speaker made this prophecy.

A sharp difference of opinion on the question of partisanism in discussion of the covenant also developed between the two Senators as their speeches were given. Senator Hitchcock said that he was aware that some attempt had been made to drag the discussion of the League into partisan politics, and he said he deplored this "because it is the greatest question the world has ever faced." Then he paid tribute to the campaigning of ex-President Taft on behalf of the League of Nations.

The Senator from Wisconsin said that, despite the provision that four of the nine nations that were members of the Executive Council were elective by the body of delegates, it was fairly certain that these members would remain the same for a long period. Speaking of the first seven articles of the proposed covenant, he said that he thought some provision ought to be made for the inclusion of Germany after she had become fully repentant, and he added that "we must treat her fairly when that time comes or she will organize another League of Nations in opposition to ours."

Senator Hitchcock had made a point that, unless the League were accepted by the world, the cost of maintaining and building armaments for defense would be crushing upon all peoples and that taxation in all countries would be reduced by the peace guarantees of the new world constitution. In speaking of this question Senator Lenroot said that he did not wish to push the cost of our participation in the League as an argument against it, but declared that it was his belief that the adoption of the plan for the League of Nations would cost this nation more in money in the next fifty years than if the nation remained out of it.

One of the heavy expenses that would be thrust upon this nation, he said, would be the payment of the pro rata shares of losses in commerce to be made by all nations when a punitive boycott was enforced against some nation. Troubles would be sure to come in the Balkans, or other remote countries, he said, and the United States would be required to make up to merchants of other nations their losses suffered by boycott even when we had little or no commerce with the country which the members of the League had decided it was necessary to coerce into recognition of the principles of the covenant.

Large numbers of representative New York people, guests of the President and members of the Board of Trustees of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, attended the opening view of the Courbet loan exhibition at the museum, celebrating the centenary of the great French painter and realist. Americans were among the first to appreciate the value of Courbet's work and many of the finest examples were brought to this country while they were still obtainable. This collection is said to be the finest ever brought together with the exception of two shown in France. There are forty pictures with a wide variety of subjects. They are loaned by museums, private collectors and three by New York art dealers. FEWER IN DISTRESS, BUT NEED MORE KEEN

TELLS OF ITS YEAR'S WORK

Survey Shows That Increase In Wages Has Not Equaled Advance In Cost of Living.

Fewer families were in need of aid in the year 1918, but their distress was generally severe, according to the annual report of the Charity Organization Society, which was made public yesterday. There was practically no unemployment, and the suffering was confined to families who had lost the bread winners through death or disability. The society acknowledged the gifts from readers of THE NEW YORK TIMES in the following paragraph:

"THE NEW YORK TIMES makes an appeal annually for 'The Hundred Neediest Cases,' under the care of the Charity Organization Society and three other societies. In response to this appeal the Charity Organization Society received $18,631.50." The names of the contributors are included in the list printed in the report.

The report points out the difficulties encountered in carrying out the mission of the society last year because of the large number of its workers engaged in war work.

"Notwithstanding this serious draft upon our resources," it continues, "the work of the society in all its departments had been effectively carried on without diminution. The families in our care have received even greater attention than ever before. The work of our Tenement House, Tuberculosis Prevention, and Criminal Courts Committees proceeded normally. Our School of Philanthropy has had a larger attendance and has done greater service than ever before.

"The tremendous increase in cost of everything requisite for family support made it necessary to spend more money on a smaller number of families than in the preceding year on a larger number. The Committee on Home Economics made an interesting survey of the cost of living in the case of families receiving relief from the society and a number of families self-sustaining. The inquiries developed that, in spite of the fact that the wages of unskilled workers generally had advanced, only two-fifths of the families interviewed reported an increase in the family income; and even in these cases the increase was due to the fact that women and children had gone to work, and not to the fact that the normal bread winners had received actual wage increases. In most cases the wage increases were slight in amount and far less than the proportionate increase in living costs.

"The thirty-sixth year of the Charity Organization Society was a period during which no person able to work, and willing, lacked the opportunity to earn living wages; even those who, because of mental or physical defects fell below average standards, were able to sell such labor as they could furnish. Many families, as shown in the report of the Home Economics Committee, did not earn more than in normal times, and for these the abnormal cost of living proved a trying experience; but every body who could work was employed to the extent of his ability at fair compensation. As a natural consequence the burdens of the Charity Organization Society for family relief diminished numerically as compared with other years. During the year ended Sept. 30, 1918, there were under the care of the fourteen district committees of the society 4,281 families. One thousand three hundred and ninety-two of these were brought over from the year before. One thousand three hundred and fourteen were reapplications from families which had been known in some previous year, while 1,575 families had never been known to the society before. The total volume of this work represented a decrease of 15.5 per cent. from the previous year.

"The unthinking might say, 'So the society's usefulness has been lessened during the last year.' On the contrary, the society feels that perhaps never before has it been enabled to do work so nearly approaching the standard of what it would like to do. Times of unemployment and widespread suffering call willy-nilly for emergency treatment, and it is oftentimes impossible at such seasons for the most conscientious worker to give the sort of treatment which will be not only a cure but a prevention of recurrence. The true task of the case worker, which is the reconstruction of lives that have somehow gone wrong, becomes obscured at such times by a flood of what might be called adventitious distress. During the last year our problem has stood out clearly, uncomplicated by accidental unemployment, and our workers have realized the opportunity given them. Having fewer families to deal with, we have been able to bring about better results, and we feel that a large number of families have been put on their feet permanently so that they will not need to reapply to us."

Rocky Mountain Club Dines Tonight

The Rocky Mountain Club's dinner in honor of the 91st Division of "Wild West" troops will be held tonight in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria. The dinner also marks the anniversary of King Albert of Belgium's birth, and the date was set in his honor on account of his interest in the 91st Division. General Coleman du Pont will be toastmaster. Besides the club members there will be present officers and men of the 91st Division, General Daniel C. Shanks, Colonel D. A. Watt, Major E. A. Robbins, Colonel Cavanaugh, Colonel Lewis Sorley, D. A. Pickering, John Hays Hammond, and others.

A. B. de St. M. D'Hervilly.

A. B. de St. M. D'Hervilly, on the staff of the Metropolitan Museum of Art for the last twenty-six years and for the last eight Assistant Curator of Paintings, died suddenly of heart disease yesterday morning as he was preparing to leave his home, 4 West 129th Street, for the museum. Mr. D'Hervilly was a member of a distinguished French family living in Haiti at the time of the great uprising of the blacks, when they fled to New York for safety. Mr. D'Hervilly was born in this city. He was one of the oldest members of the museum staff, a man with a charming feeling for art, and a quaint sense of humor. One of his talents was skill with the pen and at one time all of the engrossing done for the museum was his work.

RABBIS SUPPORT WILSON.

Cincinnati, April 7.—Necessity for Jewish religious education to adjust itself to the new problems which have arisen as a result of the war was emphasized by Rabbi David Lefkowitz of Dayton, Ohio, in an address at the convention of the Central Conference of American Rabbis, held at the Hebrew Union College this morning.

The annual election of the organization resulted in the selection of Leo N. Franklin of Detroit, formerly of Cincinnati, for President. Other officers elected were: Vice President, Edward N. Calisch of Richmond, Va.; Treasurer, Abraham Simon of Washington, D. C.; Recording Secretary, Isaac Marcuson of Macon, Ga.; Corresponding Secretary, Felix A. Levy of Chicago; Executive Board, Louis Grossman of Cincinnati, Chairman; Louis Wolsey of Cleveland, Henry Berkowitz of Philadelphia, Martin Meyer of San Francisco, Samuel Hirschberg of Chicago, Henry Englander of Cincinnati, Clifford H. Levy of New York, Max C. Currick of Erie, Pa.; George Solomon of Savannah, Ga.; David Lefkowitz of Dayton, Ohio; Marcus Salsman of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; Advisory Board, William Fineshreiber of Memphis, Tenn., and Jacob N. Kaplan, Cincinnati.

"The Central Conference of American Rabbis assures you of its support in your endeavor to establish a League of Nations and to secure just peace for mankind. We earnestly hope that the covenant provide definite guarantees for the political emancipation and religious freedom for the racial and religious minorities in all countries, especially in the new States to be created."

A resolution deploring the death of Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was passed, a copy of which was sent to Mrs. Roosevelt.

The session was the last of the convention, and was marked by many farewells among visiting rabbis, who will not meet until the next convention next year. The place of the meeting is to be decided by the Executive Board of the Conference at its meeting next October.

WOMEN DENOUNCE ALBANY LEADERS

CHEERS FOR GOV. SMITH

About 500 men and 100 women, representing women's organizations and labor unions, applauded speakers at Cooper Union last night who denounced the Republican leaders at Albany for blocking action on social bills and adopted resolutions declaring they would hold the Republican Party in the State responsible if the measures were smothered in committee.

Mrs. Norman de R. Whitehouse, Chairman James P. Boyle of the Legislative Committee of the Brooklyn Federated Union, President Edward I. Hannah of the Central Federated Union, and a number of other speakers charged that the bills, many affecting the welfare of women, were held in committee by Republican leaders, who were acting in behalf of employing interests.

Governor Alfred E. Smith was cheered when words of his in favor of legislation of this character were read by Abram I. Elkus.

Mrs. Whitehouse said many of the legislators, especially men from upcountry districts, thought there was something wildly radical and revolutionary in legislation which had been in effect in England and other countries for many years.

Mrs. Whitehouse said the method of the legislative leaders was to idle away time during most of the session and create a jam in the last few days. "This serves two very useful purposes for the leaders," she said. "It enables them to kill bills which they don't want and to pass without public comment bills on which they don't want the public to have a chance to comment.

"The group in Albany which is strangling our program are not liberal men, but they are powerful. They have grown accustomed to their power, and they mean to use it. They feel themselves czars there in the Legislature. They believe their judgment is better than that of the electorate—they say so. They feel, these men who are reproached with representing only 10 per cent. of the voters, that they must protect the voters from themselves, or perhaps from the 90 per cent. We, the voters, have let them grow into this attitude and have let them accumulate their power. They have accumulated it almost to the point of destroying representative government in this State. The fault is not theirs, it is ours. We have not been vigilant. But now, when the whole world is seeing a new light, it is time for us, the voters, to take up our own responsibilities and see if we cannot rescue our representative government and make it work."

Mrs. Whitehouse said the women who were making a fight for a bill in Albany had found one Senator who asserted that the war was due to Germany treating her laboring classes too well, creating a spirit which made war necessary. She said this legislator had asserted that tendencies toward Bolshevism could be checked only by repressive legislation.

The bills which were advocated at the meeting are known as the Minimum Wage bill, the Eight Hour bill, the Health Insurance bill, the Transportation bill, the Elevator bill, and the Office Workers bill.

Mr. Hannah provoked both cheers and hisses when he denounced legislators in general for giving the people prohibition which he said they did not want and withholding measures of social justice which they did want. The word "Bolshevism," it mentioned frequently, also received both hisses and applause.

WOMEN TO AID VICTORY LOAN

National League of Women's Service Will Work in Next Drive.

Hundreds of women who filled the Peacock Room of the Hotel Commodore yesterday afternoon at a meeting, called by the National League for Women's Service, signed pledges for Liberty Loan work. Mrs. Coffin Van Rensselaer presided.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank gave figures regarding previous Liberty Loan drives and told of the use to which the money raised in the present drive would go. Much of it will go for the care of men disabled in the war, she said, and that they would be cared for as men never had been cared for under similar conditions. She told of a former floor walker in a store now incapacitated by the loss of a leg who was showing great capacity in his studies to become a throat and nose specialist, and of a sign painter who had lost both legs and had now become an illustrator. Mrs. Fairbank told of the big university at Bonn, on the left bank of the Rhine, the largest English-speaking university in the world, to be used for the instruction of disabled American soldiers, with other similar institutions to be built in the United States.

"The boys expressed that determination on the battlefields," said Mrs. Fairbank, "and we women will express it at home."

Colonel William Hayward told of the bravery of his colored troops and how in 191 days' fighting not one of them was taken prisoner, and they did not lose a trench or a foot of ground. "Those strong black hands spread crêpe all over Germany," he said.

Chaplain Herbert Shipman said he did not know that when the men went abroad and offered their lives it was necessary to urge people here to give merely money.

Women workers are to be selected immediately, it was announced. The little Liberty Bank at Madison Square is to be moved in front of the Metropolitan Life Building and the Altar of Liberty, near the Victory Arch, will be fitted again for service.

Presidents at Hegeman Funeral.

The Executive Committee of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, at a meeting in the association's office at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, named a committee to represent the organization at the funeral of John Rogers Hegeman, President of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company, at New Rochelle, tomorrow morning at 11:30 o'clock. The following were named as the committee: Morgan G. Bulkeley, Louis F. Butler, W. A. Day, Forrest F. Dryden, John M. Holcombe, George E. Ide, Roland O. Lamb, Dr. John P. Munn, Charles A. Peabody, Asa S. Wing, George T. Wight. Mr. Hegeman died Sunday at his home at Hamaroneck, N. Y. The funeral will be held at the Salem Baptist Church, New Rochelle.

MRS. VIRGINIA P. BACON DIES

Mrs. Virginia Purdy Bacon, widow of Walter Rathbone Bacon, traction magnate of the British Isles, and granddaughter of the late Commodore Cornelius Vanderbilt, died yesterday at her home, 247 Fifth Avenue, of a complication of diseases. She was the youngest daughter of Mrs. Katherine Juliette Vandesbilt-Lafitte of Bordeaux, and was educated in that city.

Until her marriage to the late Mr. Bacon she lived in Bordeaux. In recent years she had divided her time between New York, London, and Bordeaux. She had been active in philanthropic work since the war, being one of the first to donate to the Red Cross and other war work societies paintings from the extensive collection of her brother-in-law, the late Edward R. Bacon, for auction and sale.

Mrs. Bacon, who was an accomplished musician, was a patron of painting and music and had devoted much of her time and money to the advancement of the arts. In the Metropolitan Museum there were recently installed two important works taken from the Bacon collection, being presented in commemoration of her husband and brother-in-law.

HUMBERT ON THE LETTER.

Was Not Recommendation to J. P. Morgan & Co., Senator Says.

PARIS, April 7.—At the resumption today of the trial of Senator Charles Humbert, who is charged with having had commerce with the enemy, reference was made to the visit of Bolo Pacha to the United States.

M. Humbert declared that he never gave Bolo Pacha a letter of recommendation to the banking firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. in New York, but merely a few lines informing Morgan & Co. that Bolo was about to deposit 1,000,000 francs to Humbert's existing account in the Morgan bank.

Mrs. Agnes S. Wittenberg.

Mrs. Agnes Scheftel Wittenberg, widow of Charles J. Wittenberg, died of pneumonia in Philadelphia Sunday. She was on her way home from Atlantic City when she became ill. Her husband, who was President of the Pocahontas and New River Coal Company and the Wittenberg Coal Company, died about three weeks ago. Mrs. Wittenberg lived at 33 West Fiftieth Street. She was a daughter of Adolf Scheftel, and was in her forty-ninth year.

Robert James Ferns.

Robert James Ferns, President, Treasurer, and General Manager of the Mooney & Boland Detective Agency, 152 Broadway, died Saturday in Roosevelt Hospital of heart disease. Mr. Ferns was born in this city in 1858, and for more than forty years was general manager of the detective agency. Mr. Ferns was well known to bankers of the city. Among the famous cases handled by Mr. Ferns was that of Charles Becker, who was convicted in 1881 for forging French bank notes. Becker had duplicated the currency of every country in the Old and New Worlds in which he and his cosmopolitan band of counterfeiters operated. Mr. Ferns also worked confidentially for the United States Government and for other Governments. His home was at New Rochelle.

RED SOX TROUNCE GIANTS IN NINTH

BOSTON PLAYERS SPIKED

Special to The New York Times.

GAINESVILLE, Fla., April 7.—The Giants are proving a veritable team of Joe Grims in their series with the Red Sox. The Boston Americans did some more world's championship work here today and when it was over McGraw's team was on the wrong end. The Red Sox made it three straight, winning this afternoon's game in the ninth inning by a score of 4 to 2.

Both of Barrow's first string catchers were cut down in action and at the finish the Red Sox had to string along with McNeil, a green youngster from Providence. Wallie Schang was spiked by Art Fletcher in the third inning, getting a gash in his right arm. In the fifth inning Earl Smith's spikes bored a hole in Walters's right leg, and he, too, limped out of action. Both injuries were received while the Boston catchers were cutting off runs at the plate. Neither man was seriously injured and both players should be back in action in a few days.

Gainesville turned out almost to a man for this afternoon's game, and they rooted and tooted their horns for the Giants as long as their throats and auto norns held out. They were all set for a big, rousing cheer to bestow on Bob Steele if he had been able to extract himself from a situation in the ninth whereby he had the bases full with no one out. Steele got rid of two men without a score, and the noise after Fletcher caught McNally's fly nearly raised the grandstand roof. It would have been blown clear off had Steele also succeeded in retiring Strunk. But the grandstand was saved. Strunk knocked a single clear over second base and sent in the two runs that won for Boston.

The crowd was about 3,000, quite an assemblage for a 10,000 town. His Honor the Mayor, Gordon G. Tyson, started the game by pitching the first ball. Carl Mays and Red Causey were the opposing pitchers, and the natives especially were strong for the red head. He is a native son of the Orange State.

The Red Sox got two pretty lucky runs in the second inning. Fletcher's fumble on McInnis, the only error of the game, put McInnis on base with none out. On the hit and run play Vitt sharply singled to left, sending Stuffy to second. Scott tried to sacrifice but forced McInnis at third. Schang, however, singled to centre, scoring Vitt. Mays forced Scott, but Hooper's single scored Schang. That was a lucky hit, as it was a high bounder which cleared Zimmerman's head.

Mays retired the Giants in order in the first two innings. They got to him for five hits in the fourth, but were able to squeeze only two runs out of it. Young doubled, and scored on Chase's single. Kauff lashed out his first hit of the series, but Doyle selected this unfavorable moment to hit into a double play. Zimmerman followed with a line single, scoring Kauff, and Fletcher also singled, but McCarty forced him. The Giants tripped over a great opportunity in the fifth when Earl Smith, batting for Causey, hit Bush's first pitch for a triple, but was out at the plate on Young's bounder to McNally. It was on this play that Walters was hurt.

Steele, who had succeeded Causey in the fifth, had a temporary collapse in the ninth. Scott opened on him with a three-base hit, and then Steele filled the bases by walking the Boston battery, McNeil and Bush, getting over only one strike in nine pitched balls. For a few moments it looked as though Steele might get out of the mess, as Hooper hit to Chase, who forced Scott at the plate, and McNally popped to Fletcher, but Strunk singled over second, scoring McNeil and Bush. The ferocious Ruth then fanned for the second time.

BEGIN TENNIS PRACTICE.

Yale Has Six Regulars from Last Year's Team.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., April 7.—Yale's tennis team today began practice under Captain Charley Garland, who registered the leading six players of the team last season, which was the strongest that ever represented Yale. Garland ranked eighth in the national rating, while Kenneth Simmons was champion of Montana and Idaho. L. H. Wiley, Robert Hamill, John B. Morse, and Maxwell Banks, regulars last year, will again compete. The schedule has been revised and several games added. The list officially arranged is as follows:

May 3, Fordham College at New Haven; 8, Trinity College at New Haven; 10, Rutgers at New Haven; 18, Massachusetts Institute of Technology at New Haven; 21, Columbia University at New Haven; 24, Princeton at Princeton; 31, Harvard at New Haven; June 7, West Side Athletic Club at Forest Hill, L. I.

TILDEN AND RICHARDS WIN.

Special to The New York Times.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 7.—The first round of the men's singles in the North and South tennis tournament was disposed of today. Tilden Richards and Kumagae easily outclassed their opponents, while Voshell drew a bye.

Kumagae was opposed by J. S. Nicholl of the Longwood Country Club, and won by 6—1, 6—2. Richards played against J. L. McBride of the Benavon Country Club, and won easily in two love sets. Tilden defeated N. A. Rose of Longwood, 6—1, 6—2.

Fliegel Captain of C. C. N. Y. Five.

The election of Hyman Fliegel as Captain of the basket ball team of the College of the City of New York for the season 1919-1920, was announced yesterday. Fliegel has played guard on the 'Varsity for the past two seasons. Before coming to the college, Fliegel played on the De Witt Clinton gridiron and court teams.

ROI CRAIG WINS HANDICAP.

BOWIE, Md., April 7.—The Advance Handicap, the feature of today's racing card at Prince George Park, was won by Roi Craig after a hard drive in the stretch with Duchess Lace. Roi Craig got away well and set a fast pace and, although tiring in the stretch, held on gamely and won by more than a length. Duchess Lace made a bold bid for first place and for a time looked like a winner, but swerved badly in the stretch.

There was a close finish in the sixth race, for four-year-olds, G. M. Miller gamely holding on to the lead just long enough to come through by a neck. The two-year-old event went to Calvert, which raced into the lead early, but was closely pursued by Paul Jones and barely won in a hard drive.

Loyal Peter scored a decisive victory in the second race, for three-year-olds, and proved the best of a large field. Tiger Rose got away to a bad start in the third race, which was won by Refugee. The Pending entry moved into an early lead, but was tiring fast as Kingling II came along, and Refugee was just able to hold on long enough to win by a length.

The summaries:

BROOKLYN TEAMS IN TIE.

Manager Robinson Assembles His Regular Outfield.

Special to The New York Times.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 7.—Manager Robinson of the Dodgers had the outfield trio with which he will start the race working together today for the first time since the club started training here. They played in the game this afternoon between the regulars and the Yannigans, and included Captain Zach Wheat, Hy Myers, and Tommy Griffith. Wheat held down fourth place in the batting array of the regulars. He was at the plate three times, but failed to crack out a safe hit. He drew a pass once, and the last time up he hit into a double play. The game went eight rounds, and when it was halted the sides were on even terms, each having scored two runs.

Cheney twirled the first four rounds for the regulars, and was relieved by Cadoer. Mamaux started for the Yannigans, and after pitching four innings he gave way to Marquard. The Yannigans scored their two tallies in the first inning. They were the result of a single by Adams, a hit batsman, Hickman's single, and an error by Olson. The regulars scored their first run in the third round, when Malone singled and went to second on a sacrifice. He scored on Cheney's hit to left. Their last run was made in the seventh, when Johnston singled and Nagle sacrificed. Griffith followed with a single, and Johnston scored. Ollie O'Mara is suffering from a slight attack of stomach trouble, and did not play in the game. Nagle covered the far corner, and showed up well. O'Mara may be able to take jart in tomorrow's game with the Yankees.

PREPARE NAVY OARSMEN.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., April 7.—Coach Glendon of the Naval Academy crews began special instruction this afternoon in preparation for the races against the 'Varsity, second 'Varsity, and freshman crews of the University of Pennsylvania, which will take place here next Saturday. Tomorrow there will be a period of the same length.

The crews are in good condition, and all the oarsmen are eager for the contests next Saturday.

Lipton Changes Deed of Gift.

CLEVELAND, April 7.—Sir Thomas J. Lipton has changed the deed of gift of the Lipton Trophy for Class R yachts so that the annual race for this championship cup will be held here this Summer off Rocky River, according to a telegram received here today from H. A. Parson, representative of the Cleveland Yacht Club, who had been in conference with Sir Thomas.

LEWIS COMES TO RESCUE OF YANKS

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., April 7.—Miller Huggins's regulars and yannigans battled eight innings here this afternoon, the game ending with the score 5 to 5. Duffy Lewis saved the regulars from another defeat with a single to centre in the eighth, chasing home Pratt, who had doubled. Huggins was working his pitchers in relays of four innings each, and he declined to alter this program in order to have the contest go to a decision.

The game marked the first appearance of Ernie Shore on the mound, except in batting practice. The former Red Sox boxman pitched the first four innings for the rookies, showing an easy motion, plenty of speed, and an occasional curve. He kept the regulars' hits well scattered, but was scored on twice in the first inning. Pipp hit a triple to left with Peck on first base, and the first baseman followed Peck home when Mooers did some slow fielding on Pratt's roller.

The remainder of the pitching fell to youngsters, Brady relieving Shore in the yannigans' lineup, while Nelson and Ferguson did the hurling for the big fellows. The regulars had one good inning at Brady's expense, and the yannigans repeated against Ferguson. Otherwise the pitchers held the upper hand.

Derrill Pratt led in the hitting with a double and two singles, but had a bad day in the field, making two of the three errors charged against the regulars. O'Doul, Vick, and Ward did the heavy hitting for the Yannigans. O'Doul got a triple and a single which figured in three of the five runs recorded by the rookies, Ward got two doubles and Vick got a double and a single.

Halas returned to the regulars after a layoff of a week and had a very bad day with the stick. He walked on his first appearance at the plate and fanned one each of his three subsequent chances to do some hitting. Shore registered the first strike out and Brady followed with two more. The weather was about the best the Yanks have had here.

Secretary Harry Sparrow, who joined the club here last night, announced today that arrangements had been completed for exhibition games between the Yankees and the Rochester Internationals to be played at Cambridge, Md., on Friday, April 18, and at Wilmington, Del., on Saturday, April 19. Frank Baker will join the club at Cambridge. The players will go into New York from Wilmington on the evening of April 19.

MOORE WINS TWO TITLES.

Captures Mile and Half-Mile Skating Championships.

Joe Moore of the Ice Skating Palace captured two metropolitan district ice skating titles last night in the 181st Street Rink. He was the victor in the one-mile championship and the half-mile title race. In both competitions he defeated formidable fields.

Moore took the mile title in 3:13 1-5, after a close struggle with Al Leitch of the Verona Skating Club. These two skaters "jumped" the remainder of the field after covering ten laps, and for the rest of the distance had a nip and tuck struggle. Moore could not shake off his rival until two laps from the finish line, when Leitch stumbled. Before the latter recovered himself Moore had gained five yards. Moore finished about one yard ahead of Leitch.

In the half-mile race Moore's margin of superiority was more convincing. He advanced to an early lead and gradually opened up a gap on his rivals. In the battle for second place Bobby Hearne and William Murphy fought a hotly contested battle, which ended in favor of Hearne by the proverbial eyelash. The time for this race was 1:31 4-5.

A one-mile handicap race resulted in a victory for E. Ahrens of the Palace Skating Club, who had an allowance of fifty yards. Ahrens skated the distance in 3:25.

The summaries:

One-Mile Race, Metropolitan Championship.—Won by Joe Moore, Ice Palace Skating Club; Al Leitch, Verona Skating Club, second; Robert Hearne, Ice Palace Skating Club, third. Time—3:13 1-5.

Half-Mile Race, Metropolitan Championship.—Won by Joe Moore, Ice Palace Skating Club; Robert Hearne, Ice Palace Skating Club, second; William Murphy, Riverside Skating Club, third. Time—1:31 4-5.

One-Mile Race, Handicap.—Won by E. Ahrens, Palace Skating Club, (50 yards;) G. Ormstadt, Palace Skating Club, (20 yards,) second; K. Boyd, Palace Skating Club, (20 yards,) third. Time—3:25.

PATTERSON WINS AGAIN.

Defeats Levine Handily in Three-Cushion Match.

Earl Patterson of Chicago scored another victory last night in the national amateur three-cushion carom billiard championship tournament at the Amateur Billiard Club. Patterson trounced Harry Levine by the score of 50 to 35 in 114 innings. The contest was decided in one and one-half hours, the fastest of the tournament to date. Patterson led throughout and recorded many difficult shots. The Chicagoan had two runs of four as his best efforts. Levine's highest runs were two of three points each.

W. M. Flinn and Patterson were to have contested in an afternoon match, but the game was abandoned because of illness to Flinn. This match will be decided this evening.

CLAIM WATER POLO TITLE.

Players on Columbia Team Are Awarded Letters.

The Columbia University Committee on Athletics virtually claimed championship honors in water polo in the intercollegiate swimming league by awarding 'Varsity letters yesterday to members of the water polo team that represented the Blue and White. When the league season closed Princeton's victory over Columbia in a game played at Princeton in February was in dispute. The Intercollegiate Association has not decided upon the matter.

The men awarded the minor sports 'Varsity "C" were Jack Hyde, Captain of the team; P. G. Kindelberger, '19; R. R. Rogers, '19; I. T. Rosen, '20; L. S. Salmon, '20, and G. B. Kelley, '19, manager.

Scudder Wins Close Game.

Fay Scudder triumphed over Anthony Ortiz last night in a close game at three-cushion billiards in the metropolitan championship tournament of the A. A. B. A. at Doyle's Academy, by the score of 35 to 31 in seventy-seven innings.

Dean Mathey Wins at Tennis.

LONDON, April 7.—Major Dean Mathey of the American Army won his set in the first round of the covered courts tennis championship at the Queen's Club today. He defeated Captain N. Dicks by 6—1, 7—5, 6—2.

STEINBUGLER IS VICTOR.

Defeats Servatius in Amateur Balk-line Tourney.

Charles J. Steinbugler, the young Brooklyn billiardist, scored the first victory in the annual amateur handicap balk-line billiard tournament for the Poggenburg Cup, which opened yesterday at the Rational Recreation Academy in Brooklyn. Steinbugler defeated the vetran Louis A. Servatius by 115 to 96, in thirty-one innings. The young Brooklynite played in excellent stroke and led his older rival throughout.

Servatius failed frequently to gauge the speed of the table. The veteran only threatened his young opponent in the ninth inning and again in the twenty-fifth. In the ninth inning he played a massé to hold the balls on the end rail. In the tenth inning, with a brilliant display of ability, he gathered eighteenth points. In the nineteenth inning a cluster of nineteen put Servatius in front by 81 to 67. Steinbugler rallied strongly in the closing innings.

In the evening Julian Rice, former Columbia student, defeated Charles Worcester in one-sided fashion. Rice was playing for 175 points against his rival's 115. The former Blue and White student completed his string of 175 points in twenty-three innings, while Worcester was gathering 87. The victor made two runs of 27 and another of 25. Worcester's best run was 16.

The tournament will be continued this evening, when two games will be decided.

SUNDAY BALL BILL PASSED.

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, April 7.—The Assembly late tonight passed the bill permitting Sunday baseball, with a local option rider, by a vote of 82 to 60. The bill now goes to Governor Smith, having already passed the Senate. Governor Smith is expected to sign it.

The measure was debated for nearly two hours before passage.

Winners at Paris Tonight Will Enter Army Olympic Games.

PARIS, April 7.—The finals in the boxing and wrestling championships of the American Expeditionary Force will begin tonight at the Cirque de Paris, the famous arena where important boxing bouts have been staged in recent years. More than 100 boxers and wrestlers are entered for the finals. They are the winners in the company, battalion, regimental, divisional, and corps matches conducted during the Winter throughout the American Expeditionary Force.

The final winners in each class will represent the Armerican Army in France in the interallied Olympic games to be held in Paris in June under the auspices of the American Army.

Old-Time Referee Dead.

NEW ORLEANS, April 7.—John Fitzpatrick, who refereed the fight in Mississippi City, in which John L. Sullivan won the world's championship from Paddy Ryan and the seventy-five-round fight between Sullivan and Jake Kilrain at Richburg, Miss., died at his home here today aged 75. At the time of his death he was State Tax Collector. He was Mayor of New Orleans from 1892 to 1896.

JAY GOULD TAKES TITLE AT SQUASH

Jay Gould, the world's champion court tennis player, won his first squash tennis title yesterday when he defeated Harold D. Bulkley in the final for the club championship at the Columbia University Club. The squash tennis game is comparatively new to Gould and he has been playing it only a couple of seasons. If he continues to improve as he has this season, it will not be long before Gould will be the most prominent figure of the squash tennis courts. He defeated Bulkley easily yesterday, 15—3, 15—7, 15—4.

Gould, who undoubtedly is the most famous amateur in court tennis history, has taken up the squash game to get into shape for a court tennis campaign next Fall, when he expects to defend his title. Just now he is over weight, but displayed remarkable speed and skill in yesterday's match in spite of this handicap.

His most effective shots yesterday were terrific smashes which came away from the walls with such speed that Bulkley was at a loss to reach them. Not only was Gould a hard smasher but he had wonderful control and placed with accuracy. He sent the ball around the court repeatedly for placement aces and his corner-to-corner drives caused Bulkley no end of confusion.

The first game was a runaway affair for Gould. After Bulkley had scored two aces, Gould had a productive hand which netted him nine aces in succession. With this commanding lead, Gould had no trouble in running out his string of fifteen. During this rally Gould made many terrific kills off the front wall and on his 'round the court drives he placed the ball so low that the few returns that Bulkley attempted went into the telltale.

Bulkley made his best showing in the second game. Although Gould led from the start, Bulkley, at one time, was able to bring the score to 7—5. Bulkley's left handed strokes for a while puzzled Gould and the runner-up managed, through a change of pace and well placed smashes which carromed around the court, to give Gould a hard fight in the first half of the match. Gould's hard driving, however, stopped Bulkley's rally and he won out at 15—7.

Bulkley continued to improve in the third game and started off like a winner. He had Gould at the small end of a 4—0 score before his opponent got started. In the fifth hand, Gould gathered three aces and then made the count 4 all. The score was deadlocked for several hands, as neither player was able to score an ace. Another rally by Gould broke the tie, however, and he reeled off seven aces in succession and in the next hand three more to complete the victory.

CREWS TEST THEIR SPEED.

Columbia 'Varsity Easily Beats Second Eight.

Columbia's varsity crew defeated the second varsity by six lengths over a course of slightly less than one mile in the first brush of the season on the Hudson yesterday. The race was rowed in barges. The varsity conceded the second crew a handicap of five lengths and then proceeded to win by a margin of a length. Beers stroked the juniors whose rowing was ragged.

Lott, who stroked the varsity eight last week was among the absentees and his place was taken by Shachtel. The other men in the varsity shell were Newman, No. 7; Saacke, No. 6; Abell, No. 5; Hyde, No. 4; Abrahamson, No. 3; Waldecker, No. 2; and Hart bow.

An examination for license as special teacher of music in elementary schools will be held on April 28, commencing at 9 A. M., in the Board of Education Hall. An oral and practical test will be given at the call of the Board of Examiners. The age limits are 21 to 40 years.

The Superintendent of Schools, the Board of Superintendents, and other officials of the department were directed yesterday to submit to the Board of Education with each recommendation involving an increase in expenditures of the department a statement of the amount of such expenditures, the apportionment from which it is to be made, and the balance of such apportionment. The auditor was directed to report to the board at the meeting of April 9 the apportionment of the general and special school funds of the current year and to advise the board whether or not the apportionment he recommends is identical with the apportionment of fund that he has used for the bases for reports to the board or to any of the officials or divisions as to financial ability. He was also directed to report to the board as soon as possible after the first of each month the expenditures for each apportionment during the preceding month and the balance for the remaining months of the year. The President of the board was empowered to appoint a committee consisting of the City Superintendent of Schools, an associate Superintendent, an examiner, a district Superintendent, a Principal of a high school and a Principal of an elementary school, who shall consider the system and the methods of examinations, the official ratings, and the records, and who shall report to the board at as early a date as possible recommendations for such modifications of examinations for promotions, the ratig methods of supervising authorities, and the official records and such other recommendations as in their judgment provide a more practical, businesslike method of promotions for teachers and others throughout the system.

New Articles by Philip Gibbs.

The tragic mistakes on the British front in Flanders—the errors which for a time helped the superior forces of the enemy—are described frankly by Philip Gibbs in THE NEW YORK TIMES Sunday, April 13. THE WEATHER

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The disturbance over Western Nebraska Sunday night is now over Southeastern South Dakota, with evidences of dissolution to the northward, pressure being high both to the northeastward and northwestward. There is also a moderate secondary disturbance over Southwestern New England.

Showers were quite general in the plains States, the lake region, the Mississippi and lower Missouri Valleys, and the Gulf States, and there were scattered rains in New England and Eastern New York.

There were also snows in the central Rocky Mountain region and the extreme Northwest, and rains along the North Pacific Coast.

It is much colder in the upper lake region, the Upper Mississippi and Lower Missouri Valleys and the Central Plains States, while to the southward high temperatures continue. In the Far West temperatures remain below the seasonal average.

There will be rain Tuesday and probably Wednesday in the lake region and showers Tuesday in the Ohio Valley, the East Gulf and Atlantic States, followed by generally fair weather Wednesday.

It will be somewhat colder Tuesday and Wednesday in the Lower Mississippi Valley and on Wednesday in the Ohio Valley.

Winds along the North Atlantic Coast Tuesday and Wednesday will be moderate, variable, becoming northwest, with showers; Middle Atlantic Coast, moderate variable, with showers; South Atlantic Coast, moderate south and southwest, except east and southeast off the Florida coast; showers.

FORECASTS: TODAY AND WEDNESDAY.

Southern New England—Showers Tuesday; cooler on the mainland. Wednesday, probably fair.

Western New York—Showers Tuesday and probably Wednesday.

Northern New England—Local rains Tuesday. Wednesday, probably fair.

The temperature record for the twenty-four hours ended at 11 P. M., taken from the thermometer at the local office of the United States Weather Bureau, is as follows:

FINANCIAL MARKETS

Traders in stocks took full advantage yesterday of the news from Paris, which forecast the early completion of the peace treaty, and bid the industrial stocks upward with considerable vim. The railroad group was far less active, but among them good-sized fractional increases were reported, and the differences between the Director General and the Industrial Board appeared to be ignored, for the time being, at least. Neither did the deadlock over steel prices have any effect upon the steel stocks, unless reference be made to the deliberate advance of these issues while a number of the specialties were climbing rapidly. The day's turnover was far enough above the million-share mark to emphasize a substantially increased interest in dealings among the professional element, and the impression prevailed in some quarters that public participation of the speculative order had been renewed. While the immediate cause for buoyant feelings was the reported situation of the peace delegates and the apparent betterment of political conditions in Southeastern Europe, the more influential and positive factors were probably expectations of business improvement to come later.

The course of industrial stocks brought more into evidence than before the volatile sentiments of speculators. The drift of opinion in regard to the steel market was further toward the expectation that active competition among producers might begin shortly. This was aided by comment coming from Washington, and also heard in local circles, about the Director General's attitude toward his purchases for the carriers. Less hope was expressed than at the end of last week that the matter would be compromised, and the stand of the Industrial Board against any effort to reduce prices further presented possibilities of a difficult situation growing worse. That is, worse from the point of view of those economists who believe that a period of stabilized prices would supply a successful medium for transferring consumers from a passive to an active state. It is to be said that many practical students of the markets are not, and never have been, in favor of seeking to squelch the normal law of supply and demand, and they would prefer to have the present controversy develop into a complete abandonment of effort to control commodity prices. The average trader in stocks has not been greatly disturbed by a hitch in the steel program, and spasms of doubt over the result of a return to an open market have quickly been converted into belief that the situation would work itself out to the ultimate good of producers.

Sterling and franc exchange lost a little ground without bringing forward any new developments in these markets. In banking circles considerable interest was expressed in London rumors of gold shipments to this side, coming from the South African fields. In general, the bankers felt that such an inflow would not be likely to begin soon, owing, for one thing, to possible opposition by the financial authorities of this country. With a gold stock of around $3,000,000,000 on hand, an increase of more than 60 per cent. since the war began, it is realized that a further increase might be more of a detriment than of value, because of the danger of increasing inflation at a time when it is desirable to deflate credit and commodity prices. Also, it was thought that Great Britain would seek to build up her gold reserves and allow the exchange market, only recently freed of support, to be corrected later. Call money rose to 6 per cent., with the market on a 4 per cent. basis during part of the day.

PEACE NEWS HELPS COTTON

The outlook for an early signing of the peace treaty again helped the cotton market in yesterday's session. Prices rose almost continuously throughout the five hours, and although there were slight reactions at times, it can hardly be said that at any time did the market appear soft. At the close of business prices were up 25 to 75 points for old-style contracts and 30 to 70 points for the new-style contracts. Business was on a good scale and on several occasions it was very active. Wall Street and Western houses were again conspicuous in the buying and spot interests and trade sources also bought.

The foreign reports were not confined to the peace negotiations. Trade advices from England told of a much more brisk business moving in cotton goods, and some of the cables were so optimistic as to rather thoroughly discount the recent pessimistic reports of accumulation of vast quantities of goods and a shutdown of many mills in order to work off part of the surplus. This, coming on top of favorable peace treaty advices, helped the local market considerably. Incidentally, the reports appeared to be well received in Liverpool, for that market was strong before ours opened.

At the opening here yesterday prices were generally advanced, the overnight gains ranging from 5 to 30 points, with most of the active new-style contracts, in which the business of the day was largely confined, up 17 to 24 points. The market thereafter, while strong, was also orderly, and moved up without the usual dramatic rush. At the high levels for the day cotton was at the best it has touched in some weeks. At the close values were up 55 to 70 points for the active new-style contracts.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Wage advances to be given to members of the four leading railway brotherhoods were discussed finally today between Director General Hines and the chiefs of the brotherhoods, and the order probably will be issued within a few days.

The order will readjust wages so as to restore most of the differentials between various classes of employes existing before Jan. 1, 1915. These wage relationships were disrupted by the general wage increase granted last year. A few rates will be lowered, it was said, but the general level will be raised.

It was reported after the conference today that the brotherhoods' application for time and a half pay for overtime had not been granted. Neither the brotherhood chiefs nor Director General Hines would comment on this point.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

An Ownership Certificate Guide for use in the preparation of income tax ownership certificates which are attached to coupons when presented for collection, has been issued by the National Bank of Commerce.

Richardson, Hill & Co. of Boston are offering $1,000,000 7 per cent. gold notes of the Ludlum Steel Company, on a basis to yield from 6.50 to 7.50 per cent.

William Wert & Co. are offering Fulton Light, Heat and Power first 5 per cent. gold bonds, due 1932, to yield 6½ per cent.

S. W. Straus & Co. have underwritten a first mortgage serial bond issue of $3,500,000 for a syndicate which has been formed to erect a large hotel in Los Angeles, to be called the California. Work on the building will be started at once, and will be completed next February.

GLASS OPPOSES 5% NOTES.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—The 5 per cent. interest rate borne by the War Finance Corporation's new one-year bonds, approved by the Treasury, is not to be taken as an index of the rate on Victory Liberty Loan notes, it was stated authoritatively today.

The Treasury believes, it was explained, that securities, which are not direct obligations of the Government, must bear from one-half to three-quarters per cent. higher interest than Government notes or bonds, and that consequently there can be only slight relationship between the rates of the War Finance Corporation bonds and of the victory notes.

Suggestions that the Victory issue should bear at least 5 per cent interest are reaching the Treasury persistently from banking and other commercial interests, but apparently the proposals are not looked on favorably. Rates of 4½ or even 4¼, as carried by the last two issues of bonds, have been discussed by Treasury officials much more than the higher rate. Secretary Glass is known to believe that 5 per cent. is entirely too high for Government notes partially tax exempt.

The rate and other terms of the loan will be determined within the next week or ten days and will be announced only a few days before April 21, when the selling campaign opens.

The printing of the notes has been started by the Bureau of Engraving, and thousands are being turned out daily, to be completed when terms are fixed. The notes as partially finished bear interest coupons and in most other respects resemble Liberty bonds.

INTERNATIONAL PAPER CO.

Total revenue of the International Paper Company and its subsidiaries, as shown in the pamphlet report just made public, amounted to $8,708,682 last year. Of this sum, $3,686,656 was charged off as follows: Mill plants depreciation, $1,929,573; reserved for taxes, $1,323,915; bonded debt, $433,167, leaving a net revenue of $5,022,026. The regular dividends on the preferred stock, totaling $1,500,000, were paid, leaving a balance carried forward to surplus of $3,522,026, making that item $19,442,871.

The consolidated balance sheet of the companies shows capital assets, including properties owned and operated valued at $44,533,418; woodlands worth $7,951,898, and securities, including Liberty bonds, of $5,041,406, making a total of $57,526,724. Current assets are: Cash, $1,449,839; notes receivable, $945,799; accounts receivable, $5,909,795; inventories, $20,637,521, for a total of $28,942,956. Sinking fund is down for $819, and deferred assets are placed at $383,133, giving a total of all assets of $86,853,633.

The chief items in the liabilities account are the several issues of bonds totaling $7,978,000; current liabilities of $11,329,991, special reserve funds of $8,614,087, capital stock, of which $24,724,676 is in preferred, and $19,764,008 in common, for a total of $44,488,684, and surplus of $19,442,871.

PHELPS-DODGE REPORT.

The pamphlet report of the Phelps-Dodge Corporation for 1918, which was issued yesterday, shows a surplus after interest charges, other charges, and Federal taxes of $10,282,870, which was equivalent to $22.85 a share earned on the $45,000,000 capital stock. In the preceding year there was a surplus of $16,940,319, which was equivalent to $37.64 a share on the same stock. Net earnings of the corporation after the deduction of operating expenses, depreciation, and taxes, were $15,945,683, which compared with $23,554,338 in the preceding year. Total surplus was $131,379,716, which compares with $131,896,846 in 1917.

The balance sheet of the company for 1918 shows current assets amounting to $39,223,793, of which $12,985,403 was in cash, which compares with $33,832,866 and $13,775,628 in the preceding year. Current liabilities as of Dec. 31, 1918, were $15,463,003 as compared with $9,523,198 in the preceding year.

ADVANCE-RUMELY REPORT.

Total earnings for 1918 for the Advance-Rumely Company and its subsidiaries from operation of plants and from miscellaneous sources amounted to $3,393,703, compared with $2,419,226 earned from similar accounts in 1917. After charging off $1,860,117 for selling and administration expenses, $144,657 for interest on debentures, and $200,000 for Federal taxes the company retained $1,188,928 as its net profits and income for the year. This figure compares with $550,557 earned for net in 1917.

The consolidated balance sheet shows property account, which includes branches and equipment, at $4,221,448; trade marks, trade names, patents, &c., at $13,000,000; current assets of $15,005,012 among the assets, while on the opposite side of the account the chief items are: Stock, $26,250,000; debenture debt, $1,545,000; current liabilities, $878,629; reserves, $1,724,736; surplus, $2,022,964.

AMORTIZATION V.

Monthly Deposits

AMORTIZATION or regular reduction of a mortgage is not enough. The amortization payments should be made out of the earnings of the mortgaged property, which should have sufficient earning power to pay amortization principal charges and interest as well.

Under the Straus Plan, prompt application of the earnings to the payment of the first mortgage bonds is assured by our system of monthly deposits of principal and interest, in addition to yearly serial payments. This is one of the most important safeguards of our plan.

Write for valuable literature describing the Straus Plan and the sound first mortgage 6% serial bonds issued thereunder. Ask for

REQUIRE MANY
Supplemental Schedules and Balance Sheets

George C. Holton, Esq., of the New York Bar, and Anselm F. Anderson, Accountants, have prepared a complete set of some twenty-five Schedules and Balance Sheets, arranged in accordance with Government requirements.

The entire set is suitably indexed, printed in triplicate, and bound in book form, perforated so that any or all the forms may be detatched. This provides an original to file with return, a copy to retain, and a triplicate for working sheet purposes. We also include a work sheet which gives an accurate and ingenious formula for computing the Corporation Tax.

A SET OF THESE FORMS, USED TO PREPARE AND FURNISH THE MASS OF ADDITIONAL INFORMATION REQUIRED BY THE GOVERNMENT, WILL BE OF GREAT ASSISTANCE TO TAXPAYERS AND WILL SIMPLIFY THE PREPARATION OF THIS MOST INTRICATE AND IMPORTANT RETURN.

Price $3.00 per Book. From your Stationer or the Publishers direct.

Southern Pacific Convertible 5s

These bonds now have all the speculative possibilities of Southern Pacific stock, as they are convertible (that is, exchangeable) for stock. The holders of these bonds through periods of uncertainty have had the security of a high class bond and nearly as much income as the holders of stock. There are now many similar opportunities where either large or small amounts can be safely and profitably invested.
If interested, send for circular.

BURLESON ASKS BIDS FOR POSTAL AIRPLANES

Aerial Mail Service to be Extended When New Machines Are Delivered.

WASHINGTON, April 7.—Steps toward carrying out the proposed extension of the aerial mail service were taken by the Post Office Department today in issuing specifications for multi-motored airplanes of a strictly commercial type, and particularly adapted for the carrying of mail. Bids for construction of the planes will be opened June 2, and it is expected that deliveries will begin six months after the contracts are let. The department has not determined the number to be built.

The new planes will be put into use on the present aerial mail routes as soon as complete, postal officials say, and the machines thus replaced will be used to carry mail between cities not touched by the present service. Eventually the new machines will be used on all routes.

The specifications for the new planes are general in their terms and are designed to allow airplane builders the widest latitude of design and construction. Consideration will be given, it is said, to a plane with two, three, or four motors, which can carry a minimum of 1,500 pounds of mail, and which has the lowest possible landing speed.

A cruising speed of between ninety and one hundred miles an hour will be required of the new planes, and a top speed of between 110 and 115 miles, with a cruising radius of about six hours under normal load. Other specifications include a wing span of more than 100 feet.

If the planes are built around Liberty or Hispano-Suiza engines the department will furnish the motors. It is presumed the department will obtain these motors from the War Department.

CONSOLIDATED EXCHANGE

Profit taking in the final hour of trading yesterday on the Consolidated Stock Exchange reduced substantially the previous advances, but the closing tone was firm. Final quotations showed substantial net advances throughout the list. The demand throughout the session until toward the close was vigorous and sustained, and made for the sharpest advances in recent days. The feature of the session was American International Corporation, which jumped 10 points.

BIG FUR AUCTION OPENED YESTERDAY

INCREASE IN PRICES NOTED

The heavy demand for Summer furs this year, coupled with the scarcity of the most popular skins, resulted in marked increases in prices being paid on several varieties of these goods at the annual Spring auction sale of raw pelts that opened yesterday in the Masonic Hall here and will continue throughout the week. Particularly good prices were obtained for fisher, Russian sable, and blue and silver foxes, and many lots of these furs brought out bids that surprised even the most "bullish" members of the trade. Buying was pretty evenly divided between the dealers and the manufacturers. The total of the day's sale footed up about $500,000.

The sale was preceded by a canvass for advance subscriptions to the forthcoming Victory Loan. After this was completed the first lot of beaver pelts was put on the block by Auctioneer J. Gordon Noakes of the New York Fur Auction Sales Corporation. At the time the first bids were made between 500 and 600 buyers were present, and while the attendance varied as the different kinds of skins were sold, it was large throughout the day. Bidding for beaver was fairly snappy, and the prices obtained ranged from $11.25 for the poorest skins to $30.50 for the best ones.

Bidding "pirked up" when 475 fisher skins were reached. The finest Fisher is in great favor at the present time, and prices ran high on the better pelts. The best ones were sold for $179, and prices ranged from this point down to $51. A kind of natural freak, in the form of a fisher that somewhat resembled a silver fox in appearance, was bought by Milton Schreiber & Co. for $237.50. The final drop of the auctioneer's hammer was several times met with applause when the fisher skins were up, this being by way of acknowledgement of an unusual price being paid. Dealers took most of the best skins in this collection.

A record price for Russian sables at a sale in this city was paid by E. Weingreen of London when he took the best at $500. The general collection of these skins was regarded by buyers as of exceptional quality, and the prices obtained for them were good throughout. The poorest lot brought $47 each. One lot of Russian sable tails also was sold.

Blue fox came next, and the bidding for these pelts was very active. At times the bids came almost as fast as shots from a Browning gun. Three different lots of these furs brought over $200 per skin, the best ones touching the $240 mark. Mandel Bros. of Chicago were the purchasers of the $240 skins. The least that blue fox brought was $51. The sale of about 800 wolverine followed, the prices varying from $13.50 to $19.50.

Because of the late start of the selling, all of the silver fox scheduled could not be disposed of by closing time. More than 100 lots remained, and they will be disposed of today. In yesterday's selling of this fur the top price reached was $555 and the lowest was $42. Bidding was generally active while these skins were up.

Wolverine showed no change, but the average prices of the other furs sold during the day showed these percentage advances when compared with those got at the midwinter sale: Beaver 10; fisher, 60; Russian sable, 30, and blue fox, 25. The silver fox comparison will be announced today.

Following the cleanup of the remaining lots of silver foxes, Auctioneer Noakes will sell these skins today, beginning at 10 A. M.: squirrel, lynx, gray fox, white fox, cross fox, red fox, fox tails, Australian opposshm, ringtail opossum, chinchilla, and marten.

A number of out-of-town and foreign buyers were present yesterday, among them being T. G. Richardson and E. Weingreen of London, Goetze Freres and H. des Landres of Paris, and P. Dilgen of Christiania, Denmark. From Canada came Fred Ramelson, Edmonton; D. Rosenthal, Port Arthur; R. S. Robinson, Winnipeg; Fred Dykes, Victoria, B. C.; C. L. McClure, Charlottetown, and P. G. Rogers, Summerside. These buyers from Montreal were present: William Corlatine, S. Shapiro, M. Richer, B. J. Balttle, G. E. Hassett, R. J. Williamson, Edward Pollak, J. Endelman, and H. Drucker.

Among the buyers from American cities were A. Bach, D. Silberman, L. Potasch, Leo Geltelbaum, and F. Mammoser of Chicago; D. Berman, Charles Linsmayer, and J. L. May of Minneapolis; L. Barr, S. M. Norton, E. F. Kakas, H. B. Kakas, and H. Grosberg of Boston, and J. A. Sanditz, Eugene Maas, Louis Steiner, Albert Vorhaus, Mark Harris, S. J. Harris, I. A. Schoen, R. L. Goldsmith, H. W. David, L. F. Huebsch, B. J. Teach, Samuel Mendel, Sydney Chaitin, and I. Heilman of St. Louis.

Other buyers who came to the sale from various parts of the country were G. W. Ball, Raven, Va.; George Simmons, Portland, Ore.; S. Klinger, New Orleans; S. Steinberg, Memphis; A. Zirkin, Washington, D. C.; S. Rosenberg and S. W. Sloman, Detroit; J. R. Plagemann, Portland, Ore.; Lewis Baer, Baltimore; J. R. Brabowsky, Pittsburgh; A. E. Laskin, Milwaukee; G. R. Hunnewell and G. The Ludlum Steel Company manufactures tool steel and steel specialties, in furnaces of its own design. Its plant is at Watervliet, N. Y.

Fifteen hundred customers are on the company's books. More than two hundred new customers have been added since Jan. 1.

Gross sales last year were more than $5,000,000.

Net earning for the last three years after federal taxes have averaged $354,917 annually, or five times the interest requirements of this issue.

Net quick assets after this financing are more than one and three-quarters times, and total net tangible assets more than two and one-quarter times, this issue.

No dividend shall be paid on the Common Stock if such payment reduces the net quick assets below 150% of the par value of the serial notes outstanding.

Since the armistice Ludlum has operated on full time and in some departments is working overtime.

In Town.

BEN ALI HAGGIN, artist of 875 Madison Avenue.—A petition in bankruptcy has been filed against him by these creditors: Tappe, Inc., $2,947, for wearing apparel sold between March 16, 1917, and Aug. 8, 1918. Charles V. Miller, doing business as the Louis XIV., $546, for antique beads and jewelry sold between Feb. 28, 1918, and Sept. 4, 1918, and the Motion Picture Apparatus Co., $193, balance due for a motion picture camera and supplies sold between Feb. 1, 1917, and July 1, 1919. The bill amounted to $893, on which $700 was paid. It was alleged that he permitted a judgment to be taken against him by default for $2,947 on April 7. He is a grandson of the late James B. Haggin and receives the income from a large trust fund.

REAL ESTATE FIELD

The Seaboard National Bank now located at 18 Broadway, which has been seeking for many months past a suitable site in the financial district on which to erect a new home, yesterday purchased the northeast corner of Broad and Beaver Streets for $590,000.

Recently the bank secured an option on the property at the southwest corner of Broad and Marketfield Streets, owned by Colonel E. H. R. Green. This will be retained in the event of any delay in the construction of the bank's new home, which it is expected will take close to two years to make ready for occupancy.

The property acquired yesterday consists of five old buildings at 55 to 59 Broad Street and 33 to 37 Beaver Street, forming a plot 80 by 93, containing almost 72,000 square feet. It was purchased through Horace S. Ely & Co. from Fred B. Jennings and the estate of John G. McCullough for $590,000. The property was held at over $600,000, but payment in cash secured a reduction to the price mentioned.

Alfred C. Bossom has been commissioned by the bank to prepare plans for a three-story structure, to have foundations of sufficient strength to add as many stories as the zoning resolution permits, these to be added when conditions for building become more favorable.

The building will have a basement raised above the street level, a banking floor, and two floors for executive offices, &c. A battery of elevators sufficient for a tall structure will also be installed in preparation for the completion of the full plan for the improvement of the corner.

The Barney Estate Company, Inc., sold to I. Randolph and Everett Jacobs, operators, 777 and 779 Madison Avenue, a ten-story apartment house on the northeast corner of Sixty-sixth Street. The structure, which has a frontage of 100 feet on each thoroughfare, was erected by Charles E. Rogers for the late Charles T. Barney and is considered one of the best constructed houses of its kind on the East Side, having cost close to $1,000,000 to build. It shows a gross annual rental of about $83,000. N. A. Sterwin & Co. negotiated the transaction.

Broadway Lofts Sold.

The Simon Sternberger Estate sold two five-story buildings, 25 by 75, at 525 Broadway, and running through to 94 Spring Street, to a client of William A. White & Sons.

Activities in Heights Section.

Joseph Shenk bought from Burt L. Haskins the five-story apartment house on plot 75 by 100, held at $150,000 and renting for $17,000, at 308 and 310 Haven Avenue. Mr. Shenk also paid I. Portman a profit on his contract covering the six-story elevator apartment on plot 91.2 by 100, held at $200,000, at the northeast corner of Broadway and 177th Street, which the seller acquired last week from Conrad Stein.

Kertscher & Co. sold the 100-foot six-story elevator apartment house, at the northeast corner of Northern Avenue and 179th Street, renting for $26,000, and held at $190,000. The buyer is a client of Max Silverstein.

M. L. & C. Ernst sold to Mary G. Fowler, 272 Wadsworth Avenue, near 185th Street, a five-story flat, 50 by 115, rented for about $11,000, and held at $75,000. This property was recently purchased from Frederick Brown.

The two five-story new-law apartment houses at 550 and 552 West 146th Street were sold by the Twenty-third Ward Realty Co. to Frank J. Bryant, who holds the properties for lease. They occupy a combined site 75 by 100, house forty families, who pay a gross yearly rental of $15,000, and were held at $100,000.

Frederick Brown bought from the Millblanche Realty Company, through J. S. Maxwell, 1,790 Amsterdam Avenue, near 148th Street, a five-story flat, 27 by 100, rented for $6,000.

Irving Judis and Irving I. Lewine resold to Abraham Crosney, attorney, the six-story elevator apartment house at 545 to 547 West 158th Street, known as Florenza Court, on a plot 100 by 100, adjoining the northeast corner of Broadway. Charles Friedman was the broker in the transaction. The house, which was bought by the sellers about two months ago from the Barber Estate, was held at $200,000. It shows an annual return of about $27,000.

Galewski Buys Granite Apartments.

Charles Galewski bought the Granite Apartments, two six-story elevator buildings, on plot 100 by 100, at the northeast corner of Morningside Avenue and 116th Street, rented for $32,000 and held at $250,000. The properties were sold by the estate of Augustus Rupp through John Finck, Joseph E. Greenberg representing the buyer and Adolph & Henry Bloch the sellers as attorneys.

Private Dwellings.

Daniel H. Jackson bought the four-story American basement dwelling, 16.8 by 100, at 258 West Ninety-ninth Street, from Francis S. Pullen et al., through Slawson & Hobbs.

J. A. Wood sold to T. B. Lynch the three-story private dwelling at 22 East 130th Street.

Arthur Sachs sold his residence at 58 East Sixty-sixth Street to a buyer for occupancy. Mr. Sachs recently purchased a new home at 42 and 44 East Sixty-ninth Street.

Buy Apartment Site on Seventy-third Street.

The West Seventy-third Street Associates, a corporation controlled by A. L. Mordecai & Son and E. Clifford Potter, sold to J. Axelrod & Son a plot 140 by 100 on the north side of West Seventy-third Street, fifty feet west of Columbus Avenue, on which the buyers plan to erect two nine-story apartment houses to be completed by Dec. 1.

Will Alter Apartment for Small Suites.

Tenement Deals.

Isadore Montefiore Levy, as attorney, bought the five-story house on lot 25 by 100.10, held at $19,000, at 66 East 103th Street. The premises were taken over in the foreclosure of a first mortgage by the plaintiff who sold the property to Mr. Levy in a cash deal, the property having been sold free and clear.

George Latour sold the two six-story tenements with stores, on plot 50 by 100, at 546 and 548 West Forty-seventh Street, through A. W. Miller & Co.

Elsie Armour Duncan of Toronto, Can., sold the five-story front and rear tenement on lot 25 by 100, at 157 Forsyth Street, to the Lucina Realty Company, Inc., through Samuel Kronsky, Inc.

The United States Trust Company, as trustee, sold the six-story house on lot 25 by 102.2 at 415 East Seventy-fifth Street, to an investing client of Fred Oppenheimer in an all cash transaction.

Felix M. Warburg et al., trustees, sold 328 to 332 Seventh Avenue, three four-story tenements, on plot 74 by 100, between Twenty-eighth and Twenty-ninth Streets, to a new corporation.

Frederick Brown sold through James Kehoe to Paul Feinman the northwest corner of Second Avenue and 118th Street, a three-story flat with three stores, 20 by 90.

The Pocomo Realty Company, C. D. Gregory, President, sold the five-story flat, on plot 25 by 100, at 11 West 133d Street, in a cash deal to an investing client of J. Anthony Minotti.

ELEVEN BURGLARIES IN CITY ON WEEK-END

POLICE MAKE NO COMMENT

In One Case Safe Was Carried Away, in Another Explosion Awoke Neighborhood.

Police records yesterday would tend to controvert the police opinion that there is no unusual run of crime in this city. From various parts of the city came reports yesterday that safe robbers, silk thieves, and the usual run of thieves had been unusually active in the twenty-four hours preceding the reports. Just how the various gangs that operated were related could not be learned, for the police officials when questioned declared that it was not proper to comment upon the reports. There were eleven robberies reported yesterday, and these, except for the rifling of four offices in one building and the depredation of silk thieves in a loft building, were all the work of safe crackers. In one case the blowing of a safe caused such a loud explosion that a neighborhood trooped out of doors to find out what had happened. In another case a safe was carried from a home to Central Park in an automobile and there rifled at leisure.

One of the first reports of the weekend activities of safe robbers came from the residence of Mrs. Sarah Grossman, at 263 West 122d Street, wife of Alexander I. Grossman, a broker of 7 Pine Street. Mrs. Grossman left her home about 9 o'clock Sunday morning. When she returned several hours later she discovered the front door open. Further investigation confirmed her suspicion that the house had been robbed. A small safe that stood in one of the rooms was missing.

After Mrs. Grossman had given the alarm several neighbors remembered that they had seen an automobile containing four men standing in front of the Grossman house and that later it had driven slowly away in the direction of Central Park. Detectives who later followed the trail found the 500-pound safe lying empty on its side on the grass in Central Park, not far from the fence at 108th Street. The missing contents included $500 in cash, $1,450 in Liberty bonds, and jewelry valued at $1,500. This last consisted of a pear-shaped diamond ring, several pearl rings, four bracelets set with diamonds, and two lavalliers with diamonds.

About three years ago burglars killed and robbed Mrs. Eliza Kantrowitz, Mrs. Grossman's mother, in her home, 3 West 135th Street.

In some cases where the safe had been placed under an electric light the burglars moved it back so they could rifle it without attracting attention. This was the case in the Liggett drug store, 15 West Thirty-fourth Street, across the street from the Waldorf-Astoria. Less than a year ago, the safe having been robbed of about $3,500, it was moved forward under the light.

William H. Dougherty, the manager, discovered that the safe was not in its accustomed place when he opened yesterday morning. He found it later empty, and an investigation showed that the thieves had got into the store through a rear window. With professional efficiency they had done their work and had departed with $900 in stamps and $300 in cash. They left no clue behind.

Explosion Awakes Neighborhood.

About 2 o'clock on Sunday morning an explosion caused many of those living in the vicinity of the meat and provision warehouse of William Waegner & Sons, at 571 First Avenue, to come out on the street. Near the Waegner plant was standing a young man, who assured everybody that the noise had been caused by a back fire of a passing automobile, but when the plant was opened yesterday morning it was discovered that a large safe on the second floor had been torn apart with nitroglycerin and that $1,500 in cash, some Liberty bonds, and valuable papers were missing. The burglars had gone about their business methodically. On the third floor they got several horse blankets, and these were wrapped about the safe. A hole was drilled near the combination and nitroglycerin did the rest. Before leaving they went to the engine room and helped themselves to tools, leaving some of their own behind.

Jake, the elderly watchman in the Eagle Wet Wash Company's plant at 427 East Thirteenth Street, heard suspicious noises on the second floor on Sunday night. He hastened to the East Twenty-second Street Police Station and told his story. He says he was told that the building was not in that precinct and he was referred to the Fifth Street Station. While he journeyed about the burglars did their work and departed, for when the police got there they found the small safe open and $300 gone. One week ago a branch of the laundry company at 715 East Eleventh Street was robbed of $800, and a month ago the branch at 430 East Fifty-ninth Street was robbed of $700.

The first intimation that Leonard Baldwin of the grocery firm of Baldwin Brothers had that their store, at 1,952 Third Avenue, had been robbed was when a policeman called upon him Sunday afternoon at his home, 119 East 106th Street, just as he was preparing to spend the afternoon at the home of friends, and asked him if he could account for several hundred dollars' worth of checks made out to the firm which had been found by street sweepers in East 126th Street. Mr. Baldwin, accompanied by the policeman, went at once to the store, and found that the safe, which usually stood at the front of the store, had been taken to the rear and there robbed. The robbers got away with $1,500 in cash, $500 in Liberty bonds, and $100 in old coins. They had gained entrance by prying open the iron shutter of a rear window and bending the protecting iron bars. Later the police arrested Abe Epstein of 77 East 117th Street on suspicion. In the Harlem Court he was held in $1,000 bail for further examination.

Find Key to Strongbox.

Some time between closing time Saturday and yesterday morning robbers entered the office of the Matlack Coal and Iron Corporation, 52 Vanderbilt Avenue, and stole $400 in cash and $2,100 in Liberty bonds out of the metal strongbox. H. C. Matlack of the firm locked the box when he left on Saturday afternoon, he said, and placed the key in its accustomed hiding place. The detectives believe the theft was committed by some one familiar with the location of the key.

With a knowledge that showed familiarity with the premises, burglars chose a place in the floor not protected by the extensive burglar alarm system to cut through into the loft occupied by the Alco Waist and Dress Company at 101 and 103 Wooster Street. The burglary was discovered on Saturday, but was not made known by the police until yesterday. The thievesused a block and tackle to haul $10,000 worth of bolted silk through the opening they had made. The firm's loft is on the seventh floor and the police say the silk was carried across the fire escape into a tenement house in East Broadway and from there taken away in an automobile.

The Terminal Building, at Seventh Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, was invaded by burglars during the week end. From the roof of an extension and with the use of a glass cutter they visited several places. Dr. O. Greenburger, dentist, lost some gold for fillings and a quantity of cocaine; the studio of William Kochstein was robbed of $25; in the Standard Art Company a small safe was forced, but it could not be learned whether anything was missing. The Rangonese Embroidery Company and the tailoring shop of P. H. Travada were visited, and after a thorough search yesterday nothing was reported missing. Through Lieutenant Buckley, in charge of the outer office, Commissioner Enright was asked yesterday about the burglaries. He sent word out that the proper man to interview was Second Deputy William J. Lahey, in charge of the Detective Division. Commissioner Lahey referred all questioners to Inspector John J. Cray, commanding the Detective Division. The latter said he had received reports of five burglaries, but aside from the fact that detectives were at work on the cases he did not deem it proper to make any comment.

200 Burglary Cases Await Trial.

Because of the prevalence of burglary and robbery there is danger of the criminal calendar becoming congested, and District Attorney Swann announced yesterday that his office had gathered together every highway robbery and burglar case on the calendar, and had obtained the consent of the Court to advance these cases out of their regular order.

Upon Judge Rosalsky's calendar appear twenty-five cases of burglary and highway robbery, and twenty similar cases are distributed among the other day calendars of General Sessions. There are about 200 such cases awaiting trial.

COLUMBIA BUDGET GROWS.

Appropriations of $4,588,727.57 Announced for the Coming Year.

The yearly budget of the expenses of Columbia University for the ensuing year, including the appropriations for Columbia College, Barnard, and Teachers' Colleges and the graduate schools, was announced yesterday afternoon at a meeting of the Trustees as amounting to $4,588,727.57, an increase of $214,668.66 over the appropriations for the current year. In addition gifts aggregating $10,914.15 were announced.

Of the sum appropriated $2,433,956.55 is to be expended for educational administration and instruction, $402,190 for the care of buildings and grounds, $130,212.75 for the maintenance of the library, $99,577 for the business administration of the University Corporation, $36,780 for annuities, $109,312.11 for taxes and other charges, and $100,000 for the redemption fund on account of the debt, making the total appropriations of the University Corporation $3,436,100.57. The other sums appropriated were $924,515 by Teachers College, $180,506 by Barnard College, and $47,606 by the College of Physicians and Surgeons.

The resignations of Cornelius Rybner, head of the Department of Music, and John R. Crawford, Assistant Professor of Archaeology and Librarian of the Avery Library, were announced to take effect at the end of the academic year in June. Professor Rybner will devote himself to recitals and composition, and Professor Crawford has accepted the Professorship of Latin at Lafayette College.

BAR TEACHERS' UNION.

Organization Will No Longer Be Allowed to Meet In Schools.

The Teachers' Union will not be allowed to hold a meeting hereafter in any public school building in the city as a result of statements made by its counsel, Gilbert E. Roe, and its members in Public School 27, Third Avenue near Forty-second Street, last Saturday. The Board of Education, sitting as a committee of the whole, with all of its seven members present yesterday, directed City Superintendent Ettinger to bar the union from the schools and to bring charges against those officers and members who had belittled the Government and denounced the Board of Education.

A letter from Dr. Ettinger to President Somers about the meeting was read, as was also a communication from Eugene C. Gibney, Assistant Director of Recreation Centres, and a report of the meeting by May Halsted Beattye, Inspector of Community Centres. The report was as follows:

> The subject was free speech and the rights of teachers, and the spirit of the meeting was one of defiance and criticism of the Board of Education. The board was represented as tyrants and oppressors—a privileged class—desirous of suppressing the rights of the both teachers and pupils. The world's war syllabus, adopted by the board, was bitterly attacked as teaching untruths to the children, and giving them a prejudiced and false idea of conditions. A representative of the Central Federated Union spoke of methods of trials of members of the union to the detriment and discredit of the Board of Education.

President Somers said that the Board of Education would act as a court in trying teachers of the union who were charged with misconduct. At his suggestion the City Superintendent was directed to prefer charges against any members of the union accused of misconduct and the board would then set dates for their trials.

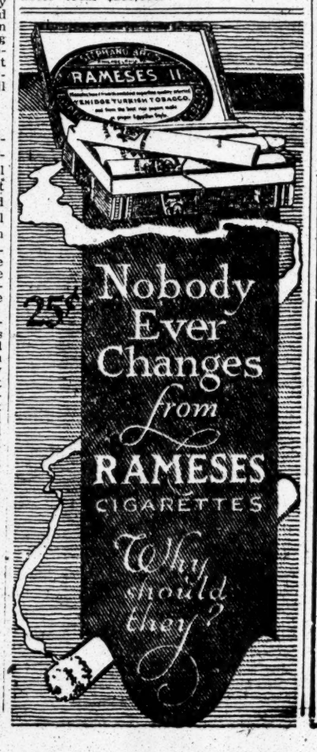
WIFE SUES JOEL W. THORNE.

Brings Separation Action, Charging Cruelty and Abandonment.

Mrs. Mary Casey Thorne, who instituted habeas corpus proceedings to find her son, Joel Thorne, Jr., alleged to have been kidnapped by her husband, Joel Wolfe Thorne, on Aug. 24 last, and has thus far failed to find trace of him, filed a separation suit in the Supreme Court yesterday. On the ground that her husband abandoned her on Oct. 16, 1917, after they had been married six years, and that her process servers have been unable to find trace of him in order to serve the papers, Justice Cohalan, who is hearing the habeas corpus proceeding, directed the service of papers by mail. They are to be sent to the home of the husband's mother, Mrs. Samuel Thorne, widow of the banker, at 914 Fifth Avenue, and to the Samuel Thorne estate.

Darius Miller's Gifts to New Britain

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., April 7.—The will of Darius Miller, offered for probate today, leaves the residue of his estate, which will be half a million to a million dollars, to the New Britain General Hospital. Walnut Hill Park will receive $75,000, the city's library $50,000 and other specific gifts of a public character total $285,000.



LEAVES IN HIS WILL $100,000 TO CHARITY

AIDS MANY INSTITUTIONS

Remembers His Birthplace in Austria with a Gift to be Divided by Jews and Christians.

The will of Emil Schweinburg, who died at 38 West Fifty-ninth Street, leaves an estate of more than $100,000 for charitable purposes. He set aside a trust fund of $50,000 to provide a university education for worthy students who would be unable to obtain it otherwise, and no one is to be barred because of race, creed, or sex. Mr. Schweinburg also directed that the residue of his estate be devoted to the same purpose, and that it be administeed by Cooper Union.

The City of Nikolsburg, Austria, receives $13,000 for deserving Jews and Christians, the share for the Christians to be paid at Christmas and Easter. The following institutions get $2,500 each: German Hospital, Hebrew Technical Institute, Mount Sinai Hospital, Home for Aged and Infirm Hebrews, Montefiore Home, Charity Organization Society, Educational Alliance, and National Jewish Hospital for Consumptives at Denver. The will gives $1,000 each to Lebanon Hospital, St. Mark's Hospital, Children's Society, Metropolitan Museum of Art, German Polyclinic, Hebrew Sheltering Guardian Society, Hospital for Deformities and Joint Diseases, Mount Sinai Training School for Nurses, and Jewish Protective and Aid Society. The United Hebrew Charities of New York and a similar organization in the testator's birthplace, Nikolsburg, Austria, received $5,000 each.

Paul Schweinburg, a brother, of Bloomville, Wis., got $10,000 and his debts to the testator were canceled, while minor bequests were left to nephews and nieces.

Buy Site for Subway Storage Yard.

The Public Service Commission closed a contract yesterday for the purchase, from the New York Catholic Protectory, of a plot of land of approximately twelve acres for $75,000. The property is between the foot of Herschel Street and Westchester Creek, Unionport, and will be used as a storage yard for the Pelham Bay branch of the Lexington Avenue Subway. There will be enough space, it was said, to accommodate more than thrity trains of steel cars of the type used by the Interborough Rapid Transit Company.

HEAVY SNOWSTORM RAGING IN DAKOTA

Two and a Half Feet Fell Up to Noon—Severe Weather in Montana and Wyoming.

DENVER, April 7.—Trains from the north and east entering Denver are running from one to ten hours behind schedule as a result of the wind, sleet, and snow storm that swept the Western States Sunday. Three feet of snow is reported at Wiggins, Col.

In Western Kansas and Nebraska westbound trains are experiencing difficulty because of the snow that has piled in the deep cuts.

The heaviest snowstorm of the season is sweeping over South Dakota. Two and one-half feet of snow had fallen up to noon, tying up train traffic.

Sagging ankle and arch without support of the Coward Arch Support Shoe.

Straight Ankles A Blessing

If your growing boy or girl has straight ankles you, as well as they, have real cause to be thankful.

For those not so fortunate the Coward Arch Supporting Shoe will be found of great assistance.

By properly distributing the weight of the body, this shoe helps to straighten turned ankles and strengthen weak arches and in the natural way—by guiding the foot growth.
